PUBLISHERS' NOTE

THE editor of the Cambridge Edition of The Complete Poetical Works and Letters of John Keats made a careful examination of the volumes published by Keats during his life, and also of the posthumously published poems, with a view to securing an authoritative text. He also studied an arrangement of the poetical works which should be chronological as regards the body of his poetry, and should discriminate in a measure between his serious and acknowledged work and his pastime. The arrangement and the text of this Cabinet Edition are those of the Cambridge, and the contents include the whole of Keats's verse.

Autumn, 1900.

EARLY POEMS

IMITATION OF SPENSER

Now Morning from her orient chamber came,
And her first footsteps touch'd a verdant hill ;
Crowning its lawny crest with amber flame,
Silv'ring the untainted gushes of its rill ;
Which, pure from mossy beds, did down distil,
And after parting beds of simple flowers,
By many streams a little lake did fill,
Which round its marge reflected woven bowers,
And, in its middle space, a sky that never lowers.

There the kingfisher saw his plumage bright,
Vying with fish of brilliant dye below ;
Whose silken fins, and golden scales' light
Cast upward, through the waves, a ruby glow :
There saw the swan his neck of arched snow,
And oar'd himself along with majesty ;
Sparkled his jetty eyes ; his feet did show
Beneath the waves like Afric's ebony,
And on his back a fay reclined voluptuously.

Ah ! could I tell the wonders of an isle
That in that fairest lake had placed b en,
I could e'en Dido of her grief beguile ;
Or rob from aged Lear his bitter teen :

For sure so fair a place was never seen,
 Of all that ever charm'd romantic eye:
 It seem'd an emerald in the silver sheen
 Of the bright waters; or as when on high,
 Through clouds of fleecy white, laughs the cœrulean sky.

And all around it dipp'd luxuriously
 Slopings of verdure through the glossy tide,
 Which, as it were in gentle amity,
 Rippled delighted up the flowery side;
 As if to glean the ruddy tears, it tried,
 Which fell profusely from the rose-tree stem!
 Haply it was the workings of its pride,
 In strife to throw upon the shore a gem
 Outvying all the buds in Flora's diadem.

ON DEATH

CAN death be sleep, when life is but a dream,
 And scenes of bliss pass as a phantom by?
 The transient pleasures as a vision seem,
 And yet we think the greatest pain's to die.

How strange it is that man on earth should roam,
 And lead a life of woe, but not forsake
 His rugged path; nor dare he view alone
 His future doom, which is but to awake.

TO CHATTERTON

O CHATTERTON! how very sad thy fate!
 Dear child of sorrow — son of misery!
 How soon the film of death obscur'd that eye,
 Whence Genius mildly flash'd, and high debate.

How soon that voice, majestic and elate,
 Melted in dying numbers ! Oh ! how nigh
 Was night to thy fair morning. Thou didst die
 A half-blown flow'ret which cold blasts amate.
 But this is past : thou art among the stars
 Of highest Heaven : to the rolling spheres
 Thou sweetly singest : nought thy hymning mars,
 Above the ingrate world and human fears.
 On earth the good man base detraction bars
 From thy fair name, and waters it with tears.

TO BYRON

BYRON ! how sweetly sad thy melody !
 Attuning still the soul to tenderness,
 As if soft Pity, with unusual stress,
 Had touch'd her plaintive lute, and thou, being by,
 Hadst caught the tones, nor suffer'd them to die.
 O'ershadowing sorrow doth not make thee less
 Delightful : thou thy griefs dost dress
 With a bright halo, shining beamily,
 As when a cloud the golden moon doth veil,
 Its sides are ting'd with a resplendent glow,
 Through the dark robe oft amber rays prevail,
 And like fair veins in sable marble flow ;
 Still warble, dying swan ! still tell the tale,
 The enchanting tale, the tale of pleasing woe.

‘WOMAN ! WHEN I BEHOLD THEE
 FLIPPANT, VAIN ’

WOMAN ! when I behold thee flippant, vain,
 Inconstant, childish, proud, and full of fancies ;
 Without that modest softening that enhances
 The downcast eye, repentant of the pain

That its mild light creates to heal again :
 E'en then, elate, my spirit leaps, and prances,
 E'en then my soul with exultation dances
 For that to love, so long, I've dormant lain :
 But when I see thee meek, and kind, and tender,
 Heavens ! how desperately do I adore
 Thy winning graces ; — to be thy defender
 I hotly burn — to be a Calidore —
 A very Red Cross Knight — a stout Leander —
 Might I be lov'd by thee like these of yore.

Light feet, dark violet eyes, and parted hair ;
 Soft dimpled hands, white neck, and creamy
 breast,
 Are things on which the dazzled senses rest
 Till the fond, fixèd eyes forget they stare.
 From such fine pictures, Heavens ! I cannot dare
 To turn my admiration, though unpossess'd
 They be of what is worthy, — though not drest
 In lovely modesty, and virtues rare.
 Yet these I leave as thoughtless as a lark ;
 These lures I straight forget, — e'en ere I dine,
 Or thrice my palate moisten : but when I mark
 Such charms with mild intelligences shine,
 My ear is open like a greedy shark,
 To catch the tunings of a voice divine.

Ah ! who can e'er forget so fair a being ?
 Who can forget her half-retiring sweets ?
 God ! she is like a milk-white lamb that bleats
 For man's protection. Surely the All-seeing,
 Who joys to see us with his gifts agreeing,
 Will never give him pinions, who intreats
 Such innocence to ruin, — who vilely cheats
 A dove-like bosom. In truth there is no freeing One's thoughts from such a beauty ; when I hear
 A lay that once I saw her hand awake,

Her form seems floating palpable, and near :
Had I e'er seen her from an arbour take
A dewy flower, oft would that hand appear,
And o'er my eyes the trembling moisture shake.

TO SOME LADIES

WHAT though, while the wonders of nature exploring,
I cannot your light, mazy footsteps attend ;
Nor listen to accents, that almost adoring,
Bless Cynthia's face, the enthusiast's friend :

Yet over the steep, whence the mountain-stream rushes,
With you, kindest friends, in idea I rove ;
Mark the clear tumbling crystal, its passionate gushes,
Its spray that the wild flower kindly bedews.

Why linger you so, the wild labyrinth strolling ?
Why breathless, unable your bliss to declare ?
Ah ! you list to the nightingale's tender condoling,
Responsive to sylphs, in the moon-beamy air.

'T is morn, and the flowers with dew are yet drooping,
I see you are treading the verge of the sea :
And now ! ah, I see it — you just now are stooping
To pick up the keepsake intended for me.

If a cherub, on pinions of silver descending,
Had brought me a gem from the fretwork of heaven ;
And smiles, with his star-cheering voice sweetly blending,
The blessings of Tighe had melodiously given ;

It had not created a warmer emotion
 Than the present, fair nymphs, I was blest with from you ;
 Than the shell, from the bright golden sands of the ocean,
 Which the emerald waves at your feet gladly threw.

For, indeed, 't is a sweet and peculiar pleasure,
 (And blissful is he who such happiness finds,)
 To possess but a span of the hour of leisure,
 In elegant, pure, and aerial minds.

ON RECEIVING A CURIOUS SHELL AND A COPY OF VERSES FROM THE SAME
 LADIES

HAST thou from the caves of Golconda, a gem
 Pure as the ice-drop that froze on the mountain ?
 Bright as the humming-bird's green diadem,
 When it flutters in sunbeams that shine through a fountain ?

Hast thou a goblet for dark sparkling wine ?
 That goblet right heavy, and massy, and gold ?
 And splendidly mark'd with the story divine
 Of Armida the fair, and Rinaldo the bold ?

Hast thou a steed with a mane richly flowing ?
 Hast thou a sword that thine enemy's smart is ?
 Hast thou a trumpet rich melodies blowing ?
 And wear'st thou the shield of the fam'd Brito-martis ?

What is it that hangs from thy shoulder, so brave,
 Embroidered with many a spring peering flower ?
 Is it a scarf that thy fair lady gave ?
 And hastest thou now to that fair lady's bower ?

ON RECEIVING A CURIOUS SHELL 7

Ah ! courteous Sir Knight, with large joy thou art
crown'd ;

Full many the glories that brighten thy youth !
I will tell thee my blisses, which richly abound
In magical powers to bless, and to soothe.

On this scroll thou seest written in characters fair
A sun-beamy tale of a wreath, and a chain :
And, warrior, it nurtures the property rare
Of charming my mind from the trammels of pain.

This canopy mark : 't is the work of a fay ;
Beneath its rich shade did King Oberon languish,
When lovely Titania was far, far away,
And cruelly left him to sorrow, and anguish.

There, oft would he bring from his soft-sighing lute
Wild strains to which, spell-bound, the nightin-
gales listen'd ;
The wondering spirits of heaven were mute,
And tears 'mong the dewdrops of morning oft glistened.

In this little dome, all those melodies strange,
Soft, plaintive, and melting, for ever will sigh ;
Nor e'er will the notes from their tenderness change ;
Nor e'er will the music of Oberon die.

So, when I am in a voluptuous vein,
I pillow my head on the sweets of the rose,
And list to the tale of the wreath, and the chain,
Till its echoes depart ; then I sink to repose.

Adieu, valiant Eric ! with joy thou art crown'd ;
Full many the glories that brighten thy youth,
I too have my blisses, which richly abound
In magical powers, to bless and to soothe.

WRITTEN ON THE DAY THAT MR.
LEIGH HUNT LEFT PRISON

WHAT though, for showing truth to flatter'd state,
Kind Hunt was shut in prison, yet has he,
In his immortal spirit, been as free
As the sky-searching lark, and as elate.
Minion of grandeur ! think you he did wait ?
Think you he nought but prison-walls did see,
Till, so unwilling, thou unturn'dst the key ?
Ah, no ! far happier, nobler was his fate !
In Spenser's halls he strayed, and bowers fair,
Culling enchanted flowers ; and he flew
With daring Milton through the fields of air :
To regions of his own his genius true
Took happy flights. Who shall his fame impair
When thou art dead, and all thy wretched crew ?

TO HOPE

WHEN by my solitary hearth I sit,
And hateful thoughts enwrap my soul in gloom ;
When no fair dreams before my ' mind's eye ' flit,
And the bare heath of life presents no bloom ;
Sweet Hope, ethereal balm upon me shed,
And wave thy silver pinions o'er my head.

Whene'er I wander, at the fall of night,
Where woven boughs shut out the moon's bright
ray,
Should sad Despondency my musings fright,
And frown, to drive fair Cheerfulness away,
Peep with the moonbeams through the leafy roof,
And keep that fiend Despondence far aloof.

Should Disappointment, parent of Despair,
Strive for her son to seize my careless heart ;
When, like a cloud, he sits upon the air,
Preparing on his spell-bound prey to dart :
Chase him away, sweet Hope, with visage
bright,
And fright him as the morning frightens night !

Whene'er the fate of those I hold most dear
Tells to my fearful breast a tale of sorrow,
O bright-eyed Hope, my morbid fancy cheer ;
Let me awhile thy sweetest comforts borrow :
Thy heaven-born radiance around me shed,
And wave thy silver pinions o'er my head !

Should e'er unhappy love my bosom pain,
From cruel parents, or relentless fair ;
O let me think it is not quite in vain
To sigh out sonnets to the midnight air !
Sweet Hope, ethereal balm upon me shed,
And wave thy silver pinions o'er my head.

In the long vista of the years to roll,
Let me not see our country's honour fade :
O let me see our land retain her soul,
Her pride, her freedom ; and not freedom's shade.
From thy bright eyes unusual brightness shed —
Beneath thy pinions canopy my head !

Let me not see the patriot's high bequest,
Great Liberty ! how great in plain attire !
With the base purple of a court oppress'd,
Bowling her head, and ready to expire :
But let me see thee stoop from heaven on wings
That fill the skies with silver glitterings !

And as, in sparkling majesty, a star
Gilds the bright summit of some gloomy cloud

Brightening the half-veil'd face of heaven afar :
 So, when dark thoughts my boding spirit shroud,
 Sweet Hope, celestial influence round me shed,
 Waving thy silver pinions o'er my head.

ODE TO APOLLO

IN thy western halls of gold
 When thou sittest in thy state,
 Bards, that erst sublimely told
 Heroic deeds, and sang of fate,
 With fervour seize their adamantyne lyres,
 Whose chords are solid rays, and twinkle radiant fires.

Here Homer with his nervous arms
 Strikes the twanging harp of war,
 And even the western splendor warms,
 While the trumpets sound afar :
 But, what creates the most intense surprise,
 His soul looks out through renovated eyes.

Then, through thy Temple wide, melodious swells
 The sweet majestic tone of Maro's lyre :
 The soul delighted on each accent dwells, —
 Enraptur'd dwells, — not daring to respire,
 The while he tells of grief around a funeral pyre.

'T is awful silence then again ;
 Expectant stand the spheres ;
 Breathless the laurell'd peers,
 Nor move, till ends the lofty strain,
 Nor move till Milton's tuneful thunders cease,
 And leave once more the ravish'd heavens in peace.

Thou biddest Shakspeare wave his hand,
 And quickly forward spring

The Passions — a terrific band —
 And each vibrates the string
 That with its tyrant temper best accords,
 While from their Master's lips pour forth the inspiring words.

A silver trumpet Spenser blows,
 And, as its martial notes to silence flee,
 From a virgin chorus flows
 A hymn in praise of spotless Chastity.
 'T is still! Wild warblings from the Æolian lyre
 Enchantment softly breathe, and tremblingly expire.

Next thy Tasso's ardent numbers
 Float along the pleasèd air,
 Calling youth from idle slumbers,
 Rousing them from Pleasure's lair: —
 Then o'er the strings his fingers gently move,
 And melt the soul to pity and to love.

But when Thou joinest with the Nine,
 And all the powers of song combine,
 We listen here on earth:
 The dying tones that fill the air,
 And charm the ear of evening fair,
 From thee, Great God of Bards, receive their heavenly birth.

HYMN TO APOLLO

GOD of the golden bow,
 And of the golden lyre,
 And of the golden hair,
 And of the golden fire,
 Charioteer
 Of the patient year,
 Where — where slept thine ire,

When like a blank idiot I put on thy wreath,
 Thy laurel, thy glory,
 The light of thy story,
 Or was I a worm — too low crawling, for death ?
 O Delphic Apollo !

The Thunderer grasp'd and grasp'd,
 The Thunderer frown'd and frown'd ;
 The eagle's feathery mane
 For wrath became stiffen'd — the sound
 Of breeding thunder
 Went drowsily under,
 Muttering to be unbound.
 O why didst thou pity, and for a worm
 Why touch thy soft lute
 Till the thunder was mute,
 Why was not I crush'd — such a pitiful germ ?
 O Delphic Apollo !

The Pleiades were up,
 Watching the silent air ;
 The seeds and roots in the Earth
 Were swelling for summer fare ;
 The Ocean, its neighbour,
 Was at its old labour,
 When, who — who did dare
 To tie, like a madman, thy plant round his brow,
 And grin and look proudly,
 And blaspheme so loudly,
 And live for that honour, to stoop to thee now ?
 O Delphic Apollo ?

TO A YOUNG LADY WHO SENT ME A
 LAUREL CROWN

FRESH morning gusts have blown away all fear
 From my glad bosom, — now from gloominess

I mount for ever — not an atom less
 Than the proud laurel shall content my bier.
 No ! by the eternal stars ! or why sit here
 In the Sun's eye, and 'gainst my temples press
 Apollo's very leaves, woven to bless
 By thy white fingers and thy spirit clear.
 Lo ! who dares say, 'Do this ?' Who dares call down
 My will from its high purpose ? Who say,
 'Stand,'
 Or 'Go ?' This mighty moment I would frown
 On abject Cæsars — not the stoutest band
 Of mailèd heroes should tear off my crown :
 Yet would I kneel and kiss thy gentle hand !

SONNET

How many bards gild the lapses of time !
 A few of them have ever been the food
 Of my delighted fancy, — I could brood
 Over their beauties, earthly, or 'sublime :
 And often, when I sit me down to rhyme,
 These will in throngs before my mind intrude :
 But no confusion, no disturbance rude
 Do they occasion ; 't is a pleasing chime.
 So the unnumber'd sounds that evening store ;
 The songs of birds — the whisp'ring of the leaves —
 The voice of waters — the great bell that heaves
 With solemn sound, — and thousand others more,
 That distance of recognizance bereaves,
 Make pleasing music, and not wild uproar.

SONNET

KEEN, fitful gusts are whisp'ring here and there
 Among the bushes half leafless, and dry ;

The stars look very cold about the sky,
 And I have many miles on foot to fare.
 Yet feel I little of the cool bleak air,
     Or of the dead leaves rustling drearily,
     Or of those silver lamps that burn on high,
 Or of the distance from home's pleasant lair :
 For I am brimful of the friendliness
     That in a little cottage I have found ;
 Of fair-hair'd Milton's eloquent distress,
     And all his love for gentle Lycid drown'd ;
 Of lovely Laura in her light green dress,
     And faithful Petrarch gloriously crown'd.

SPENSERIAN STANZA

WRITTEN AT THE CLOSE OF CANTO II. BOOK V.
 OF 'THE FAERIE QUEENE'

IN after-time, a sage of mickle lore
 Yclep'd Typographus, the Giant took,
 And did refit his limbs as heretofore,
 And made him read in many a learned book,
 And into many a lively legend look ;
 Thereby in goodly themes so training him,
 That all his brutishness he quite forsook,
 When, meeting Artegall and Talus grim,
 The one he struck stone-blind, the other's eyes wox
     dim.

ON LEAVING SOME FRIENDS AT AN EARLY HOUR

GIVE me a golden pen, and let me lean
 On heap'd-up flowers, in regions clear and far ;
 Bring me a tablet whiter than a star,
 Or hand of hymning angel, when 't is seen

The silver strings of heavenly harp atween :
 And let there glide by many a pearly car,
 Pink robes, and wavy hair, and diamond jar,
 And half-discover'd wings, and glances keen.
 The while let music wander round my ears,
 And as it reaches each delicious ending,
 Let me write down a line of glorious tone,
 And full of many wonders of the spheres :
 For what a height my spirit is contending !
 'T is not content so soon to be alone.

ON FIRST LOOKING INTO CHAPMAN'S HOMER

MUCH have I travell'd in the realms of gold,
 And many goodly states and kingdoms seen ;
 Round many western islands have I been
 Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.
 Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
 That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne :
 Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
 Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold :
 Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
 When a new planet swims into his ken ;
 Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
 He star'd at the Pacific — and all his men
 Look'd at each other with a wild surmise —
 Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

EPISTLE TO GEORGE FELTON MATHEW

SWEET are the pleasures that to verse belong,
 And doubly sweet a brotherhood in song ;
 Nor can remembrance, Mathew ! bring to view
 A fate more pleasing, a delight more true
 Than that in which the brother Poets joy'd,
 Who, with combinèd powers, their wit employ'd

To raise a trophy to the drama's muses.
 The thought of this great partnership diffuses
 Over the genius-loving heart, a feeling
 Of all that's high, and great, and good, and healing.

Too partial friend! fain would I follow thee 11
 Past each horizon of fine poesy ;
 Fain would I echo back each pleasant note
 As o'er Sicilian seas, clear anthems float
 'Mong the light skimming gondolas far parted,
 Just when the sun his farewell beam has darted :
 But 't is impossible ; far different cares
 Beckon me sternly from soft 'Lydian airs,'
 And hold my faculties so long in thrall,
 That I am oft in doubt whether at all 20
 I shall again see Phœbus in the morning :
 Or flush'd Aurora in the roseate dawning !
 •Or a white Naiad in a rippling stream ;
 Or a rapt seraph in a moonlight beam ;
 Or again witness what with thee I've seen,
 The dew by fairy feet swept from the green,
 After a night of some quaint jubilee
 Which every elf and fay had come to see :
 When bright processions took their airy march
 Beneath the curvèd moon's triumphal arch. 30

But might I now each passing moment give
 To the coy Muse, with me she would not live
 In this dark city, nor would condescend
 'Mid contradictions her delights to lend.
 Should e'er the fine-eyed maid to me be kind,
 Ah ! surely it must be whene'er I find
 Some flowery spot, sequester'd, wild, romantic,
 That often must have seen a poet frantic ;
 Where oaks, that erst the Druid knew, are growing,
 And flowers, the glory of one day, are blowing ; 40
 Where the dark-leav'd laburnum's drooping clusters
 Reflect athwart the stream their yellow lustres,

And intertwined the cassia's arms unite,
 With its own drooping buds, but very white.
 Where on one side are covert branches hung,
 'Mong which the nightingales have always sung
 In leafy quiet : where to pry, aloof
 Atween the pillars of the sylvan roof,
 Would be to find where violet beds were nestling,
 And where the bee with cowslip bells was wrestling. 50

There must be too a ruin dark and gloomy,
 To say ' Joy not too much in all that's bloomy.'

Yet this is vain — O Mathew, lend thy aid
 To find a place where I may greet the maid —
 Where we may soft humanity put on,
 And sit, and rhyme and think on Chatterton ;
 And that warm-hearted Shakspeare sent to meet him
 Four laurell'd spirits, heavenward to entreat him.
 With reverence would we speak of all the sages
 Who have left streaks of light athwart their ages : 60
 And thou shouldst moralize on Milton's blindness,
 And mourn the fearful dearth of human kindness
 To those who strove with the bright golden wing
 Of genius, to flap away each sting
 Thrown by the pitiless world. We next could tell
 Of those who in the cause of freedom fell ;
 Of our own Alfred, of Helvetian Tell ;
 Of him whose name to ev'ry heart's a solace,
 High-minded and unbending William Wallace.
 While to the rugged north our musing turns, 70
 We well might drop a tear for him, and Burns.

Felton ! without incitements such as these,
 How vain for me the niggard Muse to tease :
 For thee, she will thy every dwelling grace,
 And make ' a sunshine in a shady place :'
 For thou wast once a flow'ret blooming wild,
 Close to the source, bright, pure, and undefil'd,

Whence gush the streams of song : In happy hour
 Came chaste Diana from her shady bower,
 Just as the sun was from the east uprising ;                   80
 And, as for him some gift she was devising,
 Beheld thee, pluck'd thee, cast thee in the stream
 To meet her glorious brother's greeting beam.
 I marvel much that thou hast never told
 How, from a flower, into a fish of gold
 Apollo chang'd thee : how thou next didst seem
 A black-ey'd swan upon the widening stream ;
 And when thou first didst in that mirror trace
 The placid features of a human face :
 That thou hast never told thy travels strange,                   90
 And all the wonders of the mazy range
 O'er pebbly crystal, and o'er golden sands ;
 Kissing thy daily food from Naiads' pearly hands.

TO —

HADST thou liv'd in days of old,
 O what wonders had been told
 Of thy lively countenance,
 And thy humid eyes that dance
 In the midst of their own brightness ;
 In the very fane of lightness.
 Over which thine eyebrows, leaning,
 Picture out each lovely meaning :
 In a dainty bend they lie,
 Like to streaks across the sky,                                   10
 Or the feathers from a crow,
 Fallen on a bed of snow.
 Of thy dark hair, that extends
 Into many graceful bends :
 As the leaves of Hellebore
 Turn to whence they sprung before.
 And behind each ample curl
 Peeps the richness of a pearl.

Downward too flows many a tress
 With a glossy waviness ; 20
 Full, and round like globes that rise
 From the censer to the skies
 Through sunny air. Add, too, the sweetness
 Of thy honied voice ; the neatness
 Of thine ankle lightly turn'd :
 With those beauties scarce discern'd,
 Kept with such sweet privacy,
 That they seldom meet the eye
 Of the little loves that fly
 Round about with eager pry. 30
 Saving when, with freshening lave,
 Thou dipp'st them in the taintless wave ;
 Like twin water-lilies, born
 In the coolness of the morn.
 O, if thou hadst breathèd then,
 Now the Muses had been ten.
 Couldst thou wish for lineage higher
 Than twin-sister of Thalia ?
 At least for ever, evermore
 Will I call the Graces four. 40

Hadst thou liv'd when chivalry
 Lifted up her lance on high,
 Tell me what thou wouldst have been ?
 Ah ! I see the silver sheen
 Of thy broider'd, floating vest
 Cov'ring half thine ivory breast :
 Which, O heavens ! I should see,
 But that cruel destiny
 Has plac'd a golden cuirass there ;
 Keeping secret what is fair. 50
 Like sunbeams in a cloudlet nested
 Thy locks in knightly casque are rested :
 O'er which bend four milky plumes
 Like the gentle lily's blooms
 Springing from a costly vase.

See with what a stately pace
 Comes thine alabaster steed ;
 Servant of heroic deed !
 O'er his loins his trappings glow
 Like the northern lights on snow. 60
 Mount his back ! thy sword unsheath !
 Sign of the enchanter's death ;
 Bane of every wicked spell ;
 Silencer of dragon's yell.
 Alas ! thou this wilt never do :
 Thou art an enchantress too,
 And wilt surely never spill
 Blood of those whose eyes can kill.

SONNET

As from the darkening gloom a silver dove
 Upsoars, and darts into the eastern light,
 On pinions that nought moves but pure delight,
 So fled thy soul into the realms above,
 Regions of peace and everlasting love ;
 Where happy spirits, crown'd with circlets bright
 Of starry beam, and gloriously bedight,
 Taste the high joy none but the blest can prove.
 There thou or joinest the immortal quire
 In melodies that even heaven fair
 Fill with superior bliss, or, at desire,
 Of the omnipotent Father, cleav'st the air
 On holy message sent — What pleasure's higher ?
 Wherefore does any grief our joy impair ?

SONNET TO SOLITUDE

O SOLITUDE ! if I must with thee dwell,
 Let it not be among the jumbled heap
 Of murky buildings ; climb with me the steep, —
 Nature's observatory, — whence the dell,

Its flowery slopes, its river's crystal swell,
 May seem a span ; let me thy vigils keep
 'Mongst boughs pavilion'd, where the deer's swift leap
 Startles the wild bee from the foxglove bell.
 But though I'll gladly trace these scenes with thee,
 Yet the sweet converse of an innocent mind,
 Whose words are images of thoughts refin'd,
 Is my soul's pleasure ; and it sure must be
 Almost the highest bliss of human-kind,
 When to thy haunts two kindred spirits flee.

SONNET

To one who has been long in city pent,
 'T is very sweet to look into the fair
 And open face of heaven, — to breathe a prayer
 Full in the smile of the blue firmament.
 Who is more happy, when, with hearts content,
 Fatigued he sinks into some pleasant lair
 Of wavy grass, and reads a debonair
 And gentle tale of love and languishment ?
 Returning home at evening, with an ear
 Catching the notes of Philomel, — an eye
 Watching the sailing cloudlet's bright career,
 He mourns that day so soon has glided by :
 E'en like the passage of an angel's tear
 That falls through the clear ether silently.

TO A FRIEND WHO SENT ME SOME ROSES

As late I rambled in the happy fields,
 What time the skylark shakes the tremulous dew
 From his lush clover covert ; when anew
 Adventurous knights take up their dinted shields :

I saw the sweetest flower wild nature yields,
 A fresh-blown musk-rose; 't was the first that threw

Its sweets upon the summer: graceful it grew
 As is the wand that Queen Titania wields.

And, as I feasted on its fragraney,

I thought the garden-rose it far excell'd:

But when, O Wells! thy roses came to me,

My sense with their deliciousness was spell'd:

Soft voices had they, that with tender plea

Whisper'd of peace, and truth, and friendliness unquell'd.

SONNET

OH! how I love, on a fair summer's eve,
 When streams of light pour down the golden
 west,

And on the balmy zephyrs tranquil rest
 The silver clouds, far — far away to leave
 All meaner thoughts, and take a sweet reprieve

From little cares; to find, with easy quest,
 A fragrant wild, with Nature's beauty drest,
 And there into delight my soul deceive,

There warm my breast with patriotic lore,
 Musing on Milton's fate — on Sydney's bier —
 Till their stern forms before my mind arise:

Perhaps on wings of Poesy upsoar,
 Full often dropping a delicious tear,
 When some melodious sorrow spells mine eyes.

'I STOOD TIPTOE UPON A LITTLE HILL'

'Places of nestling green, for poets made.'

LEIGH HUNT, The Story of Rimini.

I stood tiptoe upon a little hill,
 The air was cooling, and so very still

That the sweet buds which with a modest pride
 Pull droopingly, in slanting curve aside,
 Their scanty-leaved and finely tapering stems,
 Had not yet lost those starry diadems
 Caught from the early sobbing of the morn.
 The clouds were pure and white as flocks new shorn,
 And fresh from the clear brook ; sweetly they slept
 On the blue fields of heaven, and then there crept 10
 A little noiseless noise among the leaves,
 Born of the very sigh that silence heaves ;
 For not the faintest motion could be seen
 Of all the shades that slanted o'er the green.
 There was wide wand'ring for the greediest eye
 To peer about upon variety ;
 Far round the horizon's crystal air to skim,
 And trace the dwindled edgings of its brim ;
 To picture out the quaint and curious bending
 Of a fresh woodland alley, never-ending ; 20
 Or by the bowery clefts, and leafy shelves,
 Guess where the jaunty streams refresh themselves.
 I gazed awhile, and felt as light and free
 As though the fanning wings of Mercury
 Had played upon my heels : I was light-hearted,
 And many pleasures to my vision started ;
 So I straightway began to pluck a posey
 Of luxuries bright, milky, soft, and rosy.

A bush of May flowers with the bees about them ;
 Ah, sure no tasteful nook could be without them ; 30
 And let a lush laburnum oversweep them,
 And let long grass grow round the roots to keep them
 Moist, cool, and green ; and shade the violets,
 That they may bind the moss in leafy nets.

A filbert hedge with wild briar overtwined,
 And clumps of woodbine taking the soft wind
 Upon their summer thrones ; there too should be
 The frequent chequer of a youngling tree,

That with a score of light green brethren shoots
 From the quaint mossiness of aged roots : 40
 Round which is heard a spring-head of clear waters
 Babbling so wildly of its lovely daughters
 The spreading blue-bells : it may haply mourn
 That such fair clusters should be rudely torn
 From their fresh beds, and scattered thoughtlessly
 By infant hands, left on the path to die.

Open afresh your round of starry folds,
 Ye ardent marigolds !
 Dry up the moisture from your golden lids,
 For great Apollo bids 50
 That in these days your praises should be sung
 On many harps, which he has lately strung ;
 And when again your dewiness he kisses,
 Tell him, I have you in my world of blisses :
 So haply when I rove in some far vale,
 His mighty voice may come upon the gale.

Here are sweet peas, on tiptoe for a flight :
 With wings of gentle flush o'er delicate white,
 And taper fingers catching at all things,
 To bind them all about with tiny rings. 60

Linger awhile upon some bending planks
 That lean against a streamlet's rushy banks,
 And watch intently Nature's gentle doings :
 They will be found softer than ring-dove's cooings.
 How silent comes the water round that bend ;
 Not the minutest whisper does it send
 To the o'erhanging shallows : blades of grass
 Slowly across the chequer'd shadows pass.
 Why, you might read two sonnets, ere they reach 70
 To where the hurrying freshnesses aye preach
 A natural sermon o'er their pebbly beds ;
 Where swarms of minnows show their little heads,
 Staying their wavy bodies 'gainst the streams,

To taste the luxury of sunny beams
Temper'd with coolness. How they ever wrestle
With their own sweet delight, and ever nestle
Their silver bellies on the pebbly sand.
If you but scantily hold out the hand,
That very instant not one will remain ;
But turn your eye, and they are there again. 80
The ripples seem right glad to reach those cresses,
And cool themselves among the em'rald tresses ;
The while they cool themselves, they freshness give,
And moisture, that the bowery green may live :
So keeping up an interchange of favours,
Like good men in the truth of their behaviours.
Sometimes goldfinches one by one will drop
From low-hung branches ; little space they stop ;
But sip, and twitter, and their feathers sleek ;
Then off at once, as in a wanton freak : 90
Or perhaps, to show their black and golden wings,
Pausing upon their yellow flutterings.
Were I in such a place, I sure should pray
That nought less sweet might call my thoughts
away,
Than the soft rustle of a maiden's gown
Fanning away the dandelion's down ;
Than the light music of her nimble toes
Patting against the sorrel as she goes.
How she would start, and blush, thus to be caught
Playing in all her innocence of thought. 100
O let me lead her gently o'er the brook,
Watch her half-smiling lips, and downward look ;
O let me for one moment touch her wrist ;
Let me one moment to her breathing list ;
And as she leaves me, may she often turn
Her fair eyes looking through her locks auburne.
What next ? A tuft of evening primroses,
O'er which the mind may hover till it dozes ;
O'er which it well might take a pleasant sleep,
But that 'tis ever startled by the leap 110

Of buds into ripe flowers ; or by the flitting
 Of diverse moths, that aye their rest are quitting ;
 Or by the moon lifting her silver rim
 Above a cloud, and with a gradual swim
 Coming into the blue with all her light.
 O Maker of sweet poets, dear delight
 Of this fair world, and all its gentle livers ;
 Spangler of clouds, halo of crystal rivers,
 Mingler with leaves, and dew and tumbling streams,
 Closer of lovely eyes to lovely dreams, 120
 Lover of loneliness, and wandering,
 Of upcast eye, and tender pondering !
 Thee must I praise above all other glories
 That smile us on to tell delightful stories.
 For what has made the sage or poet write
 But the fair paradise of Nature's light ?
 In the calm grandeur of a sober line,
 We see the waving of the mountain pine ;
 And when a tale is beautifully staid,
 We feel the safety of a hawthorn glade : 130
 When it is moving on luxurious wings,
 The soul is lost in pleasant smotherings :
 Fair dewy roses brush against our faces,
 And flowering laurels spring from diamond vases ;
 O'erhead we see the jasmine and sweet-briar,
 And bloomy grapes laughing from green attire ;
 While at our feet, the voice of crystal bubbles
 Charms us at once away from all our troubles :
 So that we feel uplifted from the world,
 Walking upon the white clouds wreath'd and curl'd.
 So felt he, who first told, how Psyche went 141
 On the smooth wind to realms of wonderment ;
 What Psyche felt, and Love, when their full lips
 First touch'd ; what amorous and fondling nips
 They gave each other's cheeks ; with all their sighs,
 And how they kist each other's tremulous eyes :
 The silver lamp, — the ravishment, — the wonder, —
 The darkness, — loneliness, — the fearful thunder ;

Their woes gone by, and both to heaven upflown,
 To bow for gratitude before Jove's throne. 150
 So did he feel, who pull'd the boughs aside,
 That we might look into a forest wide,
 To catch a glimpse of Fauns, and Dryades
 Coming with softest rustle through the trees ;
 And garlands woven of flowers wild, and sweet,
 Upheld on ivory wrists, or sporting feet :
 Telling us how fair, trembling Syrinx fled
 Arcadian Pan, with such a fearful dread.
 Poor Nymph, — poor Pan, — how he did weep to find
 Nought but a lovely sighing of the wind 160
 Along the reedy stream ; a half-heard strain,
 Full of sweet desolation — balmy pain.

What first inspired a bard of old to sing
 Narcissus pining o'er the untainted spring ?
 In some delicious ramble, he had found
 A little space, with boughs all woven round ;
 And in the midst of all, a clearer pool
 Than e'er reflected in its pleasant cool,
 The blue sky here, and there, serenely peeping
 Through tendril wreaths fantastically creeping. 170
 And on the bank a lonely flower he spied,
 A meek and forlorn flower, with naught of pride,
 Drooping its beauty o'er the watery clearness,
 To woo its own sad image into nearness :
 Deaf to light Zephyrus it would not move ;
 But still would seem to droop, to pine, to love.
 So while the Poet stood in this sweet spot,
 Some fainter gleamings o'er his fancy shot ;
 Nor was it long ere he had told the tale
 Of young Narcissus, and sad Echo's bale. 180

Where had he been, from whose warm head out-flew
 That sweetest of all songs, that ever new,

That aye refreshing, pure deliciousness,
 Coming ever to bless
 The wanderer by moonlight ? to him bringing Shapes from the invisible world, unearthly singing
 From out the middle air, from flowery nests,
 And from the pillowy silkiness that rests
 Full in the speculation of the stars.
 Ah ! surely he had burst our mortal bars ;                   190
 Into some wond'rous region he had gone,
 To search for thee, divine Endymion !

He was a Poet, sure a lover too,
 Who stood on Latmus' top, what time there blew
 Soft breezes from the myrtle vale below ;
 And brought in faintness solemn, sweet, and slow
 A hymn from Dian's temple ; while upswelling,
 The incense went to her own starry dwelling.
 But though her face was clear as infant's eyes,
 Though she stood smiling o'er the sacrifice,                   200
 The Poet wept at her so piteous fate,
 Wept that such beauty should be desolate :
 So in fine wrath some golden sounds he won,
 And gave meek Cynthia her Endymion.

Queen of the wide air ; thou most lovely queen
 Of all the brightness that mine eyes have seen !
 As thou exceedest all things in thy shine,
 So every tale, does this sweet tale of thine.
 O for three words of honey, that I might Tell but one wonder of thy bridal night!                   210

Where distant ships do seem to show their keels,
 Phœbus awhile delay'd his mighty wheels,
 And turn'd to smile upon thy bashful eyes,
 Ere he his unseen pomp would solemnize.
 The evening weather was so bright, and clear,
 That men of health were of unusual cheer ;

Stepping like Homer at the trumpet's call,
 Or young Apollo on the pedestal :
 And lovely women were as fair and warm,
 As Venus looking sideways in alarm. 220
 The breezes were ethereal, and pure,
 And crept through half closed lattices to cure
 The languid sick ; it cool'd their fever'd sleep,
 And soothed them into slumbers full and deep.
 Soon they awoke clear-eyed : nor burnt with thirsting,
 Nor with hot fingers, nor with temples bursting :
 And springing up, they met the wond'ring sight
 Of their dear friends, nigh foolish with delight ;
 Who feel their arms, and breasts, and kiss and stare,
 And on their placid foreheads part the hair. 230
 Young men and maidens at each other gaz'd,
 With hands held back, and motionless, amaz'd
 To see the brightness in each other's eyes ;
 And so they stood, fill'd with a sweet surprise,
 Until their tongues were loos'd in poesy.
 Therefore no lover did of anguish die :
 But the soft numbers, in that moment spoken,
 Made silken ties, that never may be broken.
 Cynthia ! I cannot tell the greater blisses
 That follow'd thine, and thy dear shepherd's kisses : 240
 Was there a Poet born ? — But now no more,
 My wand'ring spirit must no further soar.

SLEEP AND POETRY

As I lay in my bed slepe full unmete
 Was unto me, but why that I ne might Rest I ne wist, for there n' as erthly wight
 (As I suppose) had more of hertis ese
 Than I, for I n' ad sicknesse nor disese.

CHAUCER.

WHAT is more gentle than a wind in summer ?
 What is more soothing than the pretty hummer

That stays one moment in an open flower,
 And buzzes cheerily from bower to bower ?
 What is more tranquil than a musk-rose blowing
 In a green island, far from all men's knowing ?
 More healthful than the leafiness of dales ?
 More secret than a nest of nightingales ?
 More serene than Cordelia's countenance ?
 More full of visions than a high romance ?                    10
 What, but thee, Sleep ? Soft closer of our eyes !
 Low murmurer of tender lullabies !
 Light hoverer around our happy pillows !
 Wreather of poppy buds, and weeping willows !
 Silent entangler of a beauty's tresses !
 Most happy listener ! when the morning blesses
 Thee for enlivening all the cheerful eyes
 That glance so brightly at the new sunrise.

But what is higher beyond thought than thee ?
 Fresher than berries of a mountain-tree ?                    20
 More strange, more beautiful, more smooth, more regal,
 Than wings of swans, than doves, than dim-seen eagle ?
 What is it ? And to what shall I compare it ?
 It has a glory, and nought else can share it :
 The thought thereof is awful, sweet, and holy,
 Chasing away all worldliness and folly :
 Coming sometimes like fearful claps of thunder,
 Or the low rumblings earth's regions under ;
 And sometimes like a gentle whispering .
 Of all the secrets of some wond'rous thing                    30
 That breathes about us in the vacant air ;
 So that we look around with prying stare,
 Perhaps to see shapes of light, aerial limning ;
 And catch soft floatings from a faint-heard hymn-
     ing ;
 To see the laurel wreath, on high suspended,
 That is to crown our name when life is ended.

Sometimes it gives a glory to the voice,
 And from the heart up-springs, rejoice ! rejoice !
 Sounds which will reach the Framer of all things,
 And die away in ardent mutterings. 40

No one who once the glorious sun has seen,
 And all the clouds, and felt his bosom clean
 For his great Maker's presence, but must know
 What 't is I mean, and feel his being glow :
 Therefore no insult will I give his spirit,
 By telling what he sees from native merit.

O Poesy ! for thee I hold my pen,
 That am not yet a glorious denizen
 Of thy wide heaven — should I rather kneel
 Upon some mountain-top until I feel 50
 A growing splendour round about me hung,
 And echo back the voice of thine own tongue ?
 O Poesy ! for thee I grasp my pen,
 That am not yet a glorious denizen
 Of thy wide heaven ; yet, to my ardent prayer,
 Yield from thy sanctuary some clear air,
 Smoothed for intoxication by the breath
 Of flowering bays, that I may die a death
 Of luxury, and my young spirit follow
 The morning sunbeams to the great Apollo 60
 Like a fresh sacrifice ; or, if I can bear
 The o'erwhelming sweets, 't will bring to me the fair

Visions of all places : a bowery nook
 Will be elysium — an eternal book
 Whence I may copy many a lovely saying
 About the leaves, and flowers — about the playing
 Of nymphs in woods, and fountains ; and the shade
 Keeping a silence round a sleeping maid ;
 And many a verse from so strange influence
 That we must ever wonder how, and whence 70
 It came. Also imaginings will hover

Round my fire-side, and haply there discover
 Vistas of solemn beauty, where I'd wander
 In happy silence, like the clear Meander
 Through its lone vales ; and where I found a spot
 Of awfuller shade, or an enchanted grot,
 Or a green hill o'erspread with chequer'd dress
 Of flowers, and fearful from its loveliness,
 Write on my tablets all that was permitted,
 All that was for our human senses fitted. 80
 Then the events of this wide world I'd seize
 Like a strong giant, and my spirit tease
 Till at its shoulders it should proudly see
 Wings to find out an immortality.

Stop and consider ! life is but a day ;
 A fragile dewdrop on its perilous way
 From a tree's summit ; a poor Indian's sleep
 While his boat hastens to the monstrous steep
 Of Montmorenci. Why so sad a moan ?
 Life is the rose's hope while yet unblown ; 90
 The reading of an ever-changing tale ;
 The light uplifting of a maiden's veil ;
 A pigeon tumbling in clear summer air ;
 A laughing school-boy, without grief or care,
 Riding the springy branches of an elm.

O for ten years, that I may overwhelm
 Myself in poesy ; so I may do the deed
 That my own soul has to itself decreed.
 Then I will pass the countries that I see
 In long perspective, and continually 100
 Taste their pure fountains. First the realm I'll pass
 Of Flora, and old Pan: sleep in the grass,
 Feed upon apples red, and strawberries,
 And choose each pleasure that my fancy sees ;
 Catch the white-handed nymphs in shady places,
 To woo sweet kisses from averted faces, —

Play with their fingers, touch their shoulders white
 Into a pretty shrinking with a bite
 As hard as lips can make it: till agreed,
 A lovely tale of human life we'll read. 110
 And one will teach a tame dove how it best
 May fan the cool air gently o'er my rest;
 Another, bending o'er her nimble tread,
 Will set a green robe floating round her head,
 And still will dance with ever-varied ease,
 Smiling upon the flowers and the trees:
 Another will entice me on, and on
 Through almond blossoms and rich cinnamon;
 Till in the bosom of a leafy world
 We rest in silence, like two gems upcurl'd 120
 In the recesses of a pearly shell.

And can I ever bid these joys farewell?
 Yes, I must pass them for a nobler life,
 Where I may find the agonies, the strife
 Of human hearts: for lo! I see afar,
 O'ersailing the blue cragginess, a car
 And steeds with streamy manes — the charioteer
 Looks out upon the winds with glorious fear:
 And now the numerous tramlings quiver lightly
 Along a huge cloud's ridge; and now with sprightly 130
 Wheel downward come they into fresher skies,
 Tipt round with silver from the sun's bright eyes.
 Still downward with capacious whirl they glide;
 And now I see them on a green-hill's side
 In breezy rest among the nodding stalks.
 The charioteer with wond'rous gesture talks
 To the trees and mountains; and there soon appear
 Shapes of delight, of mystery, and fear,
 Passing along before a dusky space
 Made by some mighty oaks: as they would chase 140
 Some ever-fleeting music, on they sweep.
 Lo! how they murmur, laugh, and smile, and weep:

Some with upholden hand and mouth severe ;
 Some with their faces muffled to the ear
 Between their arms ; some, clear in youthful bloom,
 Go glad and smilingly athwart the gloom ;
 Some looking back, and some with upward gaze ;
 Yes, thousands in a thousand different ways
 Flit onward — now a lovely wreath of girls
 Dancing their sleek hair into tangled curls ;      150
 And now broad wings. Most awfully intent
 The driver of those steeds is forward bent,
 And seems to listen : O that I might know
 All that he writes with such a hurrying glow.

The visions all are fled — the car is fled
 Into the light of heaven, and in their stead
 A sense of real things comes doubly strong,
 And, like a muddy stream, would bear along
 My soul to nothingness : but I will strive
 Against all doubtings, and will keep alive      160
 The thought of that same chariot, and the strange
 Journey it went.

Is there so small a range
 In the present strength of manhood, that the high
 Imagination cannot freely fly
 As she was wont of old ? prepare her steeds,
 Paw up against the light, and do strange deeds
 Upon the clouds ? Has she not shewn us all ?
 From the clear space of ether, to the small Breath of new buds unfolding ? From the meaning
 Of Jove's large eyebrow, to the tender greening      170
 Of April meadows ? here her altar shone,
 E'en in this isle ; and who could paragon
 The fervid choir that lifted up a noise
 Of harmony, to where it aye will poise
 Its mighty self of convoluting sound,
 Huge as a planet, and like that roll round,

Eternally around a dizzy void ?
 Ay, in those days the Muses were nigh cloy'd
 With honours ; nor had any other care
 Than to sing out and soothe their wavy hair. 180

Could all this be forgotten ? Yes, a schism
 Nurtured by foppery and barbarism,
 Made great Apollo blush for this his land.
 Men were thought wise who could not understand
 His glories : with a puling infant's force
 They sway'd about upon a rocking-horse,
 And thought it Pegasus. Ah, dismal-soul'd !
 The winds of heaven blew, the ocean roll'd
 Its gathering waves — ye felt it not. The blue
 Bared its eternal bosom, and the dew 190
 Of summer nights collected still to make
 The morning precious : beauty was awake !
 Why were ye not awake ? But ye were dead
 To things ye knew not of, — were closely wed
 To musty laws lined out with wretched rule
 And compass vile : so that ye taught a school
 Of dolts to smooth, inlay, and clip, and fit,
 Till, like the certain wands of Jacob's wit,
 Their verses tallied. Easy was the task :
 A thousand handicraftsmen wore the mask 200
 Of Poesy. Ill-fated, impious race !
 That blasphem'd the bright Lyrist to his face,
 And did not know it, — no, they went about,
 Holding a poor, decrepid standard out,
 Mark'd with most flimsy mottoes, and in large
 The name of one Boileau !

O ye whose charge
 It is to hover round our pleasant hills !
 Whose congregated majesty so fills
 My boundly reverence, that I cannot trace
 Your hallowed names, in this unholy place, 210
 So near those common folk ; did not their shames

Affright you? Did our old lamenting Thames
 Delight you? did ye never cluster round
 Delicious Avon, with a mournful sound,
 And weep? Or did ye wholly bid adieu
 To regions where no more the laurel grew?
 Or did ye stay to give a welcoming
 To some lone spirits who could proudly sing
 Their youth away, and die? 'T was even so:
 But let me think away those times of woe: 220
 Now 't is a fairer season; ye have breathed
 Rich benedictions o'er us; ye have wreathed
 Fresh garlands: for sweet music has been heard
 In many places; — some has been upstirr'd
 From out its crystal dwelling in a lake,
 By a swan's ebon bill; from a thick brake,
 Nested and quiet in a valley mild,
 Bubbles a pipe; fine sounds are floating wild
 About the earth: happy are ye and glad.
 These things are, doubtless; yet in truth we've had 230

Strange thunders from the potency of song;
 Mingled indeed with what is sweet and strong
 From majesty: but in clear truth the themes
 Are ugly clubs, the Poets Polyphemes
 Disturbing the grand sea. A drainless shower
 Of light is Poesy; 't is the supreme of power;
 'T is might half slumb'ring on its own right arm.
 The very archings of her eyelids charm
 A thousand willing agents to obey,
 And still she governs with the mildest sway: 240
 But strength alone though of the Muses born
 Is like a fallen angel: trees uptorn,
 Darkness, and worms, and shrouds, and sepulchres
 Delight it; for it feeds upon the burrs
 And thorns of life; forgetting the great end
 Of Poesy, that it should be a friend
 To soothe the cares, and lift the thoughts of man.

Yet I rejoice : a myrtle fairer than
 E'er grew in Paphos, from the bitter weeds
 Lifts its sweet head into the air, and feeds 250
 A silent space with ever sprouting green.
 All tenderest birds there find a pleasant screen,
 Creep through the shade with jaunty fluttering,
 Nibble the little cupped flowers and sing.
 Then let us clear away the choking thorns
 From round its gentle stem ; let the young fawns,
 Yeaned in after-times, when we are flown,
 Find a fresh sward beneath it, overgrown
 With simple flowers: let there nothing be
 More boisterous than a lover's bended knee ; 260
 Nought more ungentle than the placid look
 Of one who leans upon a closed book ;
 Nought more untranquil than the grassy slopes
 Between two hills. All hail, delightful hopes !
 As she was wont, th' imagination
 Into most lovely labyrinths will be gone,
 And they shall be accounted poet kings
 Who simply tell the most heart-easing things.
 O may these joys be ripe before I die.

Will not some say that I presumptuously 270
 Have spoken ? that from hastening disgrace
 'T were better far to hide my foolish face ?
 That whining boyhood should with reverence bow
 Ere the dread thunderbolt could reach ? How !
 If I do hide myself, it sure shall be
 In the very fane, the light of Poesy :
 If I do fall, at least I will be laid
 Beneath the silence of a poplar shade ;
 And over me the grass shall be smooth shaven ;
 And there shall be a kind memorial graven. 280
 But off, Despondence ! miserable bane !
 They should not know thee, who athirst to gain
 A noble end, are thirsty every hour.
 What though I am not wealthy in the dower

Of spanning wisdom ; though I do not know
 The shiftings of the mighty winds that blow
 Hither and thither all the changing thoughts
 Of man : though no great minist'ring reason sorts
 Out the dark mysteries of human souls
 To clear conceiving : yet there ever rolls 290
 A vast idea before me, and I glean
 Therefrom my liberty ; thence too I've seen
 The end and aim of Poesy. 'T is clear
 As anything most true ; as that the year
 Is made of the four seasons — manifest
 As a large cross, some old cathedral's crest,
 Lifted to the white clouds. Therefore should I
 Be but the essence of deformity,
 A coward, did my very eyelids wink
 At speaking out what I have dared to think. 300
 Ah ! rather let me like a madman run
 Over some precipice ; let the hot sun
 Melt my Dædalian wings, and drive me down
 Convuls'd and headlong ! Stay ! an inward frown
 Of conscience bids me be more calm awhile.
 An ocean dim, sprinkled with many an isle,
 Spreads awfully before me. How much toil !
 How many days ! what desperate turmoil !
 Ere I can have explored its widenesses.
 Ah, what a task ! upon my bended knees, 310
 I could unsay those — no, impossible !
 Impossible !

For sweet relief I'll dwell
 On humbler thoughts, and let this strange assay
 Begun in gentleness die so away.
 E'en now all tumult from my bosom fades :
 I turn full-hearted to the friendly aids
 That smooth the path of honour ; brotherhood,
 And friendliness the nurse of mutual good.
 The hearty grasp that sends a pleasant sonnet
 Into the brain ere one can think upon it ; 320

The silence when some rhymes are coming out ;
 And when they 're come, the very pleasant rout :
 The message certain to be done to-morrow.
 'T is perhaps as well that it should be to borrow

Some precious book from out its snug retreat,
 To cluster round it when we next shall meet.
 Scarce can I scribble on ; for lovely airs
 Are fluttering round the room like doves in pairs ;
 Many delights of that glad day recalling,
 When first my senses caught their tender falling. 330
 And with these airs come forms of elegance
 Stooping their shoulders o'er a horse's prance,
 Careless, and grand — fingers soft and round
 Parting luxuriant curls ; — and the swift bound
 Of Bacchus from his chariot, when his eye
 Made Ariadne's cheek look blushingly.
 Thus I remember all the pleasant flow
 Of words at opening a portfolio.

Things such as these are ever harbingers
 To trains of peaceful images : the stirs 340
 Of a swan's neck unseen among the rushes :
 A linnet starting all about the bushes :
 A butterfly, with golden wings broad parted,
 Nestling a rose, convuls'd as though it smarted
 With over pleasure — many, many more,
 Might I indulge at large in all my store
 Of luxuries : yet I must not forget
 Sleep, quiet with his poppy coronet :
 For what there may be worthy in these rhymes
 I partly owe to him : and thus, the chimes 350
 Of friendly voices had just given place
 To as sweet a silence, when I 'gan retrace
 The pleasant day, upon a couch at ease.
 It was a poet's house who keeps the keys
 Of pleasure's temple. Round about were hung
 The glorious features of the bards who sung

In other ages — cold and sacred busts
 Smiled at each other. Happy he who trusts
 To clear Futurity his darling fame !
 Then there were fauns and satyrs taking aim 360
 At swelling apples with a frisky leap
 And reaching fingers, 'mid a luscious heap
 Of vine leaves. Then there rose to view a fane
 Of liny marble, and thereto a train
 Of nymphs approaching fairly o'er the sward :
 One, loveliest, holding her white hand toward
 The dazzling sunrise : two sisters sweet
 Bending their graceful figures till they meet
 Over the trippings of a little child :
 And some are hearing, eagerly, the wild 370
 Thrilling liquidity of dewy piping.
 See, in another picture, nymphs are wiping
 Cherishingly Diana's timorous limbs ; —
 A fold of lawny mantle dabbling swims
 At the bath's edge, and keeps a gentle motion
 With the subsiding crystal : as when ocean
 Heaves calmly its broad swelling smoothness o'er
 Its rocky marge, and balances once more
 The patient weeds ; that now unshent by foam
 Feel all about their undulating home. 380

Sappho's meek head was there half smiling down
 At nothing ; just as though the earnest frown
 Of over-thinking had that moment gone
 From off her brow, and left her all alone.

Great Alfred's too, with anxious, pitying eyes,
 As if he always listened to the sighs
 Of the goaded world ; and Kosciusko's, worn
 By horrid suffrance — mightily forlorn.

Petrarch, outstepping from the shady green,
 Starts at the sight of Laura ; nor can wean 390

EPISTLE TO MY BROTHER GEORGE 41

His eyes from her sweet face. Most happy they !
 For over them was seen a free display
 Of outspread wings, and from between them shone
 The face of Poesy : from off her throne
 She overlook'd things that I scarce could tell.
 The very sense of where I was might well
 Keep Sleep aloof : but more than that there came Thought after thought to nourish up the flame
 Within my breast ; so that the morning light
 Surprised me even from a sleepless night ; 400
 And up I rose refresh'd, and glad, and gay,
 Resolving to begin that very day
 These lines ; and howsoever they be done,
 I leave them as a father does his son.

EPISTLE TO MY BROTHER GEORGE

FULL many a dreary hour have I past,
 My brain bewilder'd, and my mind o'ercast
 With heaviness ; in seasons when I've thought
 No spherery strains by me could e'er be caught
 From the blue dome, though I to dimness gaze
 On the far depth where sheeted lightning plays ;
 Or, on the wavy grass outstretch'd supinely,
 Pry 'mong the stars, to strive to think divinely :
 That I should never hear Apollo's song,
 Though feathery clouds were floating all along 10
 The purple west, and, two bright streaks between,
 The golden lyre itself were dimly seen :
 That the still murmur of the honey bee
 Would never teach a rural song to me :
 That the bright glance from beauty's eyelids slant-
 ing
 Would never make a lay of mine enchanting,
 Or warm my breast with ardour to unfold
 Some tale of love and arms in time of old.

But there are times, when those that love the bay,
 Fly from all sorrowing far, far away ; 20
 A sudden glow comes on them, nought they see
 In water, earth, or air, but poesy.
 It has been said, dear George, and true I hold it,
 (For knightly Spenser to Libertas told it,
 That when a Poet is in such a trance,
 In air he sees white coursers paw and prance,
 Bestriden of gay knights, in gay apparel,
 Who at each other tilt in playful quarrel ;
 And what we, ignorantly, sheet-lightning call,
 Is the swift opening of their wide portal, 30
 When the bright warder blows his trumpet clear,
 Whose tones reach nought on earth but Poet's ear.

When these enchanted portals open wide,
 And through the light the horsemen swiftly glide,
 The Poet's eye can reach those golden halls,
 And view the glory of their festivals :
 Their ladies fair, that in the distance seem
 Fit for the silv'ring of a seraph's dream ;
 Their rich brimm'd goblets, that incessant run
 Like the bright spots that move about the sun ; 40
 And, when upheld, the wine from each bright jar
 Pours with the lustre of a falling star.
 Yet further off are dimly seen their bowers,
 Of which no mortal eye can reach the flowers ;
 And 't is right just, for well Apollo knows
 'T would make the Poet quarrel with the rose.
 All that's reveal'd from that far seat of blisses,
 Is, the clear fountains' interchanging kisses,
 As gracefully descending, light and thin,
 Like silver streaks across a dolphin's fin, 50
 When he upswimmeth from the coral caves,
 And sports with half his tail above the waves.

These wonders strange he sees, and many more,
 Whose head is pregnant with poetic lore.

Should he upon an evening ramble fare
 With forehead to the soothing breezes bare,
 Would he nought see but the dark, silent blue,
 With all its diamonds trembling through and through ?

Or the coy moon, when in the waviness
 Of whitest clouds she does her beauty dress, 60
 And staidly paces higher up, and higher,
 Like a sweet nun in holiday attire ?

Ah, yes ! much more would start into his sight —
 The revelries, and mysteries of night :
 And should I ever see them, I will tell you
 Such tales as needs must with amazement spell
 you.

These are the living pleasures of the bard :
 But richer far posterity's award.
 What does he murmur with his latest breath,
 While his proud eye looks through the film of death ? 70

'What though I leave this dull and earthly mould
 Yet shall my spirit lofty converse hold
 With after times.— The patriot shall feel
 My stern alarm, and unsheath his steel
 Or in the senate thunder out my number
 To startle princes from their easy slumber
 The sage will mingle with each moral theme
 My happy thoughts sententious ; he will teem
 With lofty periods when my verses fire him, 80
 And then I'll stoop from heaven to inspire him.
 Lays have I left of such a dear delight
 That maids will sing them on their bridal night.
 Gay villagers, upon a morn of May,
 When they have tired their gentle limbs with play,
 And form'd a snowy circle on the grass,
 And plac'd in midst of all that lovely lass
 Who chosen is their queen, — with her fine head
 Crownèd with flowers purple, white, and red :

For there the lily, and the musk-rose, sighing,
 Are emblems true of hapless lovers dying ; 90
 Between her breasts, that never yet felt trouble,
 A bunch of violets full blown, and double,
 Serenely sleep : — she from a casket takes
 A little book, — and then a joy awakes
 About each youthful heart, — with stifled cries,
 And rubbing of white hands, and sparkling eyes :
 For she's to read a tale of hopes and fears ;
 One that I foster'd in my youthful years :
 The pearls, that on each glist'ning circlet sleep,
 Gush ever and anon with silent creep, 100
 Lured by the innocent dimples. To sweet rest
 Shall the dear babe, upon its mother's breast,
 Be lull'd with songs of mine. Fair world, adieu !
 Thy dales and hills are fading from my view :
 Swiftly I mount, upon wide-spreading pinions,
 Far from the narrow bounds of thy dominions.
 Full joy I feel, while thus I cleave the air,
 That my soft verse will charm thy daughters fair,
 And warm thy sons !' Ah, my dear friend and Father, mother,
 Take heed to once, my mad ambition smother, 110
 And, when joys like these, sure I should be
 Your world dearer to society.
 But that's not true, I've felt relief from pain
 When some bright thought has darted through my brain :
 Through all that day I've felt a greater pleasure
 Than if I'd brought to light a hidden treasure.
 As to my sonnets, though none else should heed
 them,
 I feel delighted, still, that you should read them.
 Of late, too, I have had much calm enjoyment,
 Stretch'd on the grass at my best lov'd employment 120
 Of scribbling lines for you. These things I thought
 While, in my face, the freshest breeze I caught.

E'en now I'm pillow'd on a bed of flowers
 That crowns a lofty cliff, which proudly towers
 Above the ocean waves. The stalks and blades
 Chequer my tablet with their quivering shades.
 On one side is a field of drooping oats,
 Through which the poppies show their scarlet coats ;

So pert and useless, that they bring to mind
 The scarlet coats that pester human-kind. 130
 And on the other side, outspread, is seen Ocean's blue mantle, streak'd with purple, and green ;

Now 't is I see a canvass'd ship, and now
 Mark the bright silver curling round her prow.
 I see the lark down-dropping to his nest,
 And the broad-winged sea-gull never at rest ;
 For when no more he spreads his feathers free,
 His breast is dancing on the restless sea.
 Now I direct my eyes into the west,
 Which at this moment is in sunbeams drest : 140
 Why westward turn ? 'T was but to say adieu !
 'T was but to kiss my hand, dear George, to you !

TO MY BROTHER GEORGE

MANY the wonders I this day have seen :
 The sun, when first he kist away the tears
 That fill'd the eyes of morn ; — the laurell'd peers
 Who from the feathery gold of evening lean ; —
 The ocean with its vastness, its blue green,
 Its ships, its rocks, its caves, its hopes, its fears, —
 Its voice mysterious, which whoso hears
 Must think on what will be, and what has been.
 E'en now, dear George, while this for you I write,
 Cynthia is from her silken curtains peeping
 So scanty, that it seems her bridal night,
 And she her half-discover'd revels keeping.

But what, without the social thought of thee,
Would be the wonders of the sky and sea ?

TO —

HAD I a man's fair form, then might my sighs
Be echoed swiftly through that ivory shell
Thine ear, and find thy gentle heart ; so well
Would passion arm me for the enterprise :
But ah ! I am no knight whose foeman dies ;
No cuirass glistens on my bosom's swell ;
I am no happy shepherd of the dell
Whose lips have trembled with a maiden's eyes.
Yet must I dote upon thee, — call thee sweet,
Sweeter by far than Hybla's honied roses
When steep'd in dew rich to intoxication.
Ah ! I will taste that dew, for me 't is meet,
And when the moon her pallid face discloses,
I'll gather some by spells, and incantation.

SPECIMEN OF AN INDUCTION TO A POEM

Lo ! I must tell a tale of chivalry ;
For large white plumes are dancing in mine eye.
Not like the formal crest of latter days :
But bending in a thousand graceful ways ;
So graceful, that it seems no mortal hand,
Or e'en the touch of Archimago's wand,
Could charm them into such an attitude.
We must think rather, that in playful mood,
Some mountain breeze had turned its chief delight,
To show this wonder of its gentle might. 10
Lo ! I must tell a tale of chivalry ;
For while I muse, the lance points slantingly

Athwart the morning air ; some lady sweet,
 Who cannot feel for cold her tender feet,
 From the worn top of some old battlement
 Hails it with tears, her stout defender sent :
 And from her own pure self no joy dissembling,
 Wraps round her ample robe with happy trembling.
 Sometimes, when the good Knight his rest would take,

It is reflected, clearly, in a lake, 20
 With the young ashen boughs, 'gainst which it rests,

And th' half-seen mossiness of linnets' nests.

Ah ! shall I ever tell its cruelty,

When the fire flashes from a warrior's eye,

And his tremendous hand is grasping it,

And his dark brow for very wrath is knit ?

Or when his spirit, with more calm intent,

Leaps to the honours of a tournament,

And makes the gazers round about the ring

Stare at the grandeur of the balancing ? 30

No, no ! this is far off : — then how shall I

Revive the dying tones of minstrelsy,

Which linger yet about long gothic arches,

In dark green ivy, and among wild larches ?

How sing the splendour of the revelries,

When butts of wine are drunk off to the lees ?

And that bright lance, against the fretted wall,

Beneath the shade of stately banneral,

Is slung with shining cuirass, sword, and shield ?

Where ye may see a spur in bloody field. 40

Light-footed damsels move with gentle paces

Round the wide hall, and show their happy faces ;

Or stand in courtly talk by fives and sevens :

Like those fair stars that twinkle in the heavens.

Yet must I tell a tale of chivalry :

Or wherefore comes that knight so proudly by ?

Wherefore more proudly does the gentle knight

Rein in the swelling of his ample might ?

Spenser ! thy brows are archèd, open, kind,
 And come like a clear sunrise to my mind ; 50
 And always does my heart with pleasure dance,
 When I think on thy noble countenance ;
 Where never yet was ought more earthly seen
 Than the pure freshness of thy laurels green.
 Therefore, great bard, I not so fearfully
 Call on thy gentle spirit to hover nigh
 My daring steps : or if thy tender care,
 Thus startled unaware,
 Be jealous that the foot of other wight
 Should madly follow that bright path of light 60
 Trac'd by thy lov'd Libertas ; he will speak,
 And tell thee that my prayer is very meek ;
 That I will follow with due reverence,
 And start with awe at mine own strange pretence.
 Him thou wilt hear ; so I will rest in hope
 To see wide plains, fair trees, and lawny slope :
 The morn, the eve, the light, the shade, the flowers ;
 Clear streams, smooth lakes, and overlooking towers.

CALIDORE

A FRAGMENT

YOUNG Calidore is paddling o'er the lake ;
 His healthful spirit eager and awake
 To feel the beauty of a silent eve,
 Which seem'd full loth this happy world to leave ;
 The light dwelt o'er the scene so lingeringly.
 He bares his forehead to the cool blue sky,
 And smiles at the far clearness all around,
 Until his heart is well nigh over wound
 And turns for calmness to the pleasant green
 Of easy slopes, and shadowy trees that lean 10
 So elegantly o'er the waters' brim
 And show their blossoms trim.

Scarce can his clear and nimble eyesight follow
 The freaks and dartings of the black-wing'd swallow,
 Delighting much, to see it half at rest,
 Dip so refreshingly its wings, and breast
 'Gainst the smooth surface, and to mark anon,
 The widening circles into nothing gone.

And now the sharp keel of his little boat
 Comes up with ripple, and with easy float, 20
 And glides into a bed of water-lilies :
 Broad-leav'd are they, and their white canopies
 Are upward turn'd to catch the heavens' dew.
 Near to a little island's point they grew ;
 Whence Calidore might have the goodliest view
 Of this sweet spot of earth. The bowery shore
 Went off in gentle windings to the hoar
 And light blue mountains : but no breathing man
 With a warm heart, and eye prepared to scan
 Nature's clear beauty, could pass lightly by 30
 Objects that look'd out so invitingly
 On either side. These, gentle Calidore
 Greeted, as he had known them long before.

The sidelong view of swelling leafiness,
 Which the glad setting sun in gold doth dress ;
 Whence, ever and anon, the jay outsprings,
 And scales upon the beauty of its wings.

The lonely turret, shatter'd, and outworn,
 Stands venerably proud ; too proud to mourn
 Its long lost grandeur : fir-trees grow around, 40
 Aye dropping their hard fruit upon the ground.

The little chapel, with the cross above,
 Upholding wreaths of ivy ; the white dove,
 That on the windows spreads his feathers light,
 And seems from purple clouds to wing its flight.

Green tufted islands casting their soft shades
 Across the lake ; sequester'd leafy glades,
 That through the dimness of their twilight show
 Large dock-leaves, spiral foxgloves, or the glow
 Of the cat's wild eyes, or the silvery stems 50
 Of delicate birch-trees, or long grass which hems
 A little brook. The youth had long been view-
 ing

These pleasant things, and heaven was bedewing
 The mountain flowers, when his glad senses caught
 A trumpet's silver voice. Ah! it was fraught
 With many joys for him: the warder's ken
 Had found white coursers prancing in the glen:
 Friends very dear to him he soon will see ;
 So pushes off his boat most eagerly,
 And soon upon the lake he skims along, 60
 Deaf to the nightingale's first under-song ;
 Nor minds he the white swans that dream so sweetly :
 His spirit flies before him so completely.

And now he turns a jutting point of land,
 Whence may be seen the castle gloomy, and grand :
 Nor will a bee buzz round two swelling peaches,
 Before the point of his light shallop reaches
 Those marble steps that through the water dip :
 Now over them he goes with hasty trip,
 And scarcely stays to ope the folding doors : 70
 Anon he leaps along the oaken floors
 Of halls and corridors.

Delicious sounds ! those little bright-eyed things
 That float about the air on azure wings,
 Had been less heartfelt by him than the clang
 Of clattering hoofs ; into the court he sprang,
 Just as two noble steeds, and palfreys twain,
 Were slanting out their necks with loosen'd rein ;

While from beneath the threat'ning portcullis
 They brought their happy burthens. What a kiss,
 What gentle squeeze he gave each lady's hand ! 81
 How tremblingly their delicate ankles spann'd !
 Into how sweet a trance his soul was gone,
 While whisperings of affection
 Made him delay to let their tender feet
 Come to the earth ; with an incline so sweet
 From their low palfreys o'er his neck they bent :
 And whether there were tears of languishment,
 Or that the evening dew had pearl'd their tresses,
 He feels a moisture on his cheek, and blesses 90
 With lips that tremble, and with glistening eye,
 All the soft luxury
 That nestled in his arms. A dimpled hand,
 Fair as some wonder out of fairy land,
 Hung from his shoulder like the drooping flowers
 Of whitest Cassia, fresh from summer showers :
 And this he fondled with his happy cheek,
 As if for joy he would no further seek ;
 When the kind voice of good Sir Clerimond
 Came to his ear, like something from beyond 100
 His present being : so he gently drew
 His warm arms, thrilling now with pulses new,
 From their sweet thrall, and forward gently bending,
 Thank'd Heaven that his joy was never ending ;
 While 'gainst his forehead he devoutly press'd
 A hand Heaven made to succour the distress'd ;
 A hand that from the world's bleak promontory
 Had lifted Calidore for deeds of glory.

Amid the pages, and the torches' glare,
 There stood a knight, patting the flowing hair 110
 Of his proud horse's mane : he was withal
 A man of elegance, and stature tall :
 So that the waving of his plumes would be
 High as the berries of a wild ash-tree,

Or as the wingèd cap of Mercury.
 His armour was so dexterously wrought
 In shape, that sure no living man had thought
 It hard, and heavy steel : but that indeed
 It was some glorious form, some splendid weed,
 In which a spirit new come from the skies 120
 Might live, and show itself to human eyes.
 'T is the far-fam'd, the brave Sir Gondibert,
 Said the good man to Calidore alert ;
 While the young warrior with a step of grace
 Came up, — a courtly smile upon his face,
 And mailèd hand held out, ready to greet
 The large-eyed wonder, and ambitious heat
 Of the aspiring boy ; who as he led
 Those smiling ladies, often turned his head
 To admire the visor arched so gracefully 130
 Over a knightly brow ; while they went by
 The lamps that from the high-roof'd hall were pen-dent,
 And gave the steel a shining quite transcendent.

Soon in a pleasant chamber they are seated ;
 The sweet-lipp'd ladies have already greeted
 All the green leaves that round the window clamber,
 To show their purple stars, and bells of amber.
 Sir Gondibert has doff'd his shining steel,
 Gladdening in the free, and airy feel
 Of a light mantle ; and while Clerimond 140
 Is looking round about him with a fond
 And placid eye, young Calidore is burning
 To hear of knightly deeds, and gallant spurning
 Of all unworthiness ; and how the strong of arm
 Kept off dismay, and terror, and alarm
 From lovely woman ; while brimful of this,
 He gave each damsel's hand so warm a kiss,
 And had such manly ardour in his eye,
 That each at other look'd half-staringly ;

And then their features started into smiles, 150
Sweet as blue heavens o'er enchanted isles.

Softly the breezes from the forest came,
Softly they blew aside the taper's flame ;
Clear was the song from Philomel's far bower ;
Grateful the incense from the lime-tree flower ;
Mysterious, wild, the far heard trumpet's tone ;
Lovely the moon in ether, all alone :
Sweet too the converse of these happy mortals,
As that of busy spirits when the portals
Are closing in the west ; or that soft humming 160
We hear around when Hesperus is coming.
Sweet be their sleep. . . .

EPISTLE TO CHARLES COWDEN
CLARKE

OFT have you seen a swan superbly frowning,
And with proud breast his own white shadow crowning ;
He slants his neck beneath the waters bright
So silently, it seems a beam of light
Come from the galaxy : anon he sports, —
With outspread wings the Naiad Zephyr courts,
Or ruffles all the surface of the lake
In striving from its crystal face to take
Some diamond water-drops, and them to treasure
In milky nest, and sip them off at leisure. 10
But not a moment can he there insure them,
Nor to such downy rest can he allure them ;
For down they rush as though they would be free,
And drop like hours into eternity.
Just like that bird am I in loss of time,
Whene'er I venture on the stream of rhyme ;
With shatter'd boat, oar snapt, and canvas rent,
I slowly sail, scarce knowing my intent ;

Still scooping up the water with my fingers,
In which a trembling diamond never lingers. 20

By this, friend Charles, you may full plainly see
Why I have never penn'd a line to thee:
Because my thoughts were never free, and clear,
And little fit to please a classic ear;
Because my wine was of too poor a savour
For one whose palate gladdens in the flavour
Of sparkling Helicon :— small good it were
To take him to a desert rude, and bare,
Who had on Baiæ's shore reclin'd at ease,
While Tasso's page was floating in a breeze 30
That gave soft music from Armida's bowers,
Mingled with fragrance from her rarest flowers :
Small good to one who had by Mulla's stream
Fondled the maidens with the breasts of cream ;
Who had beheld Belphebe in a brook,
And lovely Una in a leafy nook,
And Archimago leaning o'er his book :
Who had of all that 's sweet tasted, and seen,
From silv'ry ripple, up to beauty's queen ;
From the sequester'd haunts of gay Titania, 40
To the blue dwelling of divine Urania :
One, who of late had ta'en sweet forest walks
With him who elegantly chats and talks—
The wrong'd Libertas, — who has told you stories
Of laurel chaplets, and Apollo's glories ;
Of troops chivalrous prancing through a city,
And tearful ladies made for love, and pity :
With many else which I have never known.
Thus have I thought ; and days on days have flown
Slowly, or rapidly — unwilling still 50
For you to try my dull, unlearned quill.
Nor should I now, but that I 've known you long ;
That you first taught me all the sweets of song :

The grand, the sweet, the terse, the free, the fine :
 What swell'd with pathos, and what right divine :
 Spenserian vowels that elope with ease,
 And float along like birds o'er summer seas :
 Miltonian storms, and more, Miltonian tenderness :
 Michael in arms, and more, meek Eve's fair slender-
 ness.

Who read for me the sonnet swelling loudly 60
 Up to its climax, and then dying proudly ?
 Who found for me the grandeur of the ode,
 Growing, like Atlas, stronger from its load ?
 Who let me taste that more than cordial dram,
 The sharp, the rapier-pointed epigram ?
 Show'd me that epic was of all the king,
 Round, vast, and spanning all, like Saturn's ring ?
 You too upheld the veil from Clio's beauty,
 And pointed out the patriot's stern duty ;
 The might of Alfred, and the shaft of Tell ; 70
 The hand of Brutus, that so grandly fell
 Upon a tyrant's head. Ah! had I never seen,
 Or known your kindness, what might I have been ?
 What my enjoyments in my youthful years,
 Bereft of all that now my life endears ?
 And can I e'er these benefits forget ?
 And can I e'er repay the friendly debt ?
 No, doubly no ;— yet should these rhymings
 please,
 I shall roll on the grass with twofold ease ;
 For I have long time been my fancy feeding 80
 With hopes that you would one day think the reading
 Of my rough verses not an hour misspent ;
 Should it e'er be so, what a rich content !
 Some weeks have pass'd since last I saw the spires
 In lucent Thames reflected :— warm desires
 To see the sun o'er-peep the eastern dimness
 And morning shadows streaking into slimness,

Across the lawny fields, and pebbly water ;
 To mark the time as they grow broad, and shorter ;
 To feel the air that plays about the hills, 90
 And sips its freshness from the little rills ;
 To see high, golden corn wave in the light
 When Cynthia smiles upon a summer's night,
 And peers among the cloudlet's jet and white,
 As though she were reclining in a bed
 Of bean blossoms, in heaven freshly shed.
 No sooner had I stepp'd into these pleasures,
 Than I began to think of rhymes and measures ;
 The air that floated by me seem'd to say
 'Write ! thou wilt never have a better day.' 100
 And so I did. When many lines I'd written,
 Though with their grace I was not oversmitten,
 Yet, as my hand was warm, I thought I'd better
 Trust to my feelings, and write you a letter.
 Such an attempt required an inspiration
 Of a peculiar sort, — a consummation ; —
 Which, had I felt, these scribblings might have been

Verses from which the soul would never wean ;
 But many days have past since last my heart
 Was warm'd luxuriously by divine Mozart ; 110
 By Arne delighted, or by Handel madden'd ;
 Or by the song of Erin pierc'd and sadden'd :
 What time you were before the music sitting,
 And the rich notes to each sensation fitting.
 Since I have walk'd with you through shady lanes
 That freshly terminate in open plains,
 And revell'd in a chat that ceasèd not
 When at night-fall among your books we got :
 No, nor when supper came, nor after that, —
 Nor when reluctantly I took my hat ; 120
 No, nor till cordially you shook my hand
 Mid-way between our homes : — your accents bland
 Still sounded in my ears, when I no more
 Could hear your footsteps touch the grav'ly floor.

Sometimes I lost them, and then found again ;
 You changed the foot-path for the grassy plain.
 In those still moments I have wish'd you joys
 That well you know to honour : — ' Life's very toys
 With him,' said I, ' will take a pleasant charm ;
 It cannot be that ought will work him harm.' <sup>130</sup>
 These thoughts now come o'er me with all their might : —
 Again I shake your hand, — friend Charles, good night.

TO MY BROTHERS

SMALL, busy flames play through the fresh-laid coals,
 And their faint cracklings o'er our silence creep
 Like whispers of the household gods that keep
 A gentle empire o'er fraternal souls.
 And while, for rhymes, I search around the poles,
 Your eyes are fix'd, as in poetic sleep,
 Upon the lore so voluble and deep,
 That aye at fall of night our care condoles.
 This is your birth-day, Tom, and I rejoice
 That thus it passes smoothly, quietly :
 Many such eves of gently whisp'ring noise
 May we together pass, and calmly try
 What are this world's true joys, — ere the great Voice,
 From its fair face, shall bid our spirits fly.

ADDRESSED TO BENJAMIN ROBERT HAYDON

I

GREAT spirits now on earth are sojourning ;
 He of the cloud, the cataract, the lake,

Who on Helvellyn's summit, wide awake,
 Catches his freshness from Archangel's wing :
 He of the rose, the violet, the spring,
 The social smile, the chain for Freedom's sake :
 And lo ! — whose steadfastness would never take
 A meaner sound than Raphael's whispering.
 And other spirits there are standing apart
 Upon the forehead of the age to come ;
 These, these will give the world another heart,
 And other pulses. Hear ye not the hum
 Of mighty workings in the human mart ?
 Listen awhile ye nations, and be dumb.

II

HIGHMINDEDNESS, a jealousy for good,
 A loving-kindness for the great man's fame,
 Dwells here and there with people of no name,
 In noisome alley, and in pathless wood :
 And where we think the truth least understood,
 Oft may be found a ' singleness of aim,'
 That ought to frighten into hooded shame
 A money-mong'ring, pitiable brood.
 How glorious this affection for the cause
 Of steadfast genius, toiling gallantly !
 What when a stout unbending champion awes
 Envy, and Malice to their native sty ?
 Unnumber'd souls breathe out a still applause,
 Proud to behold him in his country's eye.

TO KOSCIUSKO

GOOD Kosciusko, thy great name alone
 Is a full harvest whence to reap high feeling ;
 It comes upon us like the glorious pealing
 Of the wide spheres — an everlasting tone.
 And now it tells me, that in worlds unknown,
 The names of heroes, burst from clouds concealing,

Are changed to harmonies, for ever stealing
Through cloudless blue, and round each silver throne.

It tells me too, that on a happy day,
When some good spirit walks upon the earth,
Thy name with Alfred's, and the great of yore,
Gently commingling, gives tremendous birth
To a loud hymn, that sounds far, far away
To where the great God lives for evermore.

TO G. A. W.

NYMPH of the downward smile and sidelong glance,
In what diviner moments of the day
Art thou most lovely? When gone far astray
Into the labyrinths of sweet utterance?
Or when serenely wand'ring in a trance
Of sober thought? Or when starting away,
With careless robe, to meet the morning ray,
Thou spar'st the flowers in thy mazy dance?
Haply 't is when thy ruby lips part sweetly,
And so remain, because thou listenest:
But thou to please wert nurtured so completely
That I can never tell what mood is best.
I shall as soon pronounce which Grace more neatly
Trips it before Apollo than the rest.

STANZAS

IN a drear-nighted December
Too happy, happy tree,
Thy branches ne'er remember
Their green felicity:
The north cannot undo them,
With a sleety whistle through them;
Nor frozen thawings glue them
From budding at the prime.

In a drear-nighted December,
 Too happy, happy brook,
 Thy bubbings ne'er remember
 Apollo's summer look ;
 But with a sweet forgetting,
 They stay their crystal fretting,
 Never, never petting
 About the frozen time.

Ah! would 't were so with many
 A gentle girl and boy!
 But were there ever any
 Writh'd not at passèd joy ?
 To know the change and feel it,
 When there is none to heal it,
 Nor numbèd sense to steal it,
 Was never said in rhyme.

WRITTEN IN DISGUST OF VULGAR SUPERSTITION

THE church bells toll a melancholy round,
 Calling the people to some other prayers,
 Some other gloominess, more dreadful cares,
 More hearkening to the sermon's horrid sound.
 Surely the mind of man is closely bound
 In some black spell ; seeing that each one tears
 Himself from fireside joys, and Lydian airs,
 And converse high of those with glory crown'd.
 Still, still they toll, and I should feel a damp —
 A chill as from a tomb, did I not know
 That they are dying like an outburnt lamp ;
 That 't is their sighing, wailing ere they go
 Into oblivion ; — that fresh flowers will grow,
 And many glories of immortal stamp.

SONNET

HAPPY is England! I could be content
 To see no other verdure than its own;
 To feel no other breezes than are blown
 Through its tall woods with high romances blent:
 Yet do I sometimes feel a languishment
 For skies Italian, and an inward groan
 To sit upon an Alp as on a throne,
 And half forget what world or worldling meant.
 Happy is England, sweet her artless daughters;
 Enough their simple loveliness for me,
 Enough their whitest arms in silence clinging:
 Yet do I often warmly burn to see
 Beauties of deeper glance, and hear their sing-
 ing,
 And float with them about the summer waters.

ON THE GRASSHOPPER AND CRICKET

THE poetry of earth is never dead:
 When all the birds are faint with the hot sun,
 And hide in cooling trees, a voice will run
 From hedge to hedge about the new-mown mead;
 That is the Grasshopper's — he takes the lead
 In summer luxury, — he has never done
 With his delights; for when tired out with fun,
 He rests at ease beneath some pleasant weed.
 The poetry of earth is ceasing never:
 On a lone winter evening, when the frost
 Has wrought a silence, from the stove there shrills
 The Cricket's song, in warmth increasing ever,
 And seems to one, in drowsiness half lost,
 The Grasshopper's among some grassy hills.

SONNET

AFTER dark vapours have oppress'd our plains
 For a long dreary season, comes a day
 Born of the gentle South, and clears away
 From the sick heavens all unseemly stains.
 The anxious month, relieved its pains,
 Takes as a long-lost right the feel of May ;
 The eyelids with the passing coolness play,
 Like rose leaves with the drip of summer rains.
 And calmest thoughts come round us ; as, of leaves
 Budding, — fruit ripening in stillness, — Autumn
 suns
 Smiling at eve upon the quiet sheaves, —
 Sweet Sappho's cheek, — a sleeping infant's breath, —
 The gradual sand that through an hour-glass runs, —
 A woodland rivulet, — a Poet's death.

WRITTEN ON THE BLANK SPACE AT
 THE END OF CHAUCER'S TALE OF
 'THE FLOURE AND THE LEFE'

THIS pleasant tale is like a little copse :
 The honied lines so freshly interlace,
 To keep the reader in so sweet a place,
 So that he here and there full-hearted stops ;
 And oftentimes he feels the dewy drops
 Come cool and suddenly against his face,
 And, by the wandering melody, may trace
 Which way the tender-legged linnet hops.
 Oh ! what a power has white simplicity !
 What mighty power has this gentle story !
 I, that do ever feel athirst for glory,
 Could at this moment be content to lie
 Meekly upon the grass, as those whose sobbings
 Were heard of none beside the mournful robins.

ON SEEING THE ELGIN MARBLES

My spirit is too weak — mortality
 Weighs heavily on me like unwilling sleep,
 And each imagin'd pinnacle and steep
 Of godlike hardship tells me I must die
 Like a sick Eagle looking at the sky.
 Yet 't is a gentle luxury to weep
 That I have not the cloudy winds to keep,
 Fresh for the opening of the morning's eye.
 Such dim-conceiv'd glories of the brain
 Bring round the heart an indescribable feud ;
 So do these wonders a most dizzy pain,
 That mingles Grecian grandeur with the rude
 Wasting of old Time — with a billowy main —
 A sun — a shadow of a magnitude.

TO HAYDON

(WITH THE PRECEDING SONNET)

HAYDON! forgive me that I cannot speak
 Definitively of these mighty things ;
 Forgive me, that I have not Eagle's wings —
 That what I want I know not where to seek :
 And think that I would not be over meek,
 In rolling out upfollow'd thunderings,
 Even to the steep of Heliconian springs,
 Were I of ample strength for such a freak —
 Think too, that all those numbers should be thine ;
 Whose else ? In this who touch thy vesture's hem ?
 For when men star'd at what was most divine
 With browless idiotism — o'erwise phlegm —
 Thou hadst beheld the Hesperean shine
 Of their star in the East, and gone to worship
 them.

TO LEIGH HUNT, ESQ.

[A DEDICATION]

GLORY and loveliness have pass'd away ;
 For if we wander out in early morn,
 No wreathèd incense do we see upborne
 Into the east, to meet the smiling day :
 No crowd of nymphs soft-voic'd and young, and
     gay,
 In woven baskets bringing ears of corn,
 Roses, and pinks, and violets, to adorn
 The shrine of Flora in her early May.
 But there are left delights as high as these,
     And I shall ever bless my destiny,
 That in a time, when under pleasant trees
     Pan is no longer sought, I feel a free,
 A leafy luxury, seeing I could please
     With these poor offerings, a man like thee.

ON THE SEA

It keeps eternal whisperings around
     Desolate shores, and with its mighty swell
     Gluts twice ten thousand caverns, till the spell
 Of Hecate leaves them their old shadowy sound.
 Often 'tis in such gentle temper found,
     That scarcely will the very smallest shell
     Be mov'd for days from where it sometime fell,
 When last the winds of Heaven were unbound.
 O ye ! who have your eyeballs vex'd and tir'd,
     Feast them upon the wideness of the Sea ;
     O ye ! whose ears are dinn'd with uproar rude,
     Or fed too much with cloying melody, —
     Sit ye near some old cavern's mouth, and brood
 Until ye start, as if the sea-nymphs quired !

LINES

UNFELT, unheard, unseen,
 I've left my little queen,
 Her languid arms in silver slumber lying :
 Ah! through their nestling touch,
 Who — who could tell how much
 There is for madness — cruel, or complying ?

Those faery lids how sleek !
 Those lips how moist ! — they speak,
 In ripest quiet, shadows of sweet sounds :
 Into my fancy's ear
 Melting a burden dear,
 How ' Love doth know no fulness, and no bounds.'

True ! — tender monitors !
 I bend unto your laws :
 This sweetest day for dalliance was born !
 So, without more ado,
 I'll feel my heaven anew,
 For all the blushing of the hasty morn.

ON —

THINK not of it, sweet one, so ; —
 Give it not a tear ;
 Sigh thou mayst, and bid it go
 Any — any where.

Do not look so sad, sweet one, —
 Sad and fadingly ;
 Shed one drop, then it is gone,
 Oh ! 't was born to die !

Still so pale ? then dearest weep ;
 Weep, I'll count the tears,

For each will I invent a bliss
 For thee in after years.

Brighter has it left thine eyes
 Than a sunny rill ;
 And thy whispering melodies
 Are more tender still.

Yet — as all things mourn awhile
 At fleeting blisses ;
 E'en let us too ; but be our dirge
 A dirge of kisses.

ON A PICTURE OF LEANDER

COME hither, all sweet maidens soberly,
 Down-looking eye, and with a chasten'd light
 Hid in the fringes of your eyelids white,
 And meekly let your fair hands joined be,
 As if so gentle that ye could not see,
 Untouch'd, a victim of your beauty bright,
 Sinking away to his young spirit's night,
 Sinking bewilder'd 'mid the dreary sea:
 'Tis young Leander toiling to his death ;
 Nigh swooning, he doth purse his weary lips
 For Hero's cheek, and smiles against her smile.
 O horrid dream ! see how his body dips
 Dead-heavy ; arms and shoulders gleam awhile:
 He's gone ; up bubbles all his amorous breath !

ON LEIGH HUNT'S POEM, 'THE STORY OF RIMINI'

WHO loves to peer up at the morning sun,
 With half-shut eyes and comfortable cheek,
 Let him, with this sweet tale, full often seek
 For meadows where the little rivers run ;

Who loves to linger with that brightest one
 Of Heaven — Hesperus — let him lowly speak
 These numbers to the night, and starlight meek,
 Or moon, if that her hunting be begun.
 He who knows these delights, and too is prone
 To moralize upon a smile or tear,
 Will find at once a region of his own,
 A bower for his spirit, and will steer
 To alleys, where the fir-tree drops its cone,
 Where robins hop, and fallen leaves are sear.

SONNET

WHEN I have fears that I may cease to be
 Before my pen has glean'd my teeming brain,
 Before high pilèd books, in charactry,
 Hold like rich garners the full-ripen'd grain ;
 When I behold, upon the night's starr'd face,
 Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance,
 And think that I may never live to trace
 Their shadows, with the magic hand of chance ;
 And when I feel, fair creature of an hour !
 That I shall never look upon thee more,
 Never have relish in the faery power
 Of unreflecting love ; — then on the shore
 Of the wide world I stand alone, and think
 Till Love and Fame to nothingness do sink.

ON SEEING A LOCK OF MILTON'S HAIR

CHIEF of organic numbers !
 Old Scholar of the Spheres !
 Thy spirit never slumbers,
 But rolls about our ears,
 For ever and for ever !
 O what a mad endeavour
 Worketh he,

Who to thy sacred and ennobled hearse
 Would offer a burnt sacrifice of verse
 And melody.

How heavenward thou soundest,
 Live Temple of sweet noise,
 And Discord unconfoundest,
 Giving Delight new joys,
 And Pleasure nobler pinions !
 O, where are thy dominions ?
 Lend thine ear

To a young Delian oath, — ay, by thy soul,
 By all that from thy mortal lips did roll,
 And by the kernel of thine earthly love,
 Beauty, in things on earth, and things above,
 I swear !

When every childish fashion
 Has vanish'd from my rhyme,
 Will I, grey-gone in passion,
 Leave to an after-time,
 Hymning and harmony
 Of thee, and of thy works, and of thy life ;
 But vain is now the burning and the strife,
 Pangs are in vain, until I grow high-rife
 With old Philosophy,
 And mad with glimpses of futurity !

For many years my offering must be hush'd ;
 When I do speak, I 'll think upon this hour,
 Because I feel my forehead hot and flush'd.
 Even at the simplest vassal of thy power, —
 A lock of thy bright hair —
 Sudden it came,
 And I was startled, when I caught thy name
 Coupled so unaware ;
 Yet, at the moment, temperate was my blood.
 I thought I had beheld it from the flood.

ON SITTING DOWN TO READ 'KING
LEAR' ONCE AGAIN

O GOLDEN-TONGUED Romance, with serene lute !
 Fair plumèd Syren, Queen of far away !
 Leave melodizing on this wintry day,
 Shut up thine olden pages, and be mute :
 Adieu ! for once again the fierce dispute,
 Betwixt damnation and impassion'd clay,
 ' Must I burn through ; once more humbly assay
 The bitter sweet of this Shakespearean fruit :
 Chief Poet ! and ye clouds of Albion,
 Begetters of our deep eternal theme !
 When through the old oak forest I am gone,
 Let me not wander in a barren dream,
 But when I am consumèd in the Fire,
 Give me new Phœnix-wings to fly at my desire.

LINES ON THE MERMAID TAVERN

SOULS of Poets dead and gone,
 What Elysium have ye known,
 Happy field or mossy cavern,
 Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
 Have ye tippled drink more fine
 Than mine host's Canary wine ?
 Or are fruits of Paradise
 Sweeter than those dainty pies
 Of venison ? O generous food !
 Drest as though bold Robin Hood
 Would, with his maid Marian,
 Sup and bowse from horn and can.

10

I have heard that on a day
 Mine host's sign-board flew away,

Nobody knew whither, till
 An astrologer's old quill
 To a sheepskin gave the story,
 Said he saw you in your glory,
 Underneath a new-old sign
 Sipping beverage divine,
 And pledging with contented smack
 The Mermaid in the Zodiac.

20

Souls of Poets dead and gone,
 What Elysium have ye known,
 Happy field or mossy cavern,
 Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern ?

ROBIN HOOD

TO A FRIEND

No! those days are gone away,
 And their hours are old and gray,
 And their minutes buried all
 Under the down-trodden pall
 Of the leaves of many years:
 Many times have Winter's shears,
 Frozen North, and chilling East,
 Sounded tempests to the feast
 Of the forest's whispering fleeces,
 Since men knew nor rent nor leases.

10

No, the bugle sounds no more,
 And the twanging bow no more ;
 Silent is the ivory shrill
 Past the heath and up the hill ;
 There is no mid-forest laugh,
 Where lone Echo gives the half
 To some wight, amaz'd to hear
 Jestings, deep in forest drear.

On the fairest time of June
You may go, with sun or moon, 20
Or the seven stars to light you,
Or the polar ray to right you ;
But you never may behold
Little John, or Robin bold ;
Never one, of all the clan,
Thrumming on an empty can
Some old hunting ditty, while
He doth his green way beguile
To fair hostess Merriment,
Down beside the pasture Trent ; 30
For he left the merry tale,
Messenger for spicy ale.

Gone, the merry morris din ;
Gone, the song of Gamelyn ;
Gone, the tough-belted outlaw
Idling in the ' grenè shawe ;'
All are gone away and past !
And if Robin should be cast
Sudden from his turfèd grave,
And if Marian should have 40
Once again her forest days,
She would weep, and he would craze :
He would swear, for all his oaks,
Fall'n beneath the dock-yard strokes,
Have rotted on the briny seas ;
She would weep that her wild bees
Sang not to her — strange ! that honey
Can't be got without hard money !

So it is ; yet let us sing
Honour to the old bow-string ! 50
Honour to the bugle horn !
Honour to the woods unshorn !
Honour to the Lincoln green !
Honour to the archer keen !

Honour to tight little John,
 And the horse he rode upon!
 Honour to bold Robin Hood,
 Sleeping in the underwood!
 Honour to Maid Marian,
 And to all the Sherwood clan!
 Though their days have hurried by,
 Let us two a burden try.

TO THE NILE

SON of the old moon-mountains African!
 Chief of the Pyramid and Crocodile!
 We call thee fruitful, and that very while
 A desert fills our seeing's inward span;
 Nurse of swart nations since the world began,
 Art thou so fruitful? or dost thou beguile
 Such men to honour thee, who, worn with toil,
 Rest for a space 'twixt Cairo and Decan?
 O may dark fancies err! They surely do;
 'T is ignorance that makes a barren waste
 Of all beyond itself. Thou dost bedew
 Green rushes like our rivers, and dost taste
 The pleasant sun-rise. Green isles hast thou too,
 And to the sea as happily dost haste.

TO SPENSER

SPENSER! a jealous honourer of thine,
 A forester deep in thy midmost trees,
 Did last eve ask my promise to refine
 Some English that might strive thine ear to please.
 But Elfin Poet, 't is impossible
 For an inhabitant of wintry earth
 To rise like Phœbus with a golden quill
 Fire-wing'd and make a morning in his mirth.

It is impossible to escape from toil
 O' the sudden and receive thy spiriting:
 The flower must drink the nature of the soil
 Before it can put forth its blossoming:
 Be with me in the summer days, and I
 Will for thine honour and his pleasure try.

SONG

WRITTEN ON A BLANK PAGE IN BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER'S WORKS, BETWEEN 'CUPID'S REVENGE'
 AND 'THE TWO NOBLE KINSMEN'

SPIRIT here that reignest!
 Spirit here that painest!
 Spirit here that burnest!
 Spirit here that mournest!
     Spirit, I bow
     My forehead low,
 Enshaded with thy pinions.
     Spirit, I look
     All passion-struck
 Into thy pale dominions.

Spirit here that laughest!
 Spirit here that quaffest!
 Spirit here that dancest!
 Noble soul that prancest!
     Spirit, with thee
     I join in the glee
 A-nudging the elbow of Momus.
     Spirit, I flush
     With a Bacchanal blush
 Just fresh from the Banquet of Comus.

FRAGMENT

Under the flag
Of each his faction, they to battle bring
Their embryo atoms.

MILTON.

WELCOME joy, and welcome sorrow,
Lethe's weed and Hermes' feather ;
Come to-day, and come to-morrow,
I do love you both together !
I love to mark sad faces in fair weather ;
And hear a merry laugh amid the thunder ;
Fair and foul I love together.
Meadows sweet where flames are under,
And a giggle at a wonder ;
Visage sage at pantomime ;
Funeral, and steeple-chime ;
Infant playing with a skull ;
Morning fair, and shipwreck'd hull ;
Nightshade with the woodbine kissing ;
Serpents in red roses hissing ;
Cleopatra regal-dress'd
With the aspic at her breast ;
Dancing music, music sad,
Both together, sane and mad ;
Muses bright, and muses pale ;
Sombre Saturn, Momus hale ;—
Laugh and sigh, and laugh again ;
Oh, the sweetness of the pain !
Muses bright and muses pale,
Bare your faces of the veil ;
Let me see ; and let me write
Of the day, and of the night —
Both together : — let me slake
All my thirst for sweet heart-ache !
Let my bower be of yew,
Interwreath'd with myrtles new :
Pines and lime-trees full in bloom,
And my couch a low grass-tomb.

WHAT THE THRUSH SAID

O THOU whose face hath felt the Winter's wind,
 Whose eye has seen the snow-clouds hung in mist,
 And the black elm tops 'mong the freezing stars,
 To thee the spring will be a harvest-time.
 O thou, whose only book has been the light
 Of supreme darkness which thou feddest on Night after night when Phœbus was away,
 To thee the Spring shall be a triple morn.
 O fret not after knowledge — I have none,
 And yet my song comes native with the warmth.
 O fret not after knowledge — I have none,
 And yet the Evening listens. He who saddens
 At thought of idleness cannot be idle,
 And he's awake who thinks himself asleep.

WRITTEN IN ANSWER TO A SONNET ENDING THUS : —

' Dark eyes are dearer far
 Than those that mock the hyacinthine bell.'

By J. H. REYNOLDS.

BLUE! 'T is the life of heaven, — the domain
 Of Cynthia, — the wide palace of the sun, —
 The tent of Hesperus, and all his train, —
 The bosomer of clouds, gold, gray, and dun.
 Blue! 'T is the life of waters — ocean
 And all its vassal streams, pools numberless,
 May rage, and foam, and fret, but never can
 Subside, if not to dark blue nativeness.
 Blue! Gentle cousin of the forest-green,
 Married to green in all the sweetest flowers, —
 Forget-me-not, — the blue bell, — and, that queen
 Of secrecy, the violet : what strange powers
 Hast thou, as a mere shadow ! But how great,
 When in an Eye thou art, alive with fate !

TO JOHN HAMILTON REYNOLDS

O THAT a week could be an age, and we Felt parting and warm meeting every week ;
 Then one poor year a thousand years would be,
 The flush of welcome ever on the cheek :
 So could we live long life in little space,
 So time itself would be annihilate,
 So a day's journey in oblivious haze
 To serve our joys would lengthen and dilate.
 O to arrive each Monday morn from Ind !
 To land each Tuesday from the rich Levant !
 In little time a host of joys to bind,
 And keep our souls in one eternal pant !
 This morn, my friend, and yester-evening taught
 Me how to harbor such a happy thought.

THE HUMAN SEASONS

FOUR Seasons fill the measure of the year ;
 There are four seasons in the mind of man :
 He has his lusty Spring, when fancy clear
 Takes in all beauty with an easy span :
 He has his Summer, when luxuriously
 Spring's honied cud of youthful thought he loves
 To ruminatè, and by such dreaming high
 Is nearest unto heaven : quiet coves
 His soul has in its Autumn, when his wings
 He furleth close ; contented so to look
 On mists in idleness — to let fair things
 Pass by unheeded as a threshold brook.
 He has his Winter too of pale misfeature,
 Or else he would forego his mortal nature.

PREFACE

KNOWING within myself the manner in which this Poem has been produced, it is not without a feeling of regret that I make it public.

What manner I mean, will be quite clear to the reader, who must soon perceive great inexperience, immaturity, and every error denoting a feverish attempt, rather than a deed accomplished. The two first books, and indeed the two last, I feel sensible are not of such completion as to warrant their passing the press; nor should they if I thought a year's castigation would do them any good; — it will not: the foundations are too sandy. It is just that this youngster should die away: a sad thought for me, if I had not some hope that while it is dwindling I may be plotting, and fitting myself for verses fit to live.

This may be speaking too presumptuously, and may deserve a punishment: but no feeling man will be forward to inflict it: he will leave me alone, with the conviction that there is not a fiercer hell than the failure in a great object. This is not written with the least atom of purpose to forestall criticisms of course, but from the desire I have to conciliate men who are competent to look, and who do look with a zealous eye, to the honour of English literature.

The imagination of a boy is healthy, and the mature imagination of a man is healthy ; but there is a space of life between, in which the soul is in a ferment, the character undecided, the way of life uncertain, the ambition thick-sighted : thence proceeds mawkishness, and all the thousand bitters which those men I speak of must necessarily taste in going over the following pages.

I hope I have not in too late a day touched the beautiful mythology of Greece, and dulled its brightness : for I wish to try once more, before I bid it farewell.

TEIGNMOUTH,
April 10, 1818.

BOOK I

A THING of beauty is a joy for ever:
Its loveliness increases ; it will never Pass into nothingness ; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breath-
ing.

Therefore, on every morrow, are we wreathing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth,
Spite of despondence, of the inhuman dearth
Of noble natures, of the gloomy days,
Of all the unhealthy and o'er-darken'd ways      10
Made for our searching : yes, in spite of all,
Some shape of beauty moves away the pall
From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
Trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon
For simple sheep ; and such are daffodils
With the green world they live in ; and clear rills
That for themselves a cooling covert make
'Gainst the hot season ; the mid-forest brake,

Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms :
And such too is the grandeur of the dooms 20
We have imagined for the mighty dead ;
All lovely tales that we have heard or read :
An endless fountain of immortal drink,
Pouring unto us from the heaven's brink.

Nor do we merely feel these essences
For one short hour ; no, even as the trees
That whisper round a temple become soon
Dear as the temple's self, so does the moon,
The passion poesy, glories infinite,
Haunt us till they become a cheering light 30
Unto our souls, and bound to us so fast,
That, whether there be shine, or gloom o'ercast,
They alway must be with us, or we die.

Therefore 't is with full happiness that I
Will trace the story of Endymion.
The very music of the name has gone
Into my being, and each pleasant scene
Is growing fresh before me as the green
Of our own valleys : so I will begin
Now while I cannot hear the city's din ; 40
Now while the early budders are just new,
And run in mazes of the youngest hue
About old forests ; while the willow trails
Its delicate amber ; and the dairy pails
Bring home increase of milk. And, as the year
Grows lush in juicy stalks, I 'll smoothly steer
My little boat, for many quiet hours,
With streams that deepen freshly into bowers.
Many and many a verse I hope to write,
Before the daisies, vermeil rimm'd and white, 50
Hide in deep herbage ; and ere yet the bees
Hum about globes of clover and sweet peas,
I must be near the middle of my story.
O may no wintry season, bare, and hoary,

See it half-finish'd : but let Autumn bold,
 With universal tinge of sober gold,
 Be all about me when I make an end.
 And now at once, adventuresome, I send
 My herald thought into a wilderness :
 There let its trumpet blow, and quickly dress 60
 My uncertain path with green, that I may speed
 Easily onward, thorough flowers and weed.

Upon the sides of Latmos was outspread
 A mighty forest : for the moist earth fed
 So plenteously all weed-hidden roots
 Into o'erhanging boughs, and precious fruits.
 And it had gloomy shades, sequestered deep,
 Where no man went ; and if from shepherd's keep
 A lamb stray'd far a-down those inmost glens,
 Never again saw he the happy pens 70
 Whither his brethren, bleating with content,
 Over the hills at every nightfall went.
 Among the shepherds, 't was believed ever,
 That not one fleecy lamb which thus did sever
 From the white flock, but pass'd unworrièd
 By angry wolf, or pard with prying head,
 Until it came to some unfooted plains
 Where fed the herds of Pan : aye great his gains
 Who thus one lamb did lose. Paths there were many,
 Winding through palmy fern, and rushes fenny, 80
 And ivy banks ; all leading pleasantly
 To a wide lawn, whence one could only see
 Stems thronging all around between the swell
 Of turf and slanting branches : who could tell
 The freshness of the space of heaven above,
 Edged round with dark tree-tops ? through which a dove
 Would often beat its wings, and often too
 A little cloud would move across the blue.

Full in the middle of this pleasantness
 There stood a marble altar, with a tress 90
 Of flowers budded newly ; and the dew
 Had taken fairy phantasies to strew
 Daisies upon the sacred sward last eve,
 And so the dawned light in pomp receive.
 For 't was the morn : Apollo's upward fire
 Made every eastern cloud a silvery pyre
 Of brightness so unsullied, that therein
 A melancholy spirit well might win
 Oblivion, and melt out his essence fine
 Into the winds : rain-scented eglantine 100
 Gave temperate sweets to that well-wooing sun ;
 The lark was lost in him ; cold springs had run
 To warm their chilliest bubbles in the grass ;
 Man's voice was on the mountains ; and the mass
 Of nature's lives and wonders pulsed tenfold,
 To feel this sun-rise and its glories old.

Now while the silent workings of the dawn
 Were busiest, into that self-same lawn
 All suddenly, with joyful cries, there sped
 A troop of little children garlanded ; 110
 Who gathering round the altar seem'd to pry
 Earnestly round as wishing to espy
 Some folk of holiday : nor had they waited
 For many moments, ere their ears were sated
 With a faint breath of music, which ev'n then
 Fill'd out its voice, and died away again.
 Within a little space again it gave
 Its airy swellings, with a gentle wave,
 To light-hung leaves, in smoothest echoes breaking Through copse-clad valleys, — ere their death, o'er-taking 120
 The surgy murmurs of the lonely sea.

And now, as deep into the wood as we Might mark a lynx's eye, there glimmer'd light
 Fair faces and a rush of garments white,

Plainer and plainer showing, till at last
 Into the widest alley they all past,
 Making directly for the woodland altar.
 O kindly muse ! let not my weak tongue falter
 In telling of this goodly company,
 Of their old piety, and of their glee : 130
 But let a portion of ethereal dew
 Fall on my head, and presently unmew
 My soul ; that I may dare, in wayfaring,
 To stammer where old Chaucer used to sing.

Leading the way, young damsels danced along,
 Bearing the burden of a shepherd song ;
 Each having a white wicker, overbrimm'd
 With April's tender younglings : next, well trimm'd,
 A crowd of shepherds with as sunburnt looks
 As may be read of in Arcadian books ; 140
 Such as sat listening round Apollo's pipe,
 When the great deity, for earth too ripe,
 Let his divinity o'erflowing die
 In music, through the vales of Thessaly :
 Some idly trail'd their sheep-hooks on the ground,
 And some kept up a shrilly mellow sound
 With ebon-tipped flutes : close after these,
 Now coming from beneath the forest trees,
 A venerable priest full soberly,
 Begirt with minist'ring looks : alway his eye 150
 Steadfast upon the matted turf he kept,
 And after him his sacred vestments swept.
 From his right hand there swung a vase, milk-
 white,
 Of mingled wine, out-sparkling generous light ;
 And in his left he held a basket full
 Of all sweet herbs that searching eye could cull :
 Wild thyme, and valley-lilies whiter still
 Than Leda's love, and cresses from the rill.
 His aged head, crowned with beechen wreath,
 Seem'd like a poll of ivy in the teeth 160

Of winter hoar. Then came another crowd
 Of shepherds, lifting in due time aloud
 Their share of the ditty. After them appear'd,
 Up-follow'd by a multitude that rear'd
 Their voices to the clouds, a fair-wrought car,
 Easily rolling so as scarce to mar
 The freedom of three steeds of dapple brown:
 Who stood therein did seem of great renown
 Among the throng. His youth was fully blown,
 Showing like Ganymede to manhood grown; 170
 And, for those simple times, his garments were
 A chieftain king's; beneath his breast, half bare,
 Was hung a silver bugle, and between
 His nervy knees there lay a boar-spear keen.
 A smile was on his countenance; he seem'd
 To common lookers-on, like one who dream'd
 Of idleness in groves Elysian:
 But there were some who feelingly could scan
 A lurking trouble in his nether lip,
 And see that oftentimes the reins would slip 180
 Through his forgotten hands: then would they sigh,
 And think of yellow leaves, of owlets' cry,
 Of logs piled solemnly. — Ah, well-a-day,
 Why should our young Endymion pine away!

Soon the assembly, in a circle ranged,
 Stood silent round the shrine: each look was changed
 To sudden veneration: women meek
 Beckon'd their sons to silence; while each cheek
 Of virgin bloom paled gently for slight fear.
 Endymion too, without a forest peer, 190
 Stood, wan, and pale, and with an awed face,
 Among his brothers of the mountain chase.
 In midst of all, the venerable priest
 Eyed them with joy from greatest to the least,
 And, after lifting up his aged hands,
 Thus spake he: 'Men of Latmos! shepherd bands!

Whose care it is to guard a thousand flocks:
 Whether descended from beneath the rocks
 That overtop your mountains; whether come
 From valleys where the pipe is never dumb; 200
 Or from your swelling downs, where sweet air stirs
 Blue harebells lightly, and where prickly furze
 Buds lavish gold; or ye, whose precious charge
 Nibble their fill at ocean's very marge,
 Whose mellow reeds are touch'd with sounds forlorn

By the dim echoes of old Triton's horn:
 Mothers and wives! who day by day prepare
 The scrip, with needments, for the mountain air;
 And all ye gentle girls who foster up
 Udderless lambs, and in a little cup 210
 Will put choice honey for a favour'd youth:
 Yea, every one attend! for in good truth
 Our vows are wanting to our great god Pan.
 Are not our lowing heifers sleeker than
 Night-swollen mushrooms? Are not our wide plains
 Speckled with countless fleeces? Have not rains
 Green'd over April's lap? No howling sad
 Sickens our fearful ewes; and we have had Great bounty from Endymion our lord.
 The earth is glad: the merry lark has pour'd 220
 His early song against yon breezy sky,
 That spreads so clear o'er our solemnity.'

Thus ending, on the shrine he heap'd a spire
 Of teeming sweets, enkindling sacred fire;
 Anon he stain'd the thick and spongy sod
 With wine, in honour of the shepherd-god.
 Now while the earth was drinking it, and while
 Bay leaves were crackling in the fragrant pile,
 And gummy frankincense was sparkling bright
 'Neath smothering parsley, and a hazy light 230
 Spread grayly eastward, thus a chorus sang:

‘ O thou, whose mighty palace roof doth hang
 From jagged trunks, and overshadoweth
 Eternal whispers, glooms, the birth, life, death,
 Of unseen flowers in heavy peacefulness;
 Who lov’st to see the hamadryads dress
 Their ruffled locks where meeting hazels darken;
 And through whole solemn hours dost sit, and hearken

The dreary melody of bedded reeds—
 In desolate places, where dank moisture breeds 240
 The pipy hemlock to strange overgrowth;
 Bethinking thee, how melancholy loth
 Thou wast to lose fair Syrinx — do thou now,
 By thy love’s milky brow!
 By all the trembling mazes that she ran,
 Hear us, great Pan!

‘ O thou, for whose soul-soothing quiet, turtles
 Passion their voices cooingly ’mong myrtles,
 What time thou wanderest at eventide
 Through sunny meadows, that outskirt the side 250
 Of thine enmossed realms: O thou, to whom
 Broad-leaved fig-trees even now foredoom
 Their ripen’d fruitage; yellow-girted bees
 Their golden honeycombs; our village leas
 Their fairest blossom’d beans and popped corn;
 The chuckling linnet its five young unborn,
 To sing for thee; low-creeping strawberries
 Their summer coolness; pent-up butterflies
 Their freckled wings; yea, the fresh-budding year
 All its completions — be quickly near, 260
 By every wind that nods the mountain pine,
 O forester divine!

‘ Thou, to whom every faun and satyr flies
 For willing service; whether to surprise
 The squatted hare while in half-sleeping fit;
 Or upward ragged precipices flit

To save poor lambkins from the eagle's maw ;
 Or by mysterious enticement draw
 Bewilder'd shepherds to their path again ;
 Or to tread breathless round the frothy main, 270
 And gather up all fancifullest shells
 For thee to tumble into Naiads' cells,
 And, being hidden, laugh at their out-peeping ;
 Or to delight thee with fantastic leaping,
 The while they pelt each other on the crown
 With silvery oak-apples, and fir-cones brown —
 By all the echoes that about thee ring,
 Hear us, O satyr king !

'O Harkener to the loud-clapping shears,
 While ever and anon to his shorn peers 280
 A ram goes bleating : Winder of the horn,
 When snouted wild-boars routing tender corn
 Anger our huntsman : Breather round our farms,
 To keep off mildews, and all weather harms :
 Strange ministrant of undescribed sounds,
 That come a-swooning over hollow grounds,
 And wither drearily on barren moors :
 Dread opener of the mysterious doors
 Leading to universal knowledge — see,
 Great son of Dryope, 290
 The many that are come to pay their vows
 With leaves about their brows !

'Be still the unimaginable lodge
 For solitary thinkings ; such as dodge
 Conception to the very bourne of heaven,
 Then leave the naked brain : be still the leaven,
 That spreading in this dull and clodded earth
 Gives it a touch ethereal — a new birth :
 Be still a symbol of immensity ;
 A firmament reflected in a sea ; 300
 An element filling the space between ;
 An unknown — but no more : we humbly screen

With uplift hands our foreheads, lowly bending,
 And giving out a shout most heaven-rending,
 Conjure thee to receive our humble Pæan,
 Upon thy Mount Lycean!'

Even while they brought the burden to a close,
 A shout from the whole multitude arose,
 That linger'd in the air like dying rolls
 Of abrupt thunder, when Ionian shoals 310
 Of dolphins bob their noses through the brine.
 Meantime, on shady levels, mossy fine,
 Young companies nimbly began dancing
 To the swift treble pipe, and humming string.
 Aye, those fair living forms swam heavenly
 To tunes forgotten — out of memory :
 Fair creatures! whose young children's children bred
 Thermopylæ its heroes — not yet dead,
 But in old marbles ever beautiful.
 High genitors, unconscious did they cull 320
 Time's sweet first-fruits — they danced to weariness,
 And then in quiet circles did they press
 The hillock turf, and caught the latter end
 Of some strange history, potent to send
 A young mind from its bodily tenement.
 Or they might watch the quoit-pitchers, intent
 On either side ; pitying the sad death
 Of Hyacinthus, when the cruel breath
 Of Zephyr slew him, — Zephyr penitent,
 Who now, ere Phœbus mounts the firmament, 330
 Fondles the flower amid the sobbing rain.
 The archers too, upon a wider plain,
 Beside the feathery whizzing of the shaft,
 And the dull twanging bowstring, and the raft
 Branch down sweeping from a tall ash top
 Call'd up a thousand thoughts to envelope
 Those who would watch. Perhaps, the trembling knee

And frantic gape of lonely Niobe,
 Poor, lonely Niobe! when her lovely young
 Were dead and gone, and her caressing tongue 340
 Lay a lost thing upon her paly lip,
 And very, very deadliness did nip
 Her motherly cheeks. Aroused from this sad mood

By one, who at a distance loud halloo'd,
 Uplifting his strong bow into the air,
 Many might after brighter visions stare :
 After the Argonauts, in blind amaze
 Tossing about on Neptune's restless ways,
 Until, from the horizon's vaulted side,
 There shot a golden splendour far and wide, 350
 Spangling those million poutings of the brine
 With quivering ore: 't was even an awful shine
 From the exaltation of Apollo's bow ;
 A heavenly beacon in their dreary woe.
 Who thus were ripe for high contemplating,
 Might turn their steps towards the sober ring
 Where sat Endymion and the aged priest
 'Mong shepherds gone in eld, whose looks increased
 The silvery setting of their mortal star.
 There they discoursed upon the fragile bar 360
 That keeps us from our homes ethereal ;
 And what our duties there : to nightly call
 Vesper, the beauty-crest of summer weather ;
 To summon all the downiest clouds together
 For the sun's purple couch ; to emulate
 In minist'ring the potent rule of fate
 With speed of fire-tail'd exhalations ;
 To tint her pallid cheek with bloom, who cons
 Sweet poesy by moonlight : besides these,
 A world of other unguess'd offices. 370
 Anon they wander'd, by divine converse,
 Into Elysium ; vying to rehearse
 Each one his own anticipated bliss.
 One felt heart-certain that he could not miss

His quick-gone love, among fair blossom'd boughs,
 Where every zephyr-sigh pouts, and endows
 Her lips with music for the welcoming.
 Another wish'd, 'mid that eternal spring,
 To meet his rosy child, with feathery sails,
 Sweeping, eye-earnestly, through almond vales: 380
 Who, suddenly, should stoop through the smooth wind,

And with the balmiest leaves his temples bind;
 And, ever after, through those regions be
 His messenger, his little Mercury.
 Some were athirst in soul to see again
 Their fellow-huntsmen o'er the wide champaign
 In times long past; to sit with them, and talk
 Of all the chances in their earthly walk;
 Comparing, joyfully, their plenteous stores
 Of happiness, to when upon the moors, 390
 Benighted, close they huddled from the cold,
 And shared their famish'd scrips. Thus all out-told

Their fond imaginations, — saving him
 Whose eyelids curtain'd up their jewels dim,
 Endymion: yet hourly had he striven
 To hide the cankering venom, that had riven
 His fainting recollections. Now indeed
 His senses had swoon'd off: he did not heed
 The sudden silence, or the whispers low,
 Or the old eyes dissolving at his woe, 400
 Or anxious calls, or close of trembling palms,
 Or maiden's sigh, that grief itself embalms:
 But in the self-same fixed trance he kept,
 Like one who on the earth had never slept.
 Aye, even as dead-still as a marble man,
 Frozen in that old tale Arabian.

Who whispers him so pantingly and close?
 Peona, his sweet sister: of all those,
 His friends, the dearest. Hushing signs she made,

And breathed a sister's sorrow to persuade 410
 A yielding up, a cradling on her care.
 Her eloquence did breathe away the curse :
 She led him, like some midnight spirit nurse
 Of happy changes in emphatic dreams,
 Along a path between two little streams, —
 Guarding his forehead, with her round elbow,
 From low-grown branches, and his footsteps slow
 From stumbling over stumps and hillocks small ;
 Until they came to where these streamlets fall,
 With mingled bubblings and a gentle rush, 420
 Into a river, clear, brimful, and flush
 With crystal mocking of the trees and sky.
 A little shallop, floating there hard by,
 Pointed its beak over the fringed bank ;
 And soon it lightly dipt, and rose, and sank,
 And dipt again, with the young couple's weight, —
 Peona guiding, through the water straight,
 Towards a bowery island opposite ;
 Which gaining presently, she steered light
 Into a shady, fresh, and ripply cove, 430
 Where nested was an arbour, overwove
 By many a summer's silent fingering ;
 To whose cool bosom she was used to bring
 Her playmates, with their needle broidery,
 And minstrel memories of times gone by.

So she was gently glad to see him laid
 Under her favourite bower's quiet shade
 On her own couch, new made of flower leaves,
 Dried carefully on the cooler side of sheaves
 When last the sun his autumn tresses shook, 440
 And the tann'd harvesters rich armfuls took.
 Soon was he quieted to slumbrous rest :
 But, ere it crept upon him, he had prest
 Peona's busy hand against his lips,
 And still, a-sleeping, held her finger-tips
 In tender pressure. And as a willow keeps

A patient watch over the stream that creeps
 Windingly by it, so the quiet maid
 Held her in peace : so that a whispering blade
 Of grass, a wailful gnat, a bee bustling 450
 Down in the bluebells, or a wren light rustling
 Among sere leaves and twigs, might all be heard.

O magic sleep ! O comfortable bird,
 That broodest o'er the troubled sea of the mind
 Till it is hush'd and smooth ! O unconfined
 Restraint ! imprison'd liberty ! great key
 To golden palaces, strange minstrelsy,
 Fountains grotesque, new trees, bespangled caves,
 Echoing grottoes, full of tumbling waves
 And moonlight ; aye, to all the mazy world 460
 Of silvery enchantment ! — who, upfurl'd
 Beneath thy drowsy wing a triple hour,
 But renovates and lives ? — Thus, in the bower,
 Endymion was calm'd to life again.
 Opening his eyelids with a healthier brain,
 He said : ' I feel this thine endearing love
 All through my bosom : thou art as a dove
 Trembling its closed eyes and sleeked wings
 About me ; and the pearliest dew not brings
 Such morning incense from the fields of May, 470
 As do those brighter drops that twinkling stray
 From those kind eyes, — the very home and haunt
 Of sisterly affection. Can I want
 Aught else, aught nearer heaven, than such tears ?
 Yet dry them up, in bidding hence all fears
 That, any longer, I will pass my days
 Alone and sad. No, I will once more raise
 My voice upon the mountain-heights ; once more
 Make my horn parley from their foreheads hoar : 479
 Again my trooping hounds their tongues shall loll
 Around the breathed boar : again I'll poll
 The fair-grown yew-tree, for a chosen bow :
 And, when the pleasant sun is getting low,

Again I'll linger in a sloping mead
 To hear the speckled thrushes, and see feed
 Our idle sheep. So be thou cheered, sweet !
 And, if thy lute is here, softly intreat
 My soul to keep in its resolved course.'

Hereat Peona, in their silver source,
 Shut her pure sorrow-drops with glad exclaim, 490
 And took a lute, from which there pulsing came
 A lively prelude, fashioning the way
 In which her voice should wander. 'T was a lay
 More subtle cadenced, more forest wild
 Than Dryope's lone lulling of her child ;
 And nothing since has floated in the air
 So mournful strange. Surely some influence rare
 Went, spiritual, through the damsel's hand ;
 For still, with Delphic emphasis, she spann'd 499
 The quick invisible strings, even though she saw
 Endymion's spirit melt away and thaw
 Before the deep intoxication.
 But soon she came, with sudden burst, upon
 Her self-possession — swung the lute aside,
 And earnestly said : ' Brother, 'tis vain to hide
 That thou dost know of things mysterious,
 Immortal, starry ; such alone could thus
 Weigh down thy nature. Hast thou sinn'd in aught
 Offensive to the heavenly powers ? Caught
 A Paphian dove upon a message sent ? 510
 Thy deathful bow against some deer-herd bent,
 Sacred to Dian ? Haply, thou hast seen
 Her naked limbs among the alders green ;
 And that, alas ! is death ! No, I can trace
 Something more high perplexing in thy face !'

Endymion look'd at her, and press'd her hand,
 And said, ' Art thou so pale, who wast so bland
 And merry in our meadows ? How is this ?
 Tell me thine ailment : tell me all amiss ! —

Ah ! thou hast been unhappy at the change 520
 Wrought suddenly in me. What indeed more strange ?

Or more complete to overwhelm surmise ?

Ambition is no sluggard : 't is no prize,
 That toiling years would put within my grasp,
 That I have sigh'd for : with so deadly gasp
 No man e'er panted for a mortal love.

So all have set my heavier grief above
 These things which happen. Rightly have they done :

I, who still saw the horizontal sun Heave his broad shoulder o'er the edge of the world, 530

Out-facing Lucifer, and then had hurl'd
 My spear aloft, as signal for the chase —
 I, who, for very sport of heart, would race
 With my own steed from Araby ; pluck down
 A vulture from his towery perching ; frown
 A lion into growling, loth retire —
 To lose, at once, all my toil-breeding fire,
 And sink thus low ! but I will ease my breast
 Of secret grief, here in this bowery nest.

'This river does not see the naked sky, 540
 Till it begins to progress silverly
 Around the western border of the wood,
 Whence, from a certain spot, its winding flood
 Seems at the distance like a crescent moon :
 And in that nook, the very pride of June,
 Had I been used to pass my weary eyes ;
 The rather for the sun unwilling leaves
 So dear a picture of his sovereign power,
 And I could witness his most kingly hour,
 When he doth tighten up the golden reins, 550
 And paces leisurely down amber plains
 His snorting four. Now when his chariot last
 Its beams against the zodiac-lion cast,

There blossom'd suddenly a magic bed
 Of sacred ditamy, and poppies red :
 At which I wondered greatly, knowing well
 That but one night had wrought this flowery spell ;
 And, sitting down close by, began to muse
 What it might mean. Perhaps, thought I, Mor-pheus,

In passing here, his owlet pinions shook ; 560
 Or, it may be, ere matron Night uptook
 Her ebon urn, young Mercury, by stealth,
 Had dipt his rod in it : such garland wealth
 Came not by common growth. Thus on I thought,
 Until my head was dizzy and distraught.
 Moreover, through the dancing poppies stole
 A breeze, most softly lulling to my soul ;
 And shaping visions all about my sight
 Of colours, wings, and bursts of spangly light ;
 The which became more strange, and strange, and dim, 570

And then were gulf'd in a tumultuous swim :
 And then I fell asleep. Ah, can I tell
 The enchantment that afterwards befell ?
 Yet it was but a dream : yet such a dream
 That never tongue, although it overteem
 With mellow utterance, like a cavern spring,
 Could figure out and to conception bring
 All I beheld and felt. Methought I lay
 Watching the zenith, where the milky way
 Among the stars in virgin splendour pours ; 580
 And travelling my eye, until the doors
 Of heaven appear'd to open for my flight,
 I became loth and fearful to alight
 From such high soaring by a downward glance :
 So kept me steadfast in that airy trance,
 Spreading imaginary pinions wide.
 When, presently, the stars began to glide,
 And faint away, before my eager view :
 At which I sigh'd that I could not pursue,

And dropt my vision to the horizon's verge ; 590
And lo! from opening clouds, I saw emerge
The loveliest moon, that ever silver'd o'er
A shell for Neptune's goblet ; she did soar
So passionately bright, my dazzled soul
Commingling with her argent spheres did roll
Through clear and cloudy, even when she went
At last into a dark and vapoury tent —
Whereat, methought, the lidless-eyed train
Of planets all were in the blue again.
To commune with those orbs, once more I raised 600
My sight right upward : but it was quite dazed
By a bright something, sailing down apace,
Making me quickly veil my eyes and face :
Again I look'd, and, O ye deities,
Who from Olympus watch our destinies !
Whence that completed form of all completeness ?
Whence came that high perfection of all sweetness ?
Speak, stubborn earth, and tell me where, O where Hast thou a symbol of her golden hair ?
Not oat-sheaves drooping in the western sun ; 610
Not — thy soft hand, fair sister ! let me shun
Such follying before thee — yet she had,
Indeed, locks bright enough to make me mad ;
And they were simply gordian'd up and braided,
Leaving, in naked comeliness, unshaded,
Her pearl round ears, white neck, and orb'd brow ;
The which were blended in, I know not how,
With such a paradise of lips and eyes,
Blush-tinted cheeks, half-smiles, and faintest sighs,
That, when I think thereon, my spirit clings 620
And plays about its fancy, till the stings
Of human neighbourhood envenom all.
Unto what awful power shall I call ?
To what high fane ? — Ah! see her hovering feet,
More bluely vein'd, more soft, more whitely sweet
Than those of sea-born Venus, when she rose
From out her cradle shell. The wind out-blows

Her scarf into a fluttering pavilion ;
 'T is blue, and over-spangled with a million
 Of little eyes, as though thou wert to shed 630
 Over the darkest, lushest bluebell bed,
 Handfuls of daisies.' — 'Endymion, how strange !
 Dream within dream !' — 'She took an airy range,
 And then, towards me, like a very maid,
 Came blushing, waning, willing, and afraid,
 And press'd me by the hand : Ah ! 't was too much ;
 Methought I fainted at the charmed touch,
 Yet held my recollection, even as one
 Who dives three fathoms where the waters run
 Gurgling in beds of coral: for anon, 640
 I felt upmounted in that region
 Where falling stars dart their artillery forth,
 And eagles struggle with the buffeting north
 That balances the heavy meteor-stone ; —
 Felt too, I was not fearful, nor alone,
 But lapp'd and lull'd along the dangerous sky.
 Soon, as it seem'd, we left our journeying high,
 And straightway into frightful eddies swoop'd ;
 Such as ay muster where gray time has scoop'd
 Huge dens and caverns in a mountain's side : 650
 There hollow sounds aroused me, and I sigh'd
 To faint once more by looking on my bliss —
 I was distracted ; madly did I kiss
 The wooing arms which held me, and did give
 My eyes at once to death : but 't was to live,
 To take in draughts of life from the gold fount
 Of kind and passionate looks ; to count, and count
 The moments, by some greedy help that seem'd
 A second self, that each might be redeem'd
 And plunder'd of its load of blessedness. 660
 Ah, desperate mortal ! I ev'n dared to press
 Her very cheek against my crowned lip,
 And, at that moment, felt my body dip
 Into a warmer air: a moment more,
 Our feet were soft in flowers. There was store

Of newest joys upon that alp. Sometimes
 A scent of violets, and blossoming limes,
 Loiter'd around us ; then of honey cells,
 Made delicate from all white-flower bells ;
 And once, above the edges of our nest, 670
 An arch face peep'd, — an Oread as I guess'd.

‘ Why did I dream that sleep o’erpower’d me
 In midst of all this heaven ? Why not see,
 Far off, the shadows of his pinions dark,
 And stare them from me ? But no, like a spark
 That needs must die, although its little beam
 Reflects upon a diamond, my sweet dream
 Fell into nothing — into stupid sleep.
 And so it was, until a gentle creep,
 A careful moving caught my waking ears, 680
 And up I started : Ah ! my sighs, my tears,
 My clenched hands ; — for lo ! the poppies hung
 Dew-dabbled on their stalks, the ouzel sung
 A heavy ditty, and the sullen day
 Had chidden herald Hesperus away,
 With leaden looks : the solitary breeze
 Bluster’d, and slept, and its wild self did tease
 With wayward melancholy ; and I thought,
 Mark me, Peona ! that sometimes it brought 689
 Faint fare-thee-wells, and sigh-shrilled adieus ! —
 Away I wander’d — all the pleasant hues
 Of heaven and earth had faded : deepest shades
 Were deepest dungeons ; heaths and sunny glades
 Were full of pestilent light ; our taintless rills
 Seem’d sooty, and o’erspread with upturn’d gills
 Of dying fish ; the vermeil rose had blown
 In frightful scarlet, and its thorns outgrown
 Like spiked aloe. If an innocent bird
 Before my heedless footsteps stirr’d, and stirr’d
 In little journeys, I beheld in it 700
 A disguised demon, missioned to knit

My soul with under darkness ; to entice
 My stumblings down some monstrous precipice :
 Therefore I eager follow'd, and did curse
 The disappointment. Time, that aged nurse,
 Rock'd me to patience. Now, thank gentle heaven !
 These things, with all their comfortings, are given
 To my down-sunken hours, and with thee,
 Sweet sister, help to stem the ebbing sea
 Of weary life.'

Thus ended he, and both 710

Sat silent : for the maid was very loth
 To answer ; feeling well that breathed words
 Would all be lost, unheard, and vain as swords
 Against the enchased crocodile, or leaps
 Of grasshoppers against the sun. She weeps,
 And wonders ; struggles to devise some blame ;
 To put on such a look as would say, Shame
On this poor weakness! but, for all her strife,
 She could as soon have crush'd away the life 719
 From a sick dove. At length, to break the pause,
 She said with trembling chance : ' Is this the cause ?
 This all ? Yet it is strange, and sad, alas !
 That one who through this middle earth should pass
 Most like a sojourning demi-god, and leave
 His name upon the harp-string, should achieve
 No higher bard than simple maidenhood,
 Singing alone, and fearfully, — how the blood
 Left his young cheek ; and how he used to stray
 He knew not where ; and how he would say, nay,
 If any said 't was love: and yet 't was love ; 730
 What could it be but love ? How a ringdove
 Let fall a sprig of yew-tree in his path ;
 And how he died : and then, that love doth scathe
 The gentle heart, as northern blasts do roses ;
 And then the ballad of his sad life closes
 With sighs, and an alas ! — Endymion !
 Be rather in the trumpet's mouth, — anon

Among the winds at large — that all may hearken !
 Although, before the crystal heavens darken,
 I watch and dote upon the silver lakes 740
 Pictured in western cloudiness, that takes
 The semblance of gold rocks and bright gold sands,
 Islands, and creeks, and amber-fretted strands
 With horses prancing o'er them, palaces
 And towers of amethyst, — would I so tease
 My pleasant days, because I could not mount
 Into those regions ? The Morphean fount
 Of that fine element that visions, dreams,
 And fitful whims of sleep are made of, streams
 Into its airy channels with so subtle, 750
 So thin a breathing, not the spider's shuttle,
 Circled a million times within the space
 Of a swallow's nest-door, could delay a trace,
 A tinting of its quality : how light
 Must dreams themselves be ; seeing they're more slight

Than the mere nothing that engenders them !
 Then wherefore sully the entrusted gem
 Of high and noble life with thoughts so sick ?
 Why pierce high-fronted honour to the quick
 For nothing but a dream ?' Hereat the youth 760
 Look'd up : a conflicting of shame and ruth
 Was in his plaited brow : yet his eyelids
 Widen'd a little, as when Zephyr bids
 A little breeze to creep between the fans
 Of careless butterflies : amid his pains
 He seem'd to taste a drop of manna-dew,
 Full palatable ; and a colour grew
 Upon his cheek, while thus he lifeful spake.

'Peona ! ever have I long'd to slake
 My thirst for the world's praises : nothing base, 770
 No merely slumberous phantasm, could unlace
 The stubborn canvas for my voyage prepared —
 Though now 't is tatter'd ; leaving my bark bared

And sullenly drifting : yet my higher hope
 Is of too wide, too rainbow-large a scope,
 To fret at myriads of earthly wrecks.
 Wherein lies happiness ? In that which beck
 Our ready minds to fellowship divine,
 A fellowship with essence ; till we shine,
 Full alchemized, and free of space. Behold 780
 The clear religion of heaven ! Fold
 A rose leaf round thy finger's taperness,
 And soothe thy lips : hist, when the airy stress
 Of music's kiss impregnates the free winds,
 And with a sympathetic touch unbinds
 Æolian magic from their lucid wombs :
 Then old songs waken from enclouded tombs ;
 Old ditties sigh above their father's grave ;
 Ghosts of melodious prophesyings rave
 Round every spot where trod Apollo's foot ; 790
 Bronze clarions awake, and faintly bruit,
 Where long ago a giant battle was ;
 And, from the turf, a lullaby doth pass
 In every place where infant Orpheus slept.
 Feel we these things ? — that moment have we stept
 Into a sort of oneness, and our state
 Is like a floating spirit's. But there are Richer entanglements, enthrallments far
 More self-destroying, leading, by degrees,
 To the chief intensity : the crown of these 800
 Is made of love and friendship, and sits high
 Upon the forehead of humanity.
 All its more ponderous and bulky worth
 Is friendship, whence there ever issues forth
 A steady splendour ; but at the tip-top,
 There hangs by unseen film, an orb'd drop
 Of light, and that is love : its influence
 Thrown in our eyes genders a novel sense,
 At which we start and fret : till in the end,
 Melting into its radiance, we blend, 810

Mingle, and so become a part of it, —
 Nor with aught else can our souls interknit
 So wingedly : when we combine therewith,
 Life's self is nourish'd by its proper pith,
 And we are nurtured like a pelican brood.
 Aye, so delicious is the unsating food,
 That men, who might have tower'd in the van
 Of all the congregated world, to fan
 And winnow from the coming step of time
 All chaff of custom, wipe away all slime 820
 Left by men-slugs and human serpentry,
 Have been content to let occasion die,
 Whilst they did sleep in love's Elysium.
 And, truly, I would rather be struck dumb,
 Than speak against this ardent listlessness :
 For I have ever thought that it might bless
 The world with benefits unknowingly ;
 As does the nightingale, up-perched high,
 And cloister'd among cool and bunched leaves —
 She sings but to her love, nor e'er conceives 830
 How tiptoe Night holds back her dark-gray hood.
 Just so may love, although 't is understood
 The mere commingling of passionate breath,
 Produce more than our searching witnesseth :
 What I know not : but who, of men, can tell
 That flowers would bloom, or that green fruit would swell
 To melting pulp, that fish would have bright mail,
 The earth its dower of river, wood, and vale,
 The meadows runnels, runnels pebble-stones
 The seed its harvest, or the lute its tones, 840
 Tones ravishment, or ravishment its sweet,
 If human souls did never kiss and greet ?

' Now, if this earthly love has power to make
 Men's being mortal, immortal ; to shake
 Ambition from their memories, and brim
 Their measure of content ; what merest whim,

Seems all this poor endeavour after fame,
 To one, who keeps within his steadfast aim
 A love immortal, an immortal too.
 Look not so wilder'd ; for these things are true 850
 And never can be born of atomies
 That buzz about our slumbers, like brain-flies,
 Leaving us fancy-sick. /No, no, I'm sure,
 My restless spirit never could endure
 To brood so long upon one luxury,
 Unless it did, though fearfully, espy
 A hope beyond the shadow of a dream. ||
 My sayings will the less obscured seem
 When I have told thee how my waking sight
 Has made me scruple whether that same night 860
 Was pass'd in dreaming. Hearken, sweet Peona!
 Beyond the matron-temple of Latona,
 Which we should see but for these darkening
     boughs,
 Lies a deep hollow, from whose ragged brows
 Bushes and trees do lean all round athwart,
 And meet so nearly, that with wings outrought,
 And spreaded tail, a vulture could not glide
 Past them, but he must brush on every side.
 Some moulder'd steps lead into this cool cell,
 Far as the slabbed margin of a well, 870
 Whose patient level peeps its crystal eye
 Right upward, through the bushes, to the sky.
 Oft have I brought thee flowers, on their stalks set
 Like vestal primroses, but dark velvet
 Edges them round, and they have golden pits:
 'T was there I got them, from the gaps and slits
 In a mossy stone, that sometimes was my seat,
 When all above was faint with mid-day heat.
 And there in strife no burning thoughts to heed,
 I'd bubble up the water through a reed ; 880
 So reaching back to boyhood : make me ships
 Of moulted feathers, touchwood, alder chips,

With leaves stuck in them ; and the Neptune be
Of their petty ocean. Oftener, heavily,
When lovelorn hours had left me less a child,
I sat contemplating the figures wild
Of o'erhead clouds melting the mirror through.
Upon a day, while thus I watch'd, by flew
A cloudy Cupid, with his bow and quiver ;
So plainly character'd, no breeze would shiver 890
The happy chance : so happy, I was fain
To follow it upon the open plain,
And, therefore, was just going ; when, behold !
A wonder, fair as any I have told —
The same bright face I tasted in my sleep,
Smiling in the clear well. My heart did leap
Through the cool depth. — It moved as if to flee —
I started up, when lo ! refreshfully,
There came upon my face, in plenteous showers,
Dew-drops, and dewy buds, and leaves, and flowers,
Wrapping all objects from my smother'd sight, 901
Bathing my spirit in a new delight.
Aye, such a breathless honey-feel of bliss
Alone preserved me from the drear abyss
Of death, for the fair form had gone again.
Pleasure is oft a visitant ; but pain
Clings cruelly to us, like the gnawing sloth
On the deer's tender haunches: late, and loth,
'T is scared away by slow returning pleasure.
How sickening, how dark the dreadful leisure 910
Of weary days, made deeper exquisite,
By a foreknowledge of unslumbrous night !
Like sorrow came upon me, heavier still,
Than when I wander'd from the poppy hill :
And a whole age of lingering moments crept
Sluggishly by, ere more contentment swept Away at once the deadly yellow spleen.
Yes, thrice have I this fair enchantment seen ;
Once more been tortured with renewed life.
When last the wintry gusts gave over strife 920

With the conquering sun of spring, and left the skies

Warm and serene, but yet with moisten'd eyes
In pity of the shatter'd infant buds, —
That time thou didst adorn, with amber studs,
My hunting cap, because I laugh'd and smiled,
Chatted with thee, and many days exiled
All torment from my breast ; — 't was even then,
Straying about, yet coop'd up in the den
Of helpless discontent, — hurling my lance
From place to place, and following at chance, 930
At last, by hap, through some young trees it struck,
And, plashing among bedded pebbles, stuck
In the middle of a brook, — whose silver ramble
Down twenty little falls through reeds and bram-ble,

Tracing along, it brought me to a cave,
Whence it ran brightly forth, and white did lave
The nether sides of mossy stones and rock, —
'Mong which it gurgled blithe adieus, to mock
Its own sweet grief at parting. Overhead, 939
Hung a lush screen of drooping weeds, and spread
Thick, as to curtain up some wood-nymph's home.
“ Ah ! impious mortal, whither do I roam ! ”
Said I, low-voiced : “ Ah, whither ! ’T is the grot
Of Proserpine, when Hell, obscure and hot,
Doth her resign ; and where her tender hands
She dabbles, on the cool and sluicy sands :
Or 't is the cell of Echo, where she sits,
And babbles thorough silence, till her wits
Are gone in tender madness, and anon,
Faints into sleep, with many a dying tone 950
Of sadness. O that she would take my vows,
And breathe them sighingly among the boughs,
To sue her gentle ears for whose fair head,
Daily, I pluck sweet flowerets from their bed,
And weave them dyingly — send honey-whispers
Round every leaf, that all those gentle lispers

May sigh my love unto her pitying !
 O charitable Echo ! hear, and sing
 This ditty to her ! — tell her " — So I stay'd
 My foolish tongue, and listening, half afraid, 960
 Stood stupefied with my own empty folly,
 And blushing for the freaks of melancholy.
 Salt tears were coming, when I heard my name
 Most fondly lipp'd, and then these accents came :
 " Endymion ! the cave is secreter
 Than the isle of Delos. Echo hence shall stir
 No sighs but sigh-warm kisses, or light noise
 Of thy combing hand, the while it travelling cloys
 And trembles through my labyrinthine hair."
 At that oppress'd, I hurried in. — Ah ! where 970
 Are those swift moments ? Whither are they fled ?
 I'll smile no more, Peona ; nor will wed
 Sorrow, the way to death ; but patiently
 Bear up against it : so farewell, sad sigh ;
 And come instead demurest meditation,
 To occupy me wholly, and to fashion
 My pilgrimage for the world's dusky brink.
 No more will I count over, link by link,
 My chain of grief : no longer strive to find
 A half-forgetfulness in mountain wind 980
 Blustering about my ears : aye, thou shalt see,
 Dearest of sisters, what my life shall be ;
 What a calm round of hours shall make my days.
 There is a paly flame of hope that plays
 Where'er I look ; but yet, I'll say 't is naught —
 And here I bid it die. Have not I caught,
 Already, a more healthy countenance ?
 By this the sun is setting ; we may chance
 Meet some of our near-dwellers with my car.'

This said, he rose, faint-smiling like a star 990
 Through autumn mists, and took Peona's hand :
 They stept into the boat, and launch'd from land.

BOOK II

O SOVEREIGN power of love ! O grief ! O balm !
 All records, saving thine, come cool, and calm,
 And shadowy, through the mist of passed years :
 For others, good or bad, hatred and tears
 Have become indolent ; but touching thine,
 One sigh doth echo, one poor sob doth pine,
 One kiss brings honey-dew from buried days.
 The woes of Troy, towers smothering o'er their blaze,

Stiff-holden shields, far-piercing spears, keen blades,
 Struggling, and blood, and shrieks—all dimly
 fades 10

Into some backward corner of the brain ;
 Yet, in our very souls, we feel amain
 The close of Troilus and Cressid sweet.
 Hence, pageant history ! hence, gilded cheat !
 Swart planet in the universe of deeds !
 Wide sea, that one continuous murmur breeds
 Along the pebbled shore of memory !
 Many old rotten-timber'd boats there be
 Upon thy vaporous bosom, magnified
 To goodly vessels ; many a sail of pride, 20
 And golden-keel'd, is left unlaunch'd and dry.
 But wherefore this ? What care, though owl did fly

About the great Athenian admiral's mast ?
 What care, though striding Alexander past
 The Indus with his Macedonian numbers ?
 Though old Ulysses tortured from his slumbers
 The gluttoned Cyclops, what care ? — Juliet leaning
 Amid her window-flowers, — sighing, — weaning
 Tenderly her fancy from its maiden snow,
 Doth more avail than these ; the silver flow 30
 Of Hero's tears, the swoon of Imogen,
 Fair Pastorella in the bandit's den,

Are things to brood on with more ardency
 Than the death-day of empires. Fearfully
 Must such conviction come upon his head,
 Who, thus far, discontent, has dared to tread,
 Without one muse's smile, or kind behest,
 The path of love and poesy. But rest,
 In chafing restlessness, is yet more drear
 Than to be crush'd, in striving to uprear 40
 Love's standard on the battlements of song.
 So once more days and nights aid me along,
 Like legion'd soldiers.

Brain-sick shepherd-prince,

What promise hast thou faithful guarded since
 The day of sacrifice? Or, have new sorrows
 Come with the constant dawn upon thy morrows?
 Alas! 't is his old grief. For many days,
 Has he been wandering in uncertain ways:
 Through wilderness, and woods of mossed oaks;
 Counting his woe-worn minutes, by the strokes 50
 Of the lone wood-cutter; and listening still,
 Hour after hour, to each lush-leaved rill.
 Now he is sitting by a shady spring,
 And elbow-deep with feverous fingering
 Stems the upbursting cold: a wild rose tree
 Pavilions him in bloom, and he doth see
 A bud which snares his fancy: lo! but now
 He plucks it, dips its stalk in the water: how!
 It swells, it buds, it flowers beneath his sight;
 And, in the middle, there is softly pight 60
 A golden butterfly; upon whose wings
 There must be surely character'd strange things,
 For with wide eye he wonders, and smiles oft.

Lightly this little herald flew aloft,
 Follow'd by glad Endymion's clasped hands:
 Onward it flies. From languor's sullen bands
 His limbs are loosed, and eager, on he hies

Dazzled to trace it in the sunny skies.
 It seem'd he flew, the way so easy was ;
 And like a new-born spirit did he pass 70
 Through the green evening quiet in the sun,
 O'er many a heath, through many a woodland
 dun,

Through buried paths, where sleepy twilight dreams
 The summer time away. One track unseams
 A wooded cleft, and, far away, the blue
 Of ocean fades upon him ; then, anew,
 He sinks adown a solitary glen,
 Where there was never sound of mortal men,
 Saving, perhaps, some snow-light cadences
 Melting to silence, when upon the breeze 80
 Some holy bark let forth an anthem sweet,
 To cheer itself to Delphi. Still his feet
 Went swift beneath the merry-winged guide,
 Until it reach'd a splashing fountain's side
 That, near a cavern's mouth, for ever pour'd
 Unto the temperate air : then high it soar'd,
 And, downward, suddenly began to dip,
 As if, athirst with so much toil, 't would sip
 The crystal spout-head : so it did, with touch
 Most delicate, as though afraid to smutch, 90
 Even with mealy gold, the waters clear.

But, at that very touch, to disappear
 So fairy-quick, was strange ! Bewildered,
 Endymion sought around, and shook each bed
 Of covert flowers in vain ; and then he flung
 Himself along the grass. What gentle tongue,
 What whisperer, disturb'd his gloomy rest ?
 It was a nymph uprisen to the breast
 In the fountain's pebbly margin, and she stood
 'Mong lilies, like the youngest of the brood. 100
 To him her dripping hand she softly kist,
 And anxiously began to plait and twist
 Her ringlets round her fingers, saying : ' Youth !
 Too long, alas, hast thou starved on the ruth,

The bitterness of love: too long indeed,
 Seeing thou art so gentle. Could I weed
 The soul of care, by heavens, I would offer
 All the bright riches of my crystal coffer,
 To Amphitrite; all my clear-eyed fish,
 Golden, or rainbow-sided, or purplish, 110
 Vermilion-tail'd, or finn'd with silvery gauze;
 Yea, or my veined pebble-floor, that draws
 A virgin light to the deep; my grotto-sands,
 Tawny and gold, oozed slowly from far lands
 By my diligent springs: my level lilies, shells,
 My charming rod, my potent river spells;
 Yes, every thing, even to the pearly cup
 Meander gave me, — for I bubbled up
 To fainting creatures in a desert wild.
 But woe is me, I am but as a child 120
 To gladden thee; and all I dare to say,
 Is, that I pity thee; that on this day
 I've been thy guide; that thou must wander far
 In other regions, past the scanty bar
 To mortal steps, before thou canst be ta'en
 From every wasting sigh, from every pain,
 Into the gentle bosom of thy love.
 Why it is thus, one knows in heaven above:
 But, a poor Naiad, I guess not. Farewell!
 I have a ditty for my hollow cell.' 130

Hereat she vanish'd from Endymion's gaze,
 Who brooded o'er the water in amaze:
 The dashing fount pour'd on, and where its pool
 Lay, half asleep, in grass and rushes cool,
 Quick waterflies and gnats were sporting still,
 And fish were dimpling, as if good nor ill
 Had fallen out that hour. The wanderer,
 Holding his forehead to keep off the burr
 Of smothering fancies, patiently sat down;
 And, while beneath the evening's sleepy frown 140
 Glowworms began to trim their starry lamps,

Thus breathed he to himself : ' Whoso encamps
 To take a fancied city of delight,
 O what a wretch is he ! and when 't is his,
 After long toil and travelling, to miss
 The kernel of his hopes, how more than vile :
 Yet, for him there 's refreshment even in toil :
 Another city doth he set about,
 Free from the smallest pebble-bead of doubt
 That he will seize on trickling honey-combs : 150
 Alas, he finds them dry ; and then he foams,
 And onward to another city speeds.
 But this is human life : the war, the deeds,
 The disappointment, the anxiety,
 Imagination's struggles, far and nigh,
 All human ; bearing in themselves this good,
 That they are still the air, the subtle food,
 To make us feel existence, and to show
 How quiet death is. Where soil is, men grow,
 Whether to weeds or flowers ; but for me, 160
 There is no depth to strike in : I can see
 Naught earthly worth my compassing ; so stand
 Upon a misty, jutting head of land —
 Alone ? No, no ; and by the Orphean lute,
 When mad Eurydice is listening to 't,
 I'd rather stand upon this misty peak,
 With not a thing to sigh for, or to seek,
 But the soft shadow of my thrice seen love,
 Than be — I care not what. O meekest dove 169
 Of heaven ! O Cynthia, ten times bright and fair !
 From thy blue throne, now filling all the air,
 Glance but one little beam of temper'd light
 Into my bosom, that the dreadful night
 And tyranny of love be somewhat scared !
 Yet do not so, sweet queen ; one torment spared,
 Would give a pang to jealous misery,
 Worse than the torment's self : but rather tie
 Large wings upon my shoulders, and point out
 My love's far dwelling. Though the playful rout

Of Cupids shun thee, too divine art thou, 180
 Too keen in beauty, for thy silver prow
 Not to have dipp'd in love's most gentle stream.
 O be propitious, nor severely deem
 My madness impious ; for, by all the stars
 That tend thy bidding, I do think the bars
 That kept my spirit in are burst — that I
 Am sailing with thee through the dizzy sky !
 How beautiful thou art ! The world how deep !
 How tremulous-dazzlingly the wheels sweep
 Around their axle ! Then these gleaming reins, 190
 How lithe ! When this thy chariot attains
 Its airy goal, haply some bower veils
 Those twilight eyes ? Those eyes ! — my spirit fails —
 Dear goddess, help ! or the wide gaping air
 Will gulf me — help !' — At this, with madden'd stare,
 And lifted hands, and trembling lips, he stood ;
 Like old Deucalion mountain'd o'er the flood,
 Or blind Orion hungry for the morn.
 And, but from the deep cavern there was borne
 A voice, he had been froze to senseless stone ; 200
 Nor sigh of his, nor plaint, nor passion'd moan
 Had more been heard. Thus swell'd it forth : ' Descend,
 Young mountaineer ! descend where alleys bend
 Into the sparry hollows of the world !
 Oft hast thou seen bolts of the thunder hurl'd
 As from thy threshold ; day by day hast been
 A little lower than the chilly sheen
 Of icy pinnacles, and dipp'dst thine arms
 Into the deadening ether that still charms
 Their marble being : now, as deep profound 210
 As those are high, descend ! He ne'er is crown'd
 With immortality, who fears to follow
 Where airy voices lead : so through the hollow,
 The silent mysteries of earth, descend !'

He heard but the last words, nor could contend
 One moment in reflection : for he fled
 Into the fearful deep, to hide his head
 From the clear moon, the trees, and coming madness.

'T was far too strange, and wonderful for sadness ;
 Sharpening, by degrees, his appetite 220
 To dive into the deepest. Dark, nor light,
 The region ; nor bright, nor sombre wholly,
 But mingled up ; a gleaming melancholy ;
 A dusky empire and its diadems ;
 One faint eternal eventide of gems.
 Aye, millions sparkled on a vein of gold,
 Along whose track the prince quick footsteps told,
 With all its lines abrupt and angular:
 Out-shooting sometimes, like a meteor-star,
 Through a vast antre ; then the metal woof, 230
 Like Vulcan's rainbow, with some monstrous roof
 Curves hugely : now, far in the deep abyss,
 It seems an angry lightning, and doth hiss
 Fancy into belief : anon it leads
 Through winding passages, where sameness breeds
 Vexing conceptions of some sudden change ;
 Whether to silver grots, or giant range
 Of sapphire columns, or fantastic bridge
 Athwart a flood of crystal. On a ridge
 Now fareth he, that o'er the vast beneath 240
 Towers like an ocean-cliff, and whence he seeth
 A hundred waterfalls, whose voices come
 But as the murmuring surge. Chilly and numb
 His bosom grew, when first he, far away,
 Descried an orb'd diamond, set to fray
 Old Darkness from his throne: 't was like the sun
 Uprisen o'er chaos: and with such a stun
 Came the amazement, that, absorb'd in it,
 He saw not fiercer wonders — past the wit

Of any spirit to tell, but one of those 250
Who, when this planet's sphering time doth close
Will be its high remembraucers: who they ?
The mighty ones who have made eternal day
For Greece and England. While astonishment
With deep-drawn sighs was quieting, he went Into a marble gallery, passing through
A mimic temple, so complete and true
In sacred custom, that he well nigh fear'd
To search it inwards ; whence far off appear'd,
Through a long pillar'd vista, a fair shrine, 260
And, just beyond, on light tiptoe divine,
A quiver'd Dian. Stepping awfully,
The youth approach'd ; oft turning his veil'd eye
Down sidelong aisles, and into niches old :
And when, more near against the marble cold
He had touch'd his forehead, he began to thread
All courts and passages, where silence dead,
Roused by his whispering footsteps, murmur'd,
faint :
And long he traversed to and fro, to acquaint
Himself with every mystery, and awe ; 270
Till, weary, he sat down before the maw
Of a wide outlet, fathomless and dim,
To wild uncertainty and shadows grim.
There, when new wonders ceased to float before,
And thoughts of self came on, how crude and sore
The journey homeward to habitual self !
A mad pursuing of the fog-born elf,
Whose flitting lantern, through rude nettle-brier,
Cheats us into a swamp, into a fire,
Into the bosom of a hated thing. 280

What misery most drowningly doth sing
In lone Endymion's ear, now he has raught
The goal of consciousness ? Ah, 't is the thought,
The deadly feel of solitude : for lo !
He cannot see the heavens, nor the flow

Of rivers, nor hill-flowers running wild
 In pink and purple chequer, nor, up-piled,
 The cloudy rack slow journeying in the west,
 Like herded elephants ; nor felt, nor prest
 Cool grass, nor tasted the fresh slumberous air ; 290
 But far from such companionship to wear
 An unknown time, surcharged with grief, away,
 Was now his lot. And must he patient stay,
 Tracing fantastic figures with his spear ?
 'No !' exclaim'd he, 'why should I tarry here ?'
 No ! loudly echoed times innumerable.
 At which he straightway started, and 'gan tell
 His paces back into the temple's chief ;
 Warming and glowing strong in the belief
 Of help from Dian : so that when again 300
 He caught her airy form, thus did he plain,
 Moving more near the while : 'O Haunter chaste
 Of river sides, and woods, and heathy waste,
 Where with thy silver bow and arrows keen
 Art thou now forested ? O woodland Queen,
 What smoothest air thy smoother forehead woos ?
 Where dost thou listen to the wide halloos
 Of thy disparted nymphs ? Through what dark tree Glimmers thy crescent ? Wheresoe'er it be,
 'Tis in the breath of heaven : thou dost taste 310
 Freedom as none can taste it, nor dost waste
 Thy loveliness in dismal elements ;
 But, finding in our green earth sweet contents,
 There livest blissfully. Ah, if to thee
 It feels Elysian, how rich to me,
 An exiled mortal, sounds its pleasant name !
 Within my breast there lives a choking flame —
 O let me cool 't the zephyr-boughs among !
 A homeward fever parches up my tongue —
 O let me slake it at the running springs ! 320
 Upon my ear a noisy nothing rings —
 O let me once more hear the linnet's note !
 Before mine eyes thick films and shadows float —

O let me 'noint them with the heaven's light !
 Dost thou now lave thy feet and ankles white ?
 O think how sweet to me the freshening sluice !
 Dost thou now please thy thirst with berry-juice ?
 O think how this dry palate would rejoice !
 If in soft slumber thou dost hear my voice,
 O think how I should love a bed of flowers ! — 330
 Young goddess ! let me see my native bowers !
 Deliver me from this rapacious deep !'

Thus ending loudly, as he would o'erleap
 His destiny, alert he stood : but when
 Obstinate silence came heavily again,
 Feeling about for its old couch of space
 And airy cradle, lowly bow'd his face,
 Desponding, o'er the marble floor's cold thrill.
 But 't was not long ; for, sweeter than the rill
 To its old channel, or a swollen tide 340
 To margin shallows, were the leaves he spied,
 And flowers, and wreaths, and ready myrtle crowns
 Upheaping through the slab: refreshment drowns
 Itself, and strives its own delights to hide —
 Nor in one spot alone ; the floral pride
 In a long whispering birth enchanted grew
 Before his footsteps ; as when heaved anew
 Old ocean rolls a lengthened wave to the shore,
 Down whose green back the short-lived foam, all hoar,
 Bursts gradual, with a wayward indolence. 350

Increasing still in heart, and pleasant sense,
 Upon his fairy journey on he hastes ;
 So anxious for the end, he scarcely wastes
 One moment with his hand among the sweets:
 Onward he goes — he stops — his bosom beats
 As plainly in his ear, as the faint charm
 Of which the throbs were born. This still alarm,

This sleepy music, forced him walk tiptoe :
 For it came more softly than the east could blow
 Arion's magic to the Atlantic isles ; 360
 Or than the west, made jealous by the smiles
 Of throned Apollo, could breathe back the lyre
 To seas Ionian and Tyrian.

O did he ever live, that lonely man,
 Who loved — and music slew not ? 'T is the pest
 Of love, that fairest joys give most unrest ;
 That things of delicate and tenderest worth
 Are swallow'd all, and made a seared dearth,
 By one consuming flame : it doth immerse
 And suffocate true blessings in a curse. 370
 Half-happy, by comparison of bliss,
 Is miserable. 'T was even so with this
 Dew-dropping melody, in the Carian's ear ;
 First heaven, then hell, and then forgotten clear,
 Vanish'd in elemental passion.

And down some swart abysm he had gone,
 Had not a heavenly guide benignant led
 To where thick myrtle branches, 'gainst his head
 Brushing, awakened : then the sounds again
 Went noiseless as a passing noontide rain 380
 Over a bower, where little space he stood ;
 For as the sunset peeps into a wood,
 So saw he panting light, and towards it went
 Through winding alleys ; and lo, wonderment !
 Upon soft verdure saw, one here, one there,
 Cupids a-slumbering on their pinions fair.

After a thousand mazes overgone,
 At last, with sudden step, he came upon
 A chamber, myrtle-wall'd, embower'd high,
 Full of light, incense, tender minstrelsy, 390
 And more of beautiful and strange beside :
 For on a silken couch of rosy pride,

In midst of all, there lay a sleeping youth
 Of fondest beauty ; fonder, in fair sooth,
 Than sighs could fathom, or contentment reach :
 And coverlids gold-tinted like the peach,
 Or ripe October's faded marigolds,
 Fell sleek about him in a thousand folds —
 Not hiding up an Apollonian curve
 Of neck and shoulder, nor the tenting swerve 400
 Of knee from knee, nor ankles pointing light ;
 But rather, giving them to the fill'd sight
 Officially. Sideway his face reposed
 On one white arm, and tenderly unclosed,
 By tenderest pressure, a faint damask mouth
 To slumbery pout ; just as the morning south
 Disparts a dew-lipp'd rose. Above his head,
 Four lily stalks did their white honours wed
 To make a coronal ; and round him grew
 All tendrils green, of every bloom and hue, 410
 Together intertwin'd and trammell'd fresh :
 The vine of glossy sprout ; the ivy mesh,
 Shading its Ethiop berries ; and woodbine,
 Of velvet-leaves and bugle-blooms divine ;
 Convolvulus in streaked vases flush ;
 The creeper, mellowing for an autumn blush ;
 And virgin's bower, trailing airily ;
 With others of the sisterhood. Hard by,
 Stood serene Cupids watching silently.
 One, kneeling to a lyre, touch'd the strings, 420
 Muffling to death the pathos with his wings ;
 And, ever and anon, uprose to look
 At the youth's slumber ; while another took
 A willow bough, distilling odorous dew,
 And shook it on his hair ; another flew
 In through the woven roof, and fluttering-wise
 Rain'd violets upon his sleeping eyes.

At these enchantments, and yet many more,
 The breathless Latmian wonder'd o'er and o'er ;

Until impatient in embarrassment, 430
 He forthright pass'd, and lightly treading went
 To that same feather'd lyrist, who straightway,
 Smiling, thus whisper'd: 'Though from upper day
 Thou art a wanderer, and thy presence here
 Might seem unholy, be of happy cheer!
 For 't is the nicest touch of human honour,
 When some ethereal and high-favouring donor
 Presents immortal bowers to mortal sense;
 As now 't is done to thee, Endymion. Hence
 Was I in no wise startled. So recline 440
 Upon these living flowers. Here is wine,
 Alive with sparkles — never, I aver,
 Since Ariadne was a vintager,
 So cool a purple: taste these juicy pears,
 Sent me by sad Vertumnus, when his fears
 Were high about Pomona: here is cream,
 Deepening to richness from a snowy gleam;
 Sweeter than that nurse Amalthea skimm'd
 For the boy Jupiter: and here, undimm'd
 By any touch, a bunch of blooming plums 450
 Ready to melt between an infant's gums:
 And here is manna pick'd from Syrian trees,
 In starlight, by the three Hesperides.
 Feast on, and meanwhile I will let thee know
 Of all these things around us.' He did so,
 Still brooding o'er the cadence of his lyre;
 And thus: 'I need not any hearing tire
 By telling how the sea-born goddess pined
 For a mortal youth, and how she strove to bind
 Him all in all unto her doating self. 460
 Who would not be so prison'd? but, fond elf,
 He was content to let her amorous plea
 Faint through his careless arms; content to see
 An unseized heaven dying at his feet;
 Content, O fool! to make a cold retreat,
 When on the pleasant grass such love, love-lorn,
 Lay sorrowing; when every tear was born

Of diverse passion ; when her lips and eyes
Were closed in sullen moisture, and quick sighs 469
Came vex'd and pettish through her nostrils small.
Hush ! no exclaim — yet, justly might'st thou call
Curses upon his head. — I was half glad,
But my poor mistress went distract and mad,
When the boar tusk'd him : so away she flew
To Jove's high throne, and by her plainings drew Immortal tear-drops down the thunderer's beard.
Whereon, it was decreed he should be rear'd
Each summer-time to life. Lo ! this is he,
That same Adonis, safe in the privacy
Of this still region all his winter-sleep. 480
Aye, sleep ; for when our love-sick queen did weep
Over his waned corse, the tremulous shower
Heal'd up the wound, and, with a balmy power,
Medicined death to a lengthened drowsiness :
The which she fills with visions, and doth dress
In all this quiet luxury ; and hath set
Us young immortals, without any let,
To watch his slumber through. 'Tis well nigh pass'd,
Even to a moment's filling up, and fast
She scuds with summer breezes, to pant through 490
The first long kiss, warm firstling, to renew
Embower'd sports in Cytherea's isle.
Look ! how those winged listeners all this while
Stand anxious : see ! behold !' — This clamant word
Broke through the careful silence ; for they heard
A rustling noise of leaves, and out there flutter'd
Pigeons and doves : Adonis something mutter'd,
The while one hand, that erst upon his thigh
Lay dormant, moved convulsed and gradually
Up to his forehead. Then there was a hum 500
Of sudden voices, echoing, ' Come ! come !
Arise ! awake ! Clear summer has forth walk'd
Unto the clover-sward, and she has talk'd
Full soothingly to every nested finch :
Rise, Cupids ! or we'll give the bluebell pinch

To your dimpled arms. Once more sweet life begin !'

At this, from every side they hurried in,
Rubbing their sleepy eyes with lazy wrists,
And doubling overhead their little fists
In backward yawns. But all were soon alive : 510
For, as delicious wine doth, sparkling, dive
In nectar'd clouds and curls through water fair,
So from the arbour roof down swell'd an air
Odorous and enlivening ; making all
To laugh, and play, and sing, and loudly call
For their sweet queen ; when lo ! the wreathed
green

Disparted, and far upward could be seen
Blue heaven, and a silver car, air-borne,
Whose silent wheels, fresh wet from clouds of morn,
Spun off a drizzling dew, — which falling chill 520
On soft Adonis' shoulders, made him still Nestle and turn uneasily about.

Soon were the white doves plain, with necks
stretch'd out,

And silken traces lighten'd in descent ;
And soon, returning from love's banishment,
Queen Venus leaning downward open-arm'd :
Her shadow fell upon his breast, and charm'd
A tumult to his heart, and a new life
Into his eyes. Ah, miserable strife,
But for her comforting ! unhappy sight, 530
But meeting her blue orbs ! Who, who can write
Of these first minutes ? The unchariest muse
To embracements warm as theirs makes coy excuse.

O it has ruffled every spirit there,
Saving Love's self, who stands superb to share
The general gladness : awfully he stands ;
A sovereign quell is in his waving hands ;
No sight can bear the lightning of his bow ;
His quiver is mysterious, none can know

What themselves think of it; from forth his eyes 540
There darts strange light of varied hues and dyes:
A scowl is sometimes on his brow, but who Look full upon it feel anon the blue
Of his fair eyes run liquid through their souls.
Endymion feels it, and no more controls
The burning prayer within him; so, bent low,
He had begun a plaining of his woe.
But Venus, bending forward, said: 'My child,
Favour this gentle youth; his days are wild
With love — he — but alas! too well I see 550
Thou know'st the deepness of his misery.
Ah, smile not so, my son: I tell thee true,
That when through heavy hours I used to rue
The endless sleep of this new-born Adon',
This stranger ay I pitied. For upon
A dreary morning once I fled away
Into the breezy clouds, to weep and pray
For this my love: for vexing Mars had teased
Me even to tears; thence, when a little eased,
Down-looking, vacant, through a hazy wood, 560
I saw this youth as he despairing stood:
Those same dark curls blown vagrant in the wind;
Those same full fringed lids a constant blind
Over his sullen eyes: I saw him throw
Himself on wither'd leaves, even as though
Death had come sudden; for no jot he moved,
Yet mutter'd wildly. I could hear he loved
Some fair immortal, and that his embrace
Had zoned her through the night. There is no trace
Of this in heaven: I have mark'd each cheek, 570
And find it is the vainest thing to seek;
And that of all things 't is kept secretest.
Endymion! one day thou wilt be blest:
So still obey the guiding hand that fends
Thee safely through these wonders for sweet ends.
'T is a concealment needful in extreme;
And if I guessed not so, the sunny beam

Thou shouldst mount up with me. Now adieu !
 Here must we leave thee.' — At these words upflew
 The impatient doves, uprose the floating car, 580
 Up went the hum celestial. High afar
 The Latmian saw them minish into naught ;
 And, when all were clear vanish'd, still he caught
 A vivid lightning from that dreadful bow.
 When all was darken'd, with Ætnean throe
 The earth closed — gave a solitary moan —
 And left him once again in twilight lone.

He did not rave, he did not stare aghast,
 For all those visions were o'ergone, and past,
 And he in loneliness : he felt assured 590
 Of happy times, when all he had endured
 Would seem a feather to the mighty prize.
 So, with unusual gladness, on he hies
 Through caves, and palaces of mottled ore,
 Gold dome, and crystal wall, and turquois floor,
 Black polish'd porticoes of awful shade,
 And, at the last, a diamond balustrade,
 Leading afar past wild magnificence,
 Spiral through ruggedest loopholes, and thence Stretching across a void, then guiding o'er 600
 Enormous chasms, where, all foam and roar,
 Streams subterranean tease their granite beds ;
 Then heighten'd just above the silvery heads
 Of a thousand fountains, so that he could dash
 The waters with his spear ; but at the splash,
 Done heedlessly, those spouting columns rose
 Sudden a poplar's height, and 'gan to enclose
 His diamond path with fretwork, streaming round
 Alive, and dazzling cool, and with a sound,
 Haply, like dolphin tumults, when sweet shells 610
 Welcome the float of Thetis. Long he dwells
 On this delight ; for, every minute's space,
 The streams with changed magic interlace :
 Sometimes like delicatest lattices,

Cover'd with crystal vines ; then weeping trees,
 Moving about as in a gentle wind,
 Which, in a wink, to watery gauze refined,
 Pour'd into shapes of curtain'd canopies,
 Spangled, and rich with liquid broideries
 Of flowers, peacocks, swans, and naiads fair. 620
 Swifter than lightning went these wonders rare ;
 And then the water, into stubborn streams
 Collecting, mimick'd the wrought oaken beams,
 Pillars, and frieze, and high fantastic roof,
 Of those dusk places in times far aloof
 Cathedrals call'd. He bade a loth farewell
 To these founts Protean, passing gulf, and dell,
 And torrent, and ten thousand jutting shapes,
 Half seen through deepest gloom, and griesly gapes,
 Blackening on every side, and overhead 630
 A vaulted dome like Heaven's, far bespread
 With starlight gems : aye, all so huge and strange,
 The solitary felt a hurried change
 Working within him into something dreary, —
 Vex'd like a morning eagle, lost, and weary,
 And purblind amid foggy, midnight wolds.
 But he revives at once : for who beholds
 New sudden things, nor casts his mental slough ?
 Forth from a rugged arch, in the dusk below,
 Came mother Cybele ! alone — alone — 640
 In sombre chariot ; dark foldings thrown
 About her majesty, and front death-pale,
 With turrets crown'd. Four maned lions hale
 The sluggish wheels ; solemn their toothed maws,
 Their surly eyes brow-hidden, heavy paws
 Uplifted drowsily, and nervy tails
 Cowering their tawny brushes. Silent sails
 This shadowy queen athwart, and faints away
 In another gloomy arch.

Wherefore delay,
 Young traveller, in such a mournful place ? 650

Art thou wayworn, or canst not further trace
 The diamond path? And does it indeed end
 Abrupt in middle air? Yet earthward bend
 Thy forehead, and to Jupiter cloud-borne
 Call ardently! He was indeed wayworn;
 Abrupt, in middle air, his way was lost;
 To cloud-borne Jove he bowed, and there crost
 Towards him a large eagle, 'twixt whose wings,
 Without one impious word, himself he flings,
 Committed to the darkness and the gloom: 660
 Down, down, uncertain to what pleasant doom,
 Swift as a fathoming plummet down he fell
 Through unknown things; till exhaled asphodel,
 And rose, with spicy fannings interbreathed,
 Came swelling forth where little caves were wreathed
 So thick with leaves and mosses, that they seem'd
 Large honeycombs of green, and freshly teem'd
 With airs delicious. In the greenest nook
 The eagle landed him, and farewell took.

It was a jasmine bower, all bestrown 670
 With golden moss. His every sense had grown
 Ethereal for pleasure; 'bove his head
 Flew a delight half-graspable; his tread
 Was Hesperean; to his capable ears
 Silence was music from the holy spheres;
 A dewy luxury was in his eyes;
 The little flowers felt his pleasant sighs
 And stirr'd them faintly. Verdant cave and cell
 He wander'd through, oft wondering at such swell
 Of sudden exaltation: but, 'Alas!' 680
 Said he, 'will all this gush of feeling pass
 Away in solitude? And must they wane,
 Like melodies upon a sandy plain,
 Without an echo? Then shall I be left
 So sad, so melancholy, so bereft!
 Yet still I feel immortal! O my love,

My breath of life, where art thou ? High above,
 Dancing before the morning gates of heaven ?
 Or keeping watch among those starry seven,
 Old Atlas' children ? Art a maid of the waters, 690
 One of shell-winding Triton's bright-hair'd daughters ?

Or art, impossible ! a nymph of Dian's,
 Weaving a coronal of tender scions
 For very idleness ? Where'er thou art,
 Methinks it now is at my will to start
 Into thine arms ; to scare Aurora's train,
 And snatch thee from the morning ; o'er the main
 To scud like a wild bird, and take thee off
 From thy sea-foamy cradle ; or to doff
 Thy shepherd vest, and woo thee 'mid fresh leaves.
 No, no, too eagerly my soul deceives 701
 Its powerless self : I know this cannot be.
 O let me then by some sweet dreaming flee
 To her entrancements : hither sleep awhile !
 Hither most gentle sleep ! and soothing foil
 For some few hours the coming solitude.'

Thus spake he, and that moment felt endued
 With power to dream deliciously ; so wound
 Through a dim passage, searching till he found
 The smoothest mossy bed and deepest, where 710
 He threw himself, and just into the air
 Stretching his indolent arms, he took, O bliss !
 A naked waist : ' Fair Cupid, whence is this ?'
 A well-known voice sigh'd, ' Sweetest, here am I !'
 At which soft ravishment, with dotting cry
 They trembled to each other. — Helicon !
 O fountain'd hill ! Old Homer's Helicon !
 That thou wouldst spout a little streamlet o'er
 These sorry pages ; then the verse would soar
 And sing above this gentle pair, like lark 720
 Over his nested young : but all is dark
 Around thine aged top, and thy clear fount

Exhales in mists to heaven. Aye, the count
 Of mighty Poets is made up ; the scroll
 Is folded by the Muses ; the bright roll
 Is in Apollo's hand : our dazed eyes
 Have seen a new tinge in the western skies :
 The world has done its duty. Yet, oh yet,
 Although the sun of poesy is set,
 These lovers did embrace, and we must weep 730
 That there is no old power left to steep
 A quill immortal in their joyous tears.
 Long time in silence did their anxious fears
 Question that thus it was : long time they lay
 Fondling and kissing every doubt away ;
 Long time ere soft caressing sobs began
 To mellow into words, and then there ran
 Two bubbling springs of talk from their sweet lips.

' O known Unknown ! from whom my being sips
 Such darling essence, wherefore may I not 740
 Be ever in these arms ? in this sweet spot
 Pillow my chin for ever ? ever press
 These toying hands and kiss their smooth excess ?
 Why not for ever and for ever feel
 That breath about my eyes ? Ah, thou wilt steal
 Away from me again, indeed, indeed —
 Thou wilt be gone away, and wilt not heed
 My lonely madness. Speak, delicious fair,
 Is — is it to be so ? No ! Who will dare
 To pluck thee from me ? And, of thine own will, 750
 Full well I feel thou wouldst not leave me. Still
 Let me entwine thee surer, surer — now
 How can we part ? Elysium ! Who art thou ?
 Who, that thou canst not be for ever here,
 Or lift me with thee to some starry sphere ?
 Enchantress ! tell me by this soft embrace,
 By the most soft completion of thy face,
 Those lips, O slippery blisses, twinkling eyes,

And by these tenderest, milky sovereignties —
 These tenderest, and by the nectar-wine, 760
 The passion ' ——— ' O doved Ida the divine !
 Endymion! dearest! Ah, unhappy me !
 His soul will 'scape us — O felicity !
 How he does love me! His poor temples beat
 To the very tune of love — how sweet, sweet, sweet.
 Revive, dear youth, or I shall faint and die ;
 Revive, or these soft hours will hurry by
 In tranced dullness ; speak, and let that spell
 Affright this lethargy ! I cannot quell
 Its heavy pressure, and will press at least 770
 My lips to thine, that they may richly feast
 Until we taste the life of love again.
 What ! dost thou move? dost kiss? O bliss! O
 pain !

I love thee, youth, more than I can conceive ;
 And so long absence from thee doth bereave
 My soul of any rest : yet must I hence :
 Yet, can I not to starry eminence
 Uplift thee ; nor for very shame can own
 Myself to thee. Ah, dearest, do not groan
 Or thou wilt force me from this secrecy, 780
 And I must blush in heaven. O that I
 Had done it already ; that the dreadful smiles
 At my lost brightness, my impassion'd wiles,
 Had waned from Olympus' solemn height,
 And from all serious Gods ; that our delight
 Was quite forgotten, save of us alone !
 And wherefore so ashamed? 'T is but to atone
 For endless pleasure, by some coward blushes :
 Yet must I be a coward ! — Honour rushes
 Too palpable before me — the sad look 790
 Of Jove — Minerva's start — no bosom shook
 With awe of purity — no Cupid pinion
 In reverence veiled — my crystalline dominion
 Half lost, and all old hymns made nullity !
 But what is this to love? O I could fly un'd

With thee into the ken of heavenly powers,
 So thou wouldst thus, for many sequent hours,
 Press me so sweetly. Now I swear at once
 That I am wise, that Pallas is a dunce —
 Perhaps her love like mine is but unknown — 800
 O I do think that I have been alone
 In chastity: yes, Pallas has been sighing,
 While every eve saw me my hair uptying
 With fingers cool as aspen leaves. Sweet love,
 I was as vague as solitary dove,
 Nor knew that nests were built. Now a soft kiss —
 Aye, by that kiss, I vow an endless bliss,
 An immortality of passion's thine:
 Ere long I will exalt thee to the shine
 Of heaven ambrosial; and we will shade 810
 Ourselves whole summers by a river glade;
 And I will tell thee stories of the sky,
 And breathe thee whispers of its minstrelsy.
 My happy love will overwing all bounds!
 O let me melt into thee; let the sounds
 Of our close voices marry at their birth;
 Let us entwine hoveringly — O dearth
 Of human words! roughness of mortal speech!
 Lispings empyrean will I sometime teach
 Thine honey'd tongue — lute-breathings which I gasp 820
 To have thee understand, now while I clasp
 Thee thus, and weep for fondness — I am pain'd.
 Endymion: woe! woe! is grief contain'd
 In the very deeps of pleasure, my sole life? —
 Hereat, with many sobs, her gentle strife
 Melted into a languor. He return'd
 Entranced vows and tears.

Ye who have yearn'd

With too much passion, will here stay and pity,
 For the mere sake of truth; as 't is a ditty
 Not of these days, but long ago 't was told 830
 By a cavern wind unto a forest old;

And then the forest told it in a dream
 To a sleeping lake, whose cool and level gleam
 A poet caught as he was journeying
 To Phœbus' shrine ; and in it he did fling
 His weary limbs, bathing an hour's space,
 And after, straight in that inspired place
 He sang the story up into the air,
 Giving it universal freedom. There
 Has it been ever sounding for those ears 840
 Whose tips are glowing hot. The legend cheers
 Yon sentinel stars ; and he who listens to it
 Must surely be self-doom'd or he will rue it :
 For quenchless burnings come upon the heart,
 Made fiercer by a fear lest any part
 Should be engulfed in the eddying wind.
 As much as here is penn'd doth always find
 A resting-place, thus much comes clear and plain ;
 Anon the strange voice is upon the wane —
 And 't is but echoed from departing sound, 850
 That the fair visitant at last unwound
 Her gentle limbs, and left the youth asleep. —
 Thus the tradition of the gusty deep.

Now turn we to our former chroniclers.
 Endymion awoke, that grief of hers
 Sweet paining on his ear : he sickly guess'd
 How lone he was once more, and sadly press'd
 His empty arms together, hung his head,
 And most forlorn upon that widow'd bed
 Sat silently. Love's madness he had known : 860
 Often with more than tortured lion's groan
 Moanings had burst from him ; but now that rage
 Had pass'd away : no longer did he wage
 A rough-voiced war against the dooming stars.
 No, he had felt too much for such harsh jars :
 The lyre of his soul Æolian tuned
 Forgot all violence, and but communed
 With melancholy thought : O he had swoon'd

Drunken from pleasure's nipple ; and his love
 Henceforth was dove-like. — Loth was he to move 870
 From the imprinted couch, and when he did,
 'T was with slow, languid paces, and face hid
 In muffling hands. So temper'd, out he stray'd
 Half seeing visions that might have dismay'd
 Alecto's serpents ; ravishments more keen
 Than Hermes' pipe, when anxious he did lean
 Over eclipsing eyes : and at the last
 It was a sounding grotto, vaulted, vast,
 O'erstudged with a thousand, thousand pearls,
 And crimson-mouthed shells with stubborn curls, 880
 Of every shape and size, even to the bulk
 In which whales harbour close, to brood and sulk
 Against an endless storm. Moreover too,
 Fish-semblances, of green and azure hue,
 Ready to snort their streams. In this cool wonder
 Endymion sat down, and 'gan to ponder
 On all his life : his youth, up to the day
 When 'mid acclaim, and feasts, and garlands gay,
 He stept upon his shepherd throne : the look
 Of his white palace in wild forest nook, 890
 And all the revels he had lorded there :
 Each tender maiden whom he once thought fair,
 With every friend and fellow-woodlander —
 Pass'd like a dream before him. Then the spur
 Of the old bards to mighty deeds : his plans
 To nurse the golden age 'mong shepherd clans :
 That wondrous night : the great Pan festival :
 His sister's sorrow ; and his wanderings all,
 Until into the earth's deep maw he rush'd :
 Then all its buried magic, till it flush'd 900
 High with excessive love. 'And now,' thought he,
 'How long must I remain in jeopardy
 Of blank amazements that amaze no more ?
 Now I have tasted her sweet soul to the core,
 All other depths are shallow ; essences,
 Once spiritual, are like muddy lees,

Meant but to fertilize my earthly root,
 And make my branches lift a golden fruit
 Into the bloom of heaven : other light,
 Though it be quick and sharp enough to blight 910
 The Olympian eagle's vision, is dark,
 Dark as the parentage of chaos. Hark !
 My silent thoughts are echoing from these shells ;
 Or they are but the ghosts, the dying swells
 Of noises far away ? — list ! ' — Hereupon
 He kept an anxious ear. The humming tone
 Came louder, and behold, there as he lay,
 On either side outgush'd, with misty spray,
 A copious spring ; and both together dash'd
 Swift, mad, fantastic round the rocks, and lash'd 920
 Among the conchs and shells of the lofty grot,
 Leaving a trickling dew. At last they shot
 Down from the ceiling's height, pouring a noise
 As of some breathless racers whose hopes poise
 Upon the last few steps, and with spent force
 Along the ground they took a winding course.
 Endymion follow'd — for it seem'd that one
 Ever pursued, the other strove to shun —
 Follow'd their languid mazes, till well nigh
 He had left thinking of the mystery, — 930
 And was now rapt in tender hoverings
 Over the vanish'd bliss. Ah ? what is it sings
 His dream away ? What melodies are these ?
 They sound as through the whispering of trees,
 Not native in such barren vaults. Give ear !

' O Arethusa, peerless nymph ! why fear
 Such tenderness as mine ? Great Dian, why,
 Why didst thou hear her prayer ? O that I
 Were rippling round her dainty fairness now,
 Circling about her waist, and striving how 940
 To entice her to a dive ! then stealing in Between her luscious lips and eyelids thin.
 O that her shining hair was in the sun,

And I distilling from it thence to run
 In amorous rillets down her shrinking form !
 To linger on her lily shoulders, warm
 Between her kissing breasts, and every charm
 Touch raptur'd ! — see how painfully I flow :
 Fair maid, be pitiful to my great woe.
 Stay, stay thy weary course, and let me lead, 950
 A happy wooer, to the flowery mead
 Where all that beauty snared me.' — 'Cruel god,
 Desist ! or my offended mistress' nod
 Will stagnate all thy fountains : — tease me not
 With siren words — Ah, have I really got
 Such power to madden thee ? And is it true —
 Away, away, or I shall dearly rue
 My very thoughts : in mercy then away,
 Kindest Alpheus, for should I obey
 My own dear will, 't would be a deadly bane.' 960
 'O, Oread-Queen ! would that thou hadst a pain
 Like this of mine, then would I fearless turn
 And be a criminal.' 'Alas, I burn,
 I shudder — gentle river, get thee hence.
 Alpheus ! thou enchanter ! every sense
 Of mine was once made perfect in these woods.
 Fresh breezes, bowery lawns, and innocent floods,
 Ripe fruits, and lonely couch, contentment gave ;
 But ever since I heedlessly did lave
 In thy deceitful stream, a panting glow 970
 Grew strong within me : wherefore serve me so,
 And call it love ? Alas ! 't was cruelty.
 Not once more did I close my happy eye
 Amid the thrush's song. Away ! avaunt !
 O 't was a cruel thing.' — 'Now thou dost taunt
 So softly, Arethusa, that I think
 If thou wast playing on my shady brink,
 Thou wouldst bathe once again. Innocent maid !
 Stifle thine heart no more ; — nor be afraid
 Of angry powers : there are deities 980
 Will shade us with their wings. Those fitful sighs

'T is almost death to hear: O let me pour
 A dewy balm upon them! — fear no more,
 Sweet Arethusa! Dian's self must feel
 Sometimes these very pangs. Dear maiden, steal
 Blushing into my soul, and let us fly
 These dreary caverns for the open sky.
 I will delight thee all my winding course,
 From the green sea up to my hidden source
 About Arcadian forests; and will show 990
 The channels where my coolest waters flow
 Through mossy rocks; where 'mid exuberant green,
 I roam in pleasant darkness, more unseen
 Than Saturn in his exile; where I brim
 Round flowery islands, and take thence a skim
 Of mealy sweets, which myriads of bees
 Buzz from their honey'd wings: and thou shouldst
 please
 Thyself to choose the richest, where we might
 Be incense-pillow'd every summer night.
 Doff all sad fears, thou white deliciousness, 1000
 And let us be thus comforted; unless
 Thou couldst rejoice to see my hopeless stream
 Hurry distracted from Sol's temperate beam,
 And pour to death along some hungry sands.' —
 'What can I do, Alpheus? Dian stands
 Severe before me: persecuting fate!
 Unhappy Arethusa! thou wast late
 A huntress free in' — At this, sudden fell
 Those two sad streams adown a fearful dell.
 The Latmian listen'd, but he heard no more, 1010
 Save echo, faint repeating o'er and o'er
 The name of Arethusa. On the verge
 Of that dark gulf he wept, and said; 'I urge
 Thee, gentle Goddess of my pilgrimage,
 By our eternal hopes, to soothe, to assuage,
 If thou art powerful, these lovers' pains;
 And make them happy in some happy plains.'

He turn'd — there was a whelming sound — he
 stept,
 There was a cooler light ; and so he kept
 Towards it by a sandy path, and lo ! 1020
 More suddenly than doth a moment go,
 The visions of the earth were gone and fled —
 He saw the giant sea above his head.

BOOK III

THERE are who lord it o'er their fellow-men
 With most prevailing tinsel : who unpen
 Their baaing vanities, to browse away
 The comfortable green and juicy hay
 From human pastures ; or, O torturing fact !
 Who, through an idiot blink, will see unpack'd
 Fire-branded foxes to sear up and singe
 Our gold and ripe-ear'd hopes. With not one tinge
 Of sanctuary splendour, not a sight
 Able to face an owl's, they still are dight 10
 By the blear-eyed nations in empurpled vests,
 And crowns, and turbans. With unladen breasts,
 Save of blown self-applause, they proudly mount
 To their spirit's perch, their being's high account,
 Their tiptop nothings, their dull skies, their thrones —
 Amid the fierce intoxicating tones
 Of trumpets, shoutings, and belabour'd drums,
 And sudden cannon. Ah ! how all this hums,
 In wakeful ears, like uproar past and gone —
 Like thunder-clouds that spake to Babylon, 20
 And set those old Chaldeans to their tasks. —
 Are then regalities all gilded masks ?
 No, there are throned seats unscalable
 But by a patient wing, a constant spell,
 Or by ethereal things that, unconfined,
 Can make a ladder of the eternal wind,

And poise about in cloudy thunder-tents
 To watch the abysm-birth of elements.
 Aye, 'bove the withering of old-lipp'd Fate
 A thousand Powers keep religious state, 30
 In water, fiery realm, and airy bourne ;
 And, silent as a consecrated urn,
 Hold spherey sessions for a season due.
 Yet few of these far majesties, ah, few !
 Have bared their operations to this globe —
 Few, who with gorgeous pageantry enrobe
 Our piece of heaven — whose benevolence
 Shakes hand with our own Ceres ; every sense
 Filling with spiritual sweets to plenitude,
 As bees gorge full their cells. And, by the feud 40
 'Twixt Nothing and Creation, I here swear,
 Eterne Apollo ! that thy Sister fair
 Is of all these the gentlier-mightiest.
 When thy gold breath is misting in the west,
 She unobserved steals unto her throne,
 And there she sits most meek and most alone ;
 As if she had not pomp subservient ;
 As if thine eye, high Poet ! was not bent
 Towards her with the Muses in thine heart ;
 As if the minist'ring stars kept not apart, 50
 Waiting for silver-footed messages.
 O Moon ! the oldest shades 'mong oldest trees
 Feel palpitations when thou lookest in :
 O Moon ! old boughs lisp forth a holier din
 The while they feel thine airy fellowship.
 Thou dost bless everywhere, with silver lip
 Kissing dead things to life. The sleeping kine,
 Couch'd in thy brightness, dream of fields divine :
 Innumerable mountains rise, and rise,
 Ambitious for the hallowing of thine eyes ; 60
 And yet thy benediction passeth not
 One obscure hiding-place, one little spot
 Where pleasure may be sent : the nested wren
 Has thy fair face within its tranquil ken,

And from beneath a sheltering ivy leaf
 Takes glimpses of thee; thou art a relief
 To the poor patient oyster, where it sleeps
 Within its pearly house. — The mighty deeps,
 The monstrous sea is thine — the myriad sea!
 O Moon! far-spooming Ocean bows to thee, 70
 And Tellus feels his forehead's cumbrous load.

Cynthia! where art thou now? What far abode
 Of green or silvery bower doth enshrine
 Such utmost beauty? Alas, thou dost pine
 For one as sorrowful: thy cheek is pale
 For one whose cheek is pale: thou dost bewail
 His tears, who weeps for thee. Where dost thou sigh?

Ah! surely that light peeps from Vesper's eye,
 Or what a thing is love! 'T is She, but lo!
 How changed, how full of ache, how gone in woe! 80

She dies at the thinnest cloud; her loveliness
 Is wan on Neptune's blue: yet there's a stress
 Of love-spangles, just off yon cape of trees,
 Dancing upon the waves, as if to please
 The curly foam with amorous influence.
 O, not so idle: for down-glancing thence,
 She fathoms eddies, and runs wild about
 O'erwhelming water-courses; scaring out
 The thorny sharks from hiding-holes, and fright-
 'ning

Their savage eyes with unaccustom'd lightning. 90
 Where will the splendour be content to reach?
 O love! how potent hast thou been to teach
 Strange journeyings! Wherever beauty dwells,
 In gulf or aerie, mountains or deep dells,
 In light, in gloom, in star or blazing sun,
 Thou pointest out the way, and straight 't is won.
 Amid his toil thou gavest Leander breath;
 Thou leddest Orpheus through the gleams of death;

Thou madest Pluto bear thin element ;
 And now, O winged Chieftain! thou hast sent 100
 A moonbeam to the deep, deep water-world,
 To find Endymion.

On gold sand impearl'd
 With lily shells, and pebbles milky white,
 Poor Cynthia greeted him, and soothed her light
 Against his pallid face: he felt the charm
 To breathlessness, and suddenly a warm
 Of his heart's blood: 't was very sweet; he stay'd
 His wandering steps, and half-entranced laid
 His head upon a tuft of straggling weeds,
 To taste the gentle moon, and freshening beads, 110
 Lash'd from the crystal roof by fishes' tails.
 And so he kept, until the rosy veils
 Mantling the east, by Aurora's peering hand
 Were lifted from the water's breast, and fann'd
 Into sweet air; and sober'd morning came
 Meekly through billows: — when like taper-flame
 Left sudden by a dallying breath of air,
 He rose in silence, and once more 'gan fare
 Along his fated way.

Far had he roam'd,
 With nothing save the hollow vast, that foam'd 120
 Above, around, and at his feet; save things
 More dead than Morpheus' imaginings:
 Old rusted anchors, helmets, breastplates large
 Of gone sea-warriors: brazen beaks and targe;
 Rudders that for a hundred years had lost
 The sway of human hand; gold vase emboss'd
 With long-forgotten story, and wherein
 No reveller had ever dipp'd a chin
 But those of Saturn's vintage; mouldering scrolls,
 Writ in the tongue of heaven, by those souls 130
 Who first were on the earth; and sculptures rude
 In ponderous stone, developing the mood

Of ancient Nox ; — then skeletons of man,
 Of beast, behemoth, and leviathan,
 And elephant, and eagle, and huge jaw
 Of nameless monster. A cold leaden awe
 These secrets struck into him ; and unless
 Dian had chased away that heaviness,
 He might have died : but now, with cheered feel,
 He onward kept ; wooing these thoughts to steal <sup>140</sup>
 About the labyrinth in his soul of love.

‘ What is there in thee, Moon ! that thou shouldst move

My heart so potently ? When yet a child
 I oft have dried my tears when thou hast smiled.
 Thou seem'dst my sister : hand in hand we went
 From eve to morn across the firmament.
 No apples would I gather from the tree,
 Till thou hadst cool'd their cheeks deliciously :
 No tumbling water ever spake romance,
 But when my eyes with thine thereon could dance :
 No woods were green enough, no bower divine, <sup>151</sup>
 Until thou liftedst up thine eyelids fine :
 In sowing-time ne'er would I dibble take,
 Or drop a seed, till thou wast wide awake ;
 And, in the summer tide of blossoming,
 No one but thee hath heard me blithely sing
 And mesh my dewy flowers all the night.
 No melody was like a passing spright
 If it went not to solemnize thy reign.
 Yes, in my boyhood, every joy and pain <sup>160</sup>
 By thee were fashion'd to the self-same end
 And as I grew in years, still didst thou blend
 With all my arduours ; thou wast the deep glen :
 Thou wast the mountain-top — the sage's pen —
 The poet's harp — the voice of friends — the sun ;
 Thou wast the river — thou wast glory won ;
 Thou wast my clarion's blast — thou wast my steed —

My goblet full of wine — my topmost deed: —
 Thou wast the charm of women, lovely Moon!
 O what a wild and harmonized tune 170
 My spirit struck from all the beautiful!
 On some bright essence could I lean, and lull
 Myself to immortality: I prest
 Nature's soft pillow in a wakeful rest.
 But gentle Orb! there came a nearer bliss —
 My strange love came — Felicity's abyss!
 She came, and thou didst fade, and fade away —
 Yet not entirely: no, thy starry sway
 Has been an under-passion to this hour.
 Now I begin to feel thine orby power 180
 Is coming fresh upon me: O be kind,
 Keep back thine influence, and do not blind
 My sovereign vision. — Dearest love, forgive
 That I can think away from thee and live! —
 Pardon me, airy planet, that I prize
 One thought beyond thine argent luxuries!
 How far beyond!' At this a surprised start
 Frosted the springing verdure of his heart;
 For as he lifted up his eyes to swear
 How his own goddess was past all things fair, 190
 He saw far in the concave green of the sea
 An old man sitting calm and peacefully.
 Upon a weeded rock this old man sat,
 And his white hair was awful, and a mat
 Of weeds were cold beneath his cold thin feet;
 And, ample as the largest winding-sheet,
 A cloak of blue wrapp'd up his aged bones,
 O'erwrought with symbols by the deepest groans
 Of ambitious magic: every ocean-form
 Was woven in with black distinctness; storm, 200
 And calm, and whispering, and hideous roar,
 Quicksand, and whirlpool, and deserted shore
 Were emblem'd in the woof; with every shape
 That skims, or dives, or sleeps, 'twixt cape and cape.

The gulping whale was like a dot in the spell,
 Yet look upon it, and 't would size and swell
 To its huge self ; and the minutest fish
 Would pass the very hardest gazer's wish,
 And show his little eye's anatomy.
 Then there was pictured the regality 210
 Of Neptune ; and the sea-nymphs round his state,
 In beauteous vassalage, look up and wait.
 Beside this old man lay a pearly wand,
 And in his lap a book, the which he conn'd
 So steadfastly, that the new denizen
 Had time to keep him in amazed ken,
 To mark these shadowings, and stand in awe.

The old man raised his hoary head and saw
 The wilder'd stranger — seeming not to see,
 His features were so lifeless. Suddenly 220
 He woke as from a trance : his snow-white brows
 Went arching up, and like two magic ploughs
 Furrow'd deep wrinkles in his forehead large,
 Which kept as fixedly as rocky marge,
 Till round his wither'd lips had gone a smile.
 Then up he rose, like one whose tedious toil
 Had watch'd for years in forlorn hermitage,
 Who had not from mid-life to utmost age
 Eased in one accent his o'erburden'd soul,
 Even to the trees. He rose : he grasp'd his stole,
 With convulsed clenches waving it abroad, 231
 And in a voice of solemn joy, that awed
 Echo into oblivion, he said : —

'Thou art the man ! Now shall I lay my head
 In peace upon my watery pillow : now
 Sleep will come smoothly to my weary brow.
 O Jove ! I shall be young again, be young !
 O shell-borne Neptune, I am pierced and stung
 With new-born life ! What shall I do ? Where go,
 When I have cast this serpent-skin of woe ? — 240

I'll swim to the sirens, and one moment listen
 Their melodies, and see their long hair glisten ;
 Anon upon that giant's arm I'll be,
 That writhes about the roots of Sicily :
 To northern seas I'll in a twinkling sail,
 And mount upon the snortings of a whale
 To some black cloud ; thence down I'll madly sweep

On forked lightning, to the deepest deep,
 Where through some sucking pool I will be hurl'd
 With rapture to the other side of the world !      250

O, I am full of gladness ! Sisters three,
 I bow full-hearted to your old decree !
 Yes, every god be thank'd, and power benign,
 For I no more shall wither, droop, and pine.
 Thou art the man !' Endymion started back
 Dismay'd ; and, like a wretch from whom the rack
 Tortures hot breath, and speech of agony,
 Mutter'd : ' What lonely death am I to die
 In this cold region ? Will he let me freeze,
 And float my brittle limbs o'er polar seas ?      260

Or will he touch me with his searing hand,
 And leave a black memorial on the sand ?
 Or tear me piecemeal with a bony saw,
 And keep me as a chosen food to draw
 His magian fish through hated fire and flame ?
 O misery of hell ! resistless, tame,
 Am I to be burnt up ? No, I will shout,
 Until the gods through heaven's blue look out !—
 O Tartarus ! but some few days ago
 Her soft arms were entwining me, and on      270

Her voice I hung like fruit among green leaves :
 Her lips were all my own, and — ah, ripe sheaves
 Of happiness ! ye on the stubble droop,
 But never may be garner'd. I must stoop
 My head, and kiss death's foot. Love ! love, farewell !

Is there no hope from thee ? This horrid spell

Would melt at thy sweet breath. — By Dian's hind
 Feeding from her white fingers, on the wind
 I see thy streaming hair! and now, by Pan,
 I care not for this old mysterious man!'

280

He spake, and walking to that aged form,
 Look'd high defiance. Lo! his heart 'gan warm
 With pity, for the gray-hair'd creature wept.
 Had he then wrong'd a heart where sorrow kept?
 Had he, though blindly contumelious, brought
 Rheum to kind eyes, a sting to human thought,
 Convulsion to a mouth of many years?
 He had in truth; and he was ripe for tears.
 The penitent shower fell, as down he knelt
 Before that care-worn sage, who trembling felt
 About his large dark locks, and faltering spake:

290

'Arise, good youth, for sacred Phœbus' sake!
 I know thine inmost bosom, and I feel
 A very brother's yearning for thee steal
 Into mine own: for why? thou openest
 The prison gates that have so long opprest
 My weary watching. Though thou know'st it not,
 Thou art commission'd to this fated spot
 For great enfranchisement. O weep no more!
 I am a friend to love, to loves of yore:
 Aye, hadst thou never loved an unknown power,
 I had been grieving at this joyous hour.
 But even now most miserable old,
 I saw thee, and my blood no longer cold
 Gave mighty pulses: in this tottering case
 Grew a new heart, which at this moment plays
 As dancingly as thine. Be not afraid,
 For thou shalt hear this secret all display'd,
 Now as we speed towards our joyous task.'

300

So saying, this young soul in age's mask
 Went forward with the Carian side by side:

310

Resuming quickly thus ; while ocean's tide
Hung swollen at their backs, and jewell'd sands
Took silently their foot-prints.

‘ My soul stands

Now past the midway from mortality,
And so I can prepare without a sigh
To tell thee briefly all my joy and pain.
I was a fisher once, upon this main,
And my boat danced in every creek and bay ;
Rough billows were my home by night and day —
The sea-gulls not more constant ; for I had 321
No housing from the storm and tempests mad,
But hollow rocks — and they were palaces
Of silent happiness, of slumberous ease:
Long years of misery have told me so.
Aye, thus it was one thousand years ago.
One thousand years ! — Is it then possible
To look so plainly through them ? to dispel
A thousand years with backward glance sublime ?
To breathe away as 't were all scummy slime 330
From off a crystal pool, to see its deep,
And one's own image from the bottom peep ?
Yes: now I am no longer wretched thrall,
My long captivity and moanings all
Are but a slime, a thin-pervading scum,
The which I breathe away, and thronging come
Like things of yesterday my youthful pleasures:

‘ I touch'd no lute, I sang not, trod no measures :
I was a lonely youth on desert shores.
My sports were lonely, 'mid continuous roars, 340
And craggy isles, and sea-mew's plaintive cry —
Plaining discrepant between sea and sky.
Dolphins were still my playmates ; shapes unseen
Would let me feel their scales of gold and green,
Nor be my desolation; and, full oft,
When a dread waterspout had rear'd aloft

Its hungry hugeness, seeming ready ripe
 To burst with hoarsest thunderings, and wipe
 My life away like a vast sponge of fate,
 Some friendly monster, pitying my sad state,
 Has dived to its foundations, gulf'd it down, 350
 And left me tossing safely. But the crown
 Of all my life was utmost quietude :
 More did I love to lie in cavern rude,
 Keeping in wait whole days for Neptune's voice,
 And if it came at last, hark, and rejoice !
 There blush'd no summer eve but I would steer
 My skiff along green shelving coasts, to hear
 The shepherd's pipe come clear from aery steep,
 Mingled with ceaseless bleatings of his sheep : 360
 And never was a day of summer shine,
 But I beheld its birth upon the brine :
 For I would watch all night to see unfold
 Heaven's gates, and Æthon snort his morning gold
 Wide o'er the swelling streams: and constantly
 At brim of day-tide on some grassy lea,
 My nets would be spread out, and I at rest.
 The poor folk of the sea-country I blest
 With daily boon of fish most delicate :
 They knew not whence this bounty, and elate 370
 Would strew sweet flowers on a sterile beach.

' Why was I not contented ? Wherefore reach
 At things which, but for thee, O Latmian !
 Had been my dreary death ? Fool ! I began
 To feel distemper'd longings : to desire ●
 The utmost privilege that ocean's sire
 Could grant in benediction : to be free
 Of all his kingdom. Long in misery
 I wasted, ere in one extremest fit
 I plunged for life or death. To interknit 380
 One's senses with so dense a breathing stuff
 Might seem a work of pain ; so not enough
 Can I admire how crystal-smooth it felt,

And buoyant round my limbs. At first I dwelt
 Whole days and days in sheer astonishment ;
 Forgetful utterly of self-intent ;
 Moving but with the mighty ebb and flow.
 Then, like a new-fledged bird that first doth show
 His spreaded feathers to the morrow chill,
 I tried in fear the pinions of my will. 390
 'T was freedom ! and at once I visited
 The ceaseless wonders of this ocean-bed.
 No need to tell thee of them, for I see
 That thou hast been a witness — it must be
 For these I know thou canst not feel a drouth,
 By the melancholy corners of that mouth.
 So I will in my story straightway pass
 To more immediate matter. Woe, alas !
 That love should be my bane ! Ah, Scylla fair !
 Why did poor Glaucus ever — ever dare 400
 To sue thee to his heart ? Kind stranger-youth !
 I loved her to the very white of truth,
 And she would not conceive it. Timid thing !
 She fled me swift as sea-bird on the wing,
 Round every isle, and point, and promontory,
 From where large Hercules wound up his story
 Far as Egyptian Nile. My passion grew
 The more, the more I saw her dainty hue
 Gleam delicately through the azure clear :
 Until 'twas too fierce agony to bear ; 410
 And in that agony, across my grief
 It flash'd, that Circe might find some relief —
 Cruel enchantress ! So above the water
 I rear'd my head, and look'd for Phœbus' daughter.
 Ææa's isle was wondering at the moon : —
 It seem'd to whirl around me, and a swoon
 Left me dead-drifting to that fatal power.

' When I awoke, 't was in a twilight bower ;
 Just when the light of morn, with hum of bees,
 Stole through its verdurous matting of fresh trees. 420

How sweet, and sweeter! for I heard a lyre,
 And over it a sighing voice expire.
 It ceased — I caught light footsteps; and anon
 The fairest face that morn e'er look'd upon
 Push'd through a screen of roses. Starry Jove!
 With tears, and smiles, and honey-words she wove
 A net whose thralldom was more bliss than all
 The range of flower'd Elysium. Thus did fall
 The dew of her rich speech: "Ah! art awake?
 O let me hear thee speak, for Cupid's sake! 430
 I am so oppress'd with joy! Why, I have shed
 An urn of tears, as though thou wert cold dead;
 And now I find thee living, I will pour
 From these devoted eyes their silver store,
 Until exhausted of the latest drop,
 So it will pleasure thee, and force thee stop
 Here, that I too may live: but if beyond
 Such cool and sorrowful offerings, thou art fond
 Of soothing warmth, of dalliance supreme;
 If thou art ripe to taste a long love-dream; 440
 If smiles, if dimples, tongues for ardour mute,
 Hang in thy vision like a tempting fruit,
 O let me pluck it for thee!" Thus she link'd
 Her charming syllables, till indistinct
 Their music came to my o'er-sweeten'd soul;
 And then she hover'd over me, and stole
 So near, that if no nearer it had been
 This furrow'd visage thou hadst never seen.

'Young man of Latmos! thus particular
 Am I, that thou may'st plainly see how far 450
 This fierce temptation went: and thou may'st not Exclaim, How, then, was Scylla quite forgot?

'Who could resist? Who in this universe?
 She did so breathe ambrosia; so immerse
 My fine existence in a golden clime.
 She took me like a child of suckling time,

And cradled me in roses. Thus condemn'd,
 The current of my former life was stemm'd,
 And to this arbitrary queen of sense
 I bow'd a tranced vassal : nor would thence 460
 Have moved, even though Amphion's harp had woo'd

Me back to Scylla o'er the billows rude.
 For as Apollo each eve doth devise
 A new apparelling for western skies ;
 So every eve, nay, every spendthrift hour
 Shed balmy consciousness within that bower.
 And I was free of haunts umbrageous ;
 Could wander in the mazy forest-house
 Of squirrels, foxes shy, and antler'd deer,
 And birds from coverts innermost and drear 470
 Warbling for very joy mellifluous sorrow —
 To me new-born delights !

‘Now let me borrow,
 For moments few, a temperament as stern
 As Pluto's sceptre, that my words not burn
 These uttering lips, while I in calm speech tell
 How specious heaven was changed to real hell.

‘One morn she left me sleeping ; half awake
 I sought for her smooth arms and lips, to slake
 My greedy thirst with nectarous camel-draughts ;
 But she was gone. Whereat the barbed shafts 480
 Of disappointment stuck in me so sore,
 That out I ran and search'd the forest o'er.
 Wandering about in pine and cedar gloom
 Damp awe assail'd me ; for there 'gan to boom
 A sound of moan, an agony of sound,
 Sepulchral from the distance all around.
 Then came a conquering earth-thunder, and rumbled
 That fierce complain to silence : while I stumbled
 Down a precipitous path, as if impell'd.
 I came to a dark valley. — Groanings swell'd 490

Poisonous about my ears, and louder grew,
 The nearer I approach'd a flame's gaunt blue,
 That glared before me through a thorny brake.
 This fire, like the eye of gordian snake,
 Bewitch'd me towards; and I soon was near
 A sight too fearful for the feel of fear :
 In thicket hid I cursed the haggard scene —
 The banquet of my arms, my harbour queen,
 Seated upon an uptorn forest root ;
 And all around her shapes, wizard and brute, 500
 Laughing, and wailing, grovelling, serpentine,
 Showing tooth, tusk, and venom-bag, and sting !
 O such deformities ! old Charon's self,
 Should he give up awhile his penny pelf,
 And take a dream 'mong rushes Stygian,
 It could not be so' fantasied. Fierce, wan,
 And tyrannizing was the lady's look,
 As over them a gnarled staff she shook.
 Ofttimes upon the sudden she laugh'd out,
 And from a basket emptied to the rout 510
 Clusters of grapes, the which they raven'd quick
 And roar'd for more ; with many a hungry lick
 About their shaggy jaws. Avenging, slow,
 Anon she took a branch of mistletoe,
 And emptied on 't a black dull-gurgling phial :
 Groan'd one and all, as if some piercing trial
 Was sharpening for their pitiable bones.
 She lifted up the charm : appealing groans
 From their poor breasts went sueing to her ear
 In vain ; remorseless as an infant's bier 520
 She whisk'd against their eyes the sooty oil.
 Whereat was heard a noise of painful toil,
 Increasing gradual to a tempest rage,
 Shrieks, yells, and groans of torture-pilgrimage ;
 Until their griev'd bodies 'gan to bloat
 And puff from the tail's end to stifled throat :
 Then was appalling silence : then a sight
 More wildering than all that hoarse affright ;

For the whole herd, as by a whirlwind writhen,
 Went through the dismal air like one huge Python
 Antagonizing Boreas, — and so vanish'd. 531
 Yet there was not a breath of wind: she banish'd
 These phantoms with a nod. Lo! from the dark
 Came waggish fauns, and nymphs, and satyrs stark,
 With dancing and loud revelry, — and went
 Swifter than centaurs after rapine bent. —
 Sighing an elephant appear'd and bow'd
 Before the fierce witch, speaking thus aloud
 In human accent: "Potent goddess! chief
 Of pains resistless! make my being brief, 540
 Or let me from this heavy prison fly:
 Or give me to the air, or let me die!
 I sue not for my happy crown again;
 I sue not for my phalanx on the plain;
 I sue not for my lone, my widow'd wife:
 I sue not for my ruddy drops of life,
 My children fair, my lovely girls and boys!
 I will forget them; I will pass these joys;
 Ask nought so heavenward, so too — too high:
 Only I pray, as fairest boon, to die, 550
 Or be deliver'd from this cumbrous flesh,
 From this gross, detestable, filthy mesh,
 And merely given to the cold bleak air.
 Have mercy, Goddess! Circe, feel my prayer!"

'That curst magician's name fell icy numb
 Upon my wild conjecturing: truth had come
 Naked and sabre-like against my heart.
 I saw a fury whetting a death-dart;
 And my slain spirit, overwrought with fright,
 Fainted away in that dark lair of night. 560
 Think, my deliverer, how desolate
 My waking must have been! disgust, and hate,
 And terrors manifold divided me
 A spoil amongst them. I prepared to flee
 Into the dungeon core of that wild wood:

I fled three days — when lo ! before me stood
 Glaring the angry witch. O Dis, even now,
 A clammy dew is beading on my brow,
 At mere remembering her pale laugh, and curse.
 “ Ha ! ha ! Sir Dainty ! there must be a nurse 570
 Made of rose-leaves and thistle-down, express,
 To cradle thee my sweet, and lull thee : yes,
 I am too flinty-hard for thy nice touch :
 My tenderest squeeze is but a giant’s clutch
 So, fairy-thing, it shall have lullabies
 Unheard of yet ; and it shall still its cries
 Upon some breast more lily-feminine.
 Oh, no — it shall not pine, and pine, and pine
 More than one pretty, trifling thousand years ;
 And then ’t were pity, but fate’s gentle shears 580
 Cut short its immortality. Sea-flirt !
 Young dove of the waters ! truly I’ll not hurt
 One hair of thine : see how I weep and sigh,
 That our heart-broken parting is so nigh.
 And must we part ? Ah, yes, it must be so.
 Yet ere thou leavest me in utter woe,
 Let me sob over thee my last adieus,
 And speak a blessing : Mark me ! thou hast thews
 Immortal, for thou art of heavenly race :
 But such a love is mine, that here I chase 590
 Eternally away from thee all bloom
 Of youth, and destine thee towards a tomb.
 Hence shalt thou quickly to the watery vast ;
 And there, ere many days be overpast,
 Disabled age shall seize thee ; and even then
 Thou shalt not go the way of aged men ;
 But live and wither, cripple and still breathe
 Ten hundred years : which gone, I then bequeath
 Thy fragile bones to unknown burial.
 Adieu, sweet love, adieu ! ” — As shot stars fall, 600
 She fled ere I could groan for mercy. Stung
 And poisoned was my spirit : despair sung
 A war-song of defiance ’gainst all hell.

A hand was at my shoulder to compel
 My sullen steps ; another 'fore my eyes
 Moved on with pointed finger. In this guise
 Enforced, at the last by ocean's foam
 I found me ; by my fresh, my native home.
 Its tempering coolness, to my life akin,
 Came salutary as I waded in ; 610
 And with a blind voluptuous rage, I gave Battle to the swollen billow-ridge, and drave
 Large froth before me, while yet there remain'd
 Hale strength, nor from my bones all marrow drain'd.

'Young lover, I must weep — such hellish spite
 With dry cheek who can tell ? While thus my night

Proving upon this element, dismay'd,
 Upon a dead thing's face my hand I laid ;
 I look'd — 't was Scylla ! Cursed, cursed Circe !
 O vulture-witch, hast never heard of mercy ? 620
 Could not thy harshest vengeance be content,
 But thou must nip this tender innocent
 Because I lov'd her ? — Cold, O cold indeed
 Were her fair limbs, and like a common weed
 The sea-swell took her hair. Dead as she was
 I clung about her waist, nor ceased to pass
 Fleet as an arrow through unfathom'd brine,
 Until there shone a fabric crystalline,
 Ribb'd and inlaid with coral, pebble, and pearl.
 Headlong I darted : at one eager swirl 630
 Gain'd its bright portal, enter'd, and behold !
 'T was vast, and desolate, and icy-cold ;
 And all around — But wherefore this to thee
 Who in few minutes more thyself shalt see ? —
 I left poor Scylla in a niche and fled.
 My fever'd parchings up, my scathing dread
 Met palsy half way : soon these limbs became Gaunt, wither'd, sapless, feeble, cramp'd, and lame.

' Now let me pass a cruel, cruel space,
 Without one hope, without one faintest trace 640
 Of mitigation, or redeeming bubble
 Of colour'd phantasy : for I fear 't would trouble
 Thy brain to loss of reason : and next tell
 How a restoring chance came down to quell
 One half of the witch in me.

' On a day,
 Sitting upon a rock above the spray,
 I saw grow up from the horizon's brink
 A gallant vessel : soon she seem'd to sink
 Away from me again, as though her course
 Had been resumed in spite of hindering force — 650
 So vanish'd : and not long, before arose
 Dark clouds, and muttering of winds morose.
 Old Æolus would stifle his mad spleen,
 But could not ; therefore, all the billows green
 Toss'd up the silver spume against the clouds.
 The tempest came : I saw that vessel's shrouds
 In perilous bustle ; while upon the deck
 Stood trembling creatures. I beheld the wreck ;
 The final gulping ; the poor struggling souls ;
 I heard their cries amid loud thunder-rolls. 660
 O they had all been saved but crazed eld
 Annull'd my vigorous cravings ; and thus quell'd
 And curb'd, think on 't, O Latmian ! did I sit
 Writhing with pity, and a cursing fit
 Against that hell-born Circe. The crew had gone
 By one and one, to pale oblivion ;
 And I was gazing on the surges prone,
 With many a scalding tear, and many a groan,
 When at my feet emerged an old man's hand,
 Grasping this scroll, and this same slender wand. 670
 I knelt with pain — reach'd out my hand — had grasp'd
 These treasures — touch'd the knuckles — they un-clasp'd —

I caught a finger ; but the downward weight
 O'erpower'd me — it sank. Then 'gan abate
 The storm, and through chill aguish gloom outburst

The comfortable sun. I was athirst
 To search the book, and in the warming air
 Parted its dripping leaves with eager care.
 Strange matters did it treat of, and drew on
 My soul page after page, till well nigh won 680
 Into forgetfulness ; when, stupefied,
 I read these words, and read again, and tried
 My eyes against the heavens, and read again.
 O what a load of misery and pain
 Each Atlas-line bore off ! — a shine of hope
 Came gold around me, cheering me to cope
 Strenuous with hellish tyranny. Attend !
 For thou hast brought their promise to an end.'

*In the wide sea there lives a forlorn wretch,
 Doom'd with enfeebled carcass to outstretch 690
 His loath'd existence through ten centuries,
 And then to die alone. Who can devise
 A total opposition ? No one. So
 One million times ocean must ebb and flow,
 And he oppressed. Yet he shall not die,
 These things accomplish'd : — If he utterly
 Scans all the depths of magic, and expounds
 The meanings of all motions, shapes, and sounds ;
 If he explores all forms and substances
 Straight homeward to their symbol-essences ; 700
 He shall not die. Moreover, and in chief,
 He must pursue this task of joy and grief
 Most piously ; — all lovers tempest-tost,
 And in the savage overwhelming lost,
 He shall deposit side by side, until
 Time's creeping shall the dreary space fulfil :
 Which done, and all these labours ripened,
 A youth, by heavenly power loved and led,*

*Shall stand before him ; whom he shall direct
How to consummate all. The youth elect* 710
Must do the thing, or both will be destroy'd. —

‘ Then, ’ cried the young Endymion, overjoy’d,
‘ We are twin brothers in this destiny !
Say, I entreat thee, what achievement high
Is, in this restless world, for me reserved.
What ! if from thee my wandering feet had swerved,
Had we both perish’d ? ’ — ‘ Look ! ’ the sage replied,
‘ Dost thou not mark a gleaming through the tide,
Of divers brilliances ? ’ t is the edifice
I told thee of, where lovely Scylla lies ; 720
And where I have enshrined piously
All lovers, whom fell storms have doom’d to die
Throughout my bondage.’ Thus discoursing, on
They went till unobscured the porches shone ;
Which hurryingly they gain’d, and enter’d straight.
Sure never since king Neptune held his state
Was seen such wonder underneath the stars.
Turn to some level plain where haughty Mars
Has legion’d all his battle ; and behold
How every soldier, with firm foot, doth hold 730
His even breast : see, many steeled squares,
And rigid ranks of iron — whence who dares
One step ? Imagine further, line by line,
These warrior thousands on the field supine ; —
So in that crystal place, in silent rows,
Poor lovers lay at rest from joys and woes. —
The stranger from the mountains, breathless, traced
Such thousands of shut eyes in order placed ;
Such ranges of white feet, and patient lips
All ruddy, — for here death no blossom nips, 740
He mark’d their brows and foreheads ; saw their hair
Put sleekly on one side with nicest care ;
And each one’s gentle wrists, with reverence,
Put cross-wise to its heart.

‘ Let us commence,’

Whisper’d the guide, stuttering with joy, ‘ even now.’

He spake, and, trembling like an aspen-bough,
Began to tear his scroll in pieces small,
Uttering the while some mumblings funeral.

He tore it into pieces small as snow

That drifts unfeather’d when bleak northerns blow ;

And having done it, took his dark blue cloak 751

And bound it round Endymion : then struck

His wand against the empty air times nine. —

‘ What more there is to do, young man, is thine :

But first a little patience ; first undo

This tangled thread, and wind it to a clue.

Ah, gentle ! ’t is as weak as spider’s skein ;

And shouldst thou break it — What, is it done so clean ?

A power overshadows thee ! Oh, brave !

The spite of hell is tumbling to its grave. 760

Here is a shell ; ’t is pearly blank to me,

Nor mark’d with any sign or character —

Canst thou read aught ? O read for pity’s sake !

Olympus ! we are safe ! Now, Carian, break

This wand against yon lyre on the pedestal.’

’T was done : and straight with sudden swell and fall

Sweet music breathed her soul away, and sigh’d

A lullaby to silence. — ‘ Youth ! now strew

These minced leaves on me, and passing through

Those files of dead, scatter the same around, 770

And thou wilt see the issue.’ — ‘ Mid the sound

Of flutes and viols, ravishing his heart,

Endymion from Glaucus stood apart,

And scatter’d in his face some fragments light.

How lightning-swift the change ! a youthful wight

Smiling beneath a coral diadem,

Out-sparkling sudden like an upturn’d gem,

Appear'd, and, stepping to a beauteous corse,
 Kneel'd down beside it, and with tenderest force
 Press'd its cold hand, and wept, — and Scylla
 sigh'd! 780

Endymion, with quick hand, the charm applied —
 The nymph arose : he left them to their joy,
 And onward went upon his high employ,
 Showering those powerful fragments on the dead.
 And, as he pass'd, each lifted up its head,
 As doth a flower at Apollo's touch.

Death felt it to his inwards : 't was too much :
 Death fell a-weeping in his charnel-house.

The Latmian persevered along, and thus
 All were reanimated. There arose 790

A noise of harmony, pulses and throes
 Of gladness in the air — while many, who
 Had died in mutual arms devout and true,
 Sprang to each other madly ; and the rest
 Felt a high certainty of being blest.

They gazed upon Endymion. Enchantment
 Grew drunken, and would have its head and bent.

Delicious symphonies, like airy flowers,
 Budded, and swell'd, and, full-blown, shed full showers

Of light, soft, unseen leaves of sounds divine. 800

The two deliverers tasted a pure wine
 Of happiness, from fairy press oozed out.
 Speechless they eyed each other, and about
 The fair assembly wandered to and fro,
 Distracted with the richest overflow
 Of joy that ever pour'd from heav'n.

— 'Away!'

Shouted the new born god ; 'Follow, and pay
 Our piety to Neptunus supreme !' —

Then Scylla, blushing sweetly from her dream,

They led on first, bent to her meek surprise, 810

Through portal columns of a giant size

Into the vaulted, boundless emerald.
 Joyous all follow'd, as the leader call'd,
 Down marble steps; pouring as easily
 As hour-glass sand — and fast, as you might see
 Swallows obeying the south summer's call,
 Or swans upon a gentle waterfall.

Thus went that beautiful multitude, nor far,
 Ere from among some rocks of glittering spar,
 Just within ken, they saw descending thick 820
 Another multitude. Whereat more quick
 Moved either host. On a wide sand they met,
 And of those numbers every eye was wet;
 For each their old love found. A murmuring rose,
 Like what was never heard in all the throes
 Of wind and waters: 't is past human wit
 To tell; 't is dizziness to think of it.

This mighty consummation made, the host
 Moved on for many a league; and gain'd and lost
 Huge sea-marks; vanward swelling in array, 830
 And from the rear diminishing away, —
 Till a faint dawn surprised them. Glaucus cried,
 'Behold! behold, the palace of his pride!
 God Neptune's palaces.' With noise increased,
 They shoulder'd on towards that brightening east.
 At every onward step proud domes arose
 In prospect, — diamond gleams and golden glows
 Of amber 'gainst their faces levelling.
 Joyous, and many as the leaves in spring,
 Still onward; still the splendour gradual swell'd. 840
 Rich opal domes were seen, on high upheld
 By jasper pillars, letting through their shafts
 A blush of coral. Copious wonder-draughts
 Each gazer drank; and deeper drank more near:
 For what poor mortals fragment up, as mere
 As marble was there lavish, to the vast
 Of one fair palace, that far, far surpass'd,

Even for common bulk, those olden three,
Memphis, and Babylon, and Nineveh.

As large, as bright, as colour'd as the bow 850
Of Iris, when unfading it doth show
Beyond a silvery shower, was the arch
Through which this Paphian army took its march,
Into the outer courts of Neptune's state :
Whence could be seen, direct, a golden gate,
To which the leaders sped ; but not half raught
Ere it burst open swift as fairy thought,
And made those dazzled thousands veil their eyes
Like callow eagles at the first sunrise.
Soon with an eagle nativeness their gaze 860
Ripe from hue-golden swoons took all the blaze,
And then, behold ! large Neptune on his throne
Of emerald deep : yet not exalt alone ;
At his right hand stood winged Love, and on
His left sat smiling Beauty's paragon.

Far as the mariner on highest mast
Can see all round upon the calmed vast,
So wide was Neptune's hall : and as the blue
Doth vault the waters, so the waters drew
Their doming curtains, high, magnificent, 870
Awed from the throne aloof ;—and when storm rent
Disclosed the thunder-gloomings in Jove's air ;
But soothed as now, flash'd sudden everywhere,
Noiseless, sub-marine cloudlets, glittering
Death to a human eye : for there did spring
From natural west, and east, and south, and north,
A light as of four sunsets, blazing forth
A gold-green zenith 'bove the Sea-God's head.
Of lucid depth the floor, and far outspread
As breezeless lake, on which the slim canoe 880
Of feather'd Indian darts about, as through

The delicatest air : air verily,
 But for the portraiture of clouds and sky :
 This palace floor breath-air, — but for the amaze
 Of deep-seen wonders motionless, — and blaze
 Of the dome pomp, reflected in extremes,
 Globing a golden sphere.

They stood in dreams

Till Triton blew his horn. The palace rang ;
 The Nereids danced ; the Sirens faintly sang ;
 And the great Sea-King bow'd his dripping head.
 Then Love took wing, and from his pinions shed 891
 On all the multitude a nectarous dew.

The ooze-born Goddess beckoned and drew
 Fair Scylla and her guides to conference ;
 And when they reach'd the throned eminence
 She kiss'd the sea-nymph's cheek, — who sat her
 down

A-toying with the doves. Then, — ' Mighty crown
 And sceptre of this kingdom ! ' Venus said,
 ' Thy vows were on a time to Nais paid :
 Behold ! ' — Two copious tear-drops instant fell 900
 From the God's large eyes ; he smiled delectable.
 And over Glaucus held his blessing hands. —
 ' Endymion ! Ah ! still wandering in the bands
 Of love ? Now this is cruel. Since the hour
 I met thee in earth's bosom, all my power
 Have I put forth to serve thee. What, not yet
 Escaped from dull mortality's harsh net ?
 A little patience, youth ! 't will not be long,
 Or I am skillless quite : an idle tongue,
 A humid eye, and steps luxurious, 910
 Where these are new and strange, are ominous.
 Aye, I have seen these signs in one of heaven,
 When others were all blind ; and were I given
 To utter secrets, haply I might say
 Some pleasant words : — but Love will have his day.

So wait awhile expectant. Pr'ythee soon,
 Even in the passing of thine honey-moon,
 Visit thou my Cytherea : thou wilt find
 Cupid well-natured, my Adonis kind ;
 And pray persuade with thee — Ah, I have done,
 All blisses be upon thee, my sweet son !' — 921
 Thus the fair goddess : while Endymion
 Knelt to receive those accents halcyon.

Meantime a glorious revelry began
 Before the water-monarch. Nectar ran
 In courteous fountains to all cups out-reach'd ;
 And plunder'd vines, teeming exhaustless, pleach'd
 New growth about each shell and pendent lyre ;
 The which, in disentangling for their fire,
 Pull'd down fresh foliage and coverture 930
 For dainty toying. Cupid, empire-sure,
 Flutter'd and laugh'd, and oft-times through the throng
 Made a delighted way. Then dance, and song,
 And garlanding, grew wild ; and pleasure reign'd.
 In harmless tendril they each other chain'd,
 And strove who should be smother'd deepest in Fresh crush of leaves.

O 't is a very sin
 For one so weak to venture his poor verse
 In such a place as this. O do not curse,
 High Muses ! let him hurry to the ending. 940

All suddenly were silent. A soft blending
 Of dulcet instruments came charmingly ;
 And then a hymn.

'King of the stormy sea !
 Brother of Jove, and co-inheritor
 Of elements ! Eternally before
 Thee the waves awful bow. Fast, stubborn rock,

At thy fear'd trident shrinking, doth unlock
 Its deep foundations, hissing into foam.
 All mountain-rivers, lost in the wide home
 Of thy capacious bosom, ever flow. 950
 Thou frownest, and old Æolus thy foe
 Skulks to his cavern, 'mid the gruff complaint
 Of all his rebel tempests. Dark clouds faint
 When, from thy diadem, a silver gleam
 Slants over blue dominion. Thy bright team
 Gulfs in the morning light, and scuds along
 To bring thee nearer to that golden song
 Apollo singeth, while his chariot
 Waits at the doors of heaven. Thou art not
 For scenes like this: an empire stern hast thou; 960
 And it hath furrow'd that large front: yet now,
 As newly come of heaven, dost thou sit
 To blend and interknit
 Subdued majesty with this glad time.
 O shell-borne King sublime!
 We lay our hearts before thee evermore—
 We sing, and we adore!

'Breathe softly, flutes;
 Be tender of your strings, ye soothing lutes;
 Nor be the trumpet heard! O vain, O vain; 970
 Not flowers budding in an April rain,
 Nor breath of sleeping dove, nor river's flow, —
 No, nor the Æolian twang of Love's own bow,
 Can mingle music fit for the soft ear
 Of goddess Cytherea!
 Yet deign, white Queen of Beauty, thy fair eyes
 On our soul's sacrifice.

'Bright-winged Child!
 Who has another care when thou hast smiled?
 Unfortunates on earth, we see at last 980
 All death-shadows, and glooms that overcast
 Our spirits, fann'd away by thy light pinions.

O sweetest essence! sweetest of all minions!
 God of warm pulses, and dishevell'd hair,
 And panting bosoms bare!
 Dear unseen light in darkness! eclipser
 Of light in light! delicious poisoner!
 Thy venom'd goblet will we quaff until
 We fill — we fill!
 And by thy Mother's lips ——'

Was heard no more

For clamour, when the golden palace door
 Open'd again, and from without, in shone
 A new magnificence. On oozy throne
 Smooth-moving came Oceanus the old,
 To take a latest glimpse at his sheepfold,
 Before he went into his quiet cave
 To muse for ever — Then a lucid wave,
 Scoop'd from its trembling sisters of mid-sea,
 Afloat, and pillowing up the majesty
 Of Doris, and the Ægean seer, her spouse — 1000
 Next, on a dolphin, clad in laurel boughs,
 Theban Amphion leaning on his lute:
 His fingers went across it — All were mute
 To gaze on Amphitrite, queen of pearls,
 And Thetis pearly too. —

The palace whirls

Around giddy Endymion; seeing he
 Was there far strayed from mortality.
 He could not bear it — shut his eyes in vain;
 Imagination gave a dizzier pain.
 'O I shall die! sweet Venus, be my stay! 1010
 Where is my lovely mistress? Wellaway!
 I die — I hear her voice — I feel my wing' —
 At Neptune's feet he sank. A sudden ring' —
 Of Nereids were about him, in kind strife
 To usher back his spirit into life:
 But still he slept. At last they interwove

Their cradling arms, and purposed to convey Towards a crystal bower far away.

Lo! while slow carried through the pitying crowd,
To his inward senses these words spake aloud ; 1020
Written in starlight on the dark above :
*' Dearest Endymion ! my entire love !
How have I dwelt in fear of fate ; 't is done —
Immortal bliss for me too hast thou won.
Arise then ! for the hen-dove shall not hatch
Her ready eggs, before I'll kissing snatch
Thee into endless heaven. Awake ! awake !'*

The youth at once arose : a placid lake
Came quiet to his eyes ; and forest green,
Cooler than all the wonders he had seen, 1030
Lull'd with its simple song his fluttering breast.
How happy once again in grassy nest !

BOOK IV

MUSE of my native land ! loftiest Muse !
O first-born on the mountains ! by the hues
Of heaven on the spiritual air begot :
Long didst thou sit alone in northern grot,
While yet our England was a wolfish den ;
Before our forests heard the talk of men ;
Before the first of Druids was a child : —
Long didst thou sit amid our regions wild,
Rapt in a deep prophetic solitude.
There came an eastern voice of solemn mood : — 10
Yet wast thou patient. Then sang forth the Nine,
Apollo's garland : — yet didst thou divine
Such home-bred glory, that they cried in vain,
' Come hither, Sister of the Island !' Plain
Spake fair Ausonia ; and once more she spake
A higher summons : — still didst thou betake

Thee to thy native hopes. O thou hast won
 A full accomplishment ! The thing is done,
 Which undone, these our latter days had risen
 On barren souls. Great Muse, thou know'st what prison

20

Of flesh and bone, curbs, and confines, and frets
 Our spirits' wings : despondency besets
 Our pillows ; and the fresh to-morrow morn
 Seems to give forth its light in very scorn
 Of our dull, uninspired, snail-paced lives.
 Long have I said, how happy he who shrives
 To thee ! But then I thought on poets gone,
 And could not pray : — nor can I now — so on
 I move to the end in lowliness of heart. —

' Ah, woe is me ! that I should fondly part 30
 From my dear native land ! Ah, foolish maid !
 Glad was the hour, when, with thee, myriads bade
 Adieu to Ganges and their pleasant fields !
 To one so friendless the clear freshet yields
 A bitter coolness ; the ripe grape is sour :
 Yet I would have, great gods ! but one short hour
 Of native air — let me but die at home.'

Endymion to heaven's airy dome
 Was offering up a hecatomb of vows,
 When these words reach'd him. Whereupon he bows

40

His head through thorny-green entanglement
 Of underwood, and to the sound is bent,
 Anxious as hind towards her hidden fawn.

' Is no one near to help me ? No fair dawn
 Of life from charitable voice ? No sweet saying
 To set my dull and sadden'd spirit playing ?
 No hand to toy with mine ? No lips so sweet
 That I may worship them ? No eyelids meet
 To twinkle on my bosom ? No one dies

Before me, till from these enslaving eyes                   50
Redemption sparkles! — I am sad and lost.'

Thou, Carian lord, hadst better have been tost
Into a whirlpool. Vanish into air,
Warm mountaineer! for canst thou only bear
A woman's sigh alone and in distress?
See not her charms! Is Phœbe passionless?
Phœbe is fairer far — O gaze no more: —
Yet if thou wilt behold all beauty's store,
Behold her panting in the forest grass!
Do not those curls of glossy jet surpass                   60
For tenderness the arms so idly lain
Amongst them? Feelest not a kindred pain,
To see such lovely eyes in swimming search
After some warm delight, that seems to perch
Dovelike in the dim cell lying beyond
Their upper lids? — Hist!

' O for Hermes' wand,
To touch this flower into human shape!
That woodland Hyacinthus could escape
From his green prison, and here kneeling down
Call me his queen, his second life's fair crown!           70
Ah me, how I could love! — My soul doth melt
For the unhappy youth — Love! I have felt
So faint a kindness, such a meek surrender
To what my own full thoughts had made too tender,
That but for tears my life had fled away!
Ye deaf and senseless minutes of the day,
And thou, old forest, hold ye this for true,
There is no lightning, no authentic dew
But in the eye of love: there's not a sound,
Melodious howsoever, can confound                   80
The heavens and earth in one to such a death
As doth the voice of love: there's not a breath
Will mingle kindly with the meadow air,
Till it has panted round, and stolen a share
Of passion from the heart! —

Upon a bough

He leant, wretched. He surely cannot now
 Thirst for another love: O impious,
 That he can even dream upon it thus! —
 Thought he, 'Why am I not as are the dead,
 Since to a woe like this I have been led 90
 Through the dark earth, and through the wondrous sea ?

Goddess! I love thee not the less: from thee
 By Juno's smile I turn not — no, no, no —
 While the great waters are at ebb and flow. —
 I have a triple soul! O fond pretence —
 For both, for both my love is so immense,
 I feel my heart is cut for them in twain.'

And so he groan'd, as one by beauty slain.
 The lady's heart beat quick, and he could see
 Her gentle bosom heave tumultuously. 100
 He sprang from his green covert: there she lay,
 Sweet as a musk-rose upon new-made hay;
 With all her limbs on tremble, and her eyes
 Shut softly up alive. To speak he tries:
 'Fair damsel, pity me! forgive that I
 Thus violate thy bower's sanctity!
 O pardon me, for I am full of grief —
 Grief born of thee, young angel! fairest thief!
 Who stolen hast away the wings wherewith
 I was to top the heavens. Dear maid, sith 110
 Thou art my executioner, and I feel
 Loving and hatred, misery and weal,
 Will in a few short hours be nothing to me,
 And all my story that much passion slew me;
 Do smile upon the evening of my days;
 And, for my tortured brain begins to craze,
 Be thou my nurse; and let me understand
 How dying I shall kiss that lily hand. —
 Dost weep for me? Then should I be content.
 Scowl on, ye fates! until the firmament 120

Outblackens Erebus, and the full-cavern'd earth
 Crumbles into itself. By the cloud-girth
 Of Jove, those tears have given me a thirst
 To meet oblivion.' — As her heart would burst
 The maiden sobb'd awhile, and then replied :
 ' Why must such desolation betide
 As that thou speakest of ? Are not these green nooks

Empty of all misfortune ? Do the brooks
 Utter a gorgon voice ? Does yonder thrush,
 Schooling its half-fledged little ones to brush 130
 About the dewy forest, whisper tales ? —
 Speak not of grief, young stranger, or cold snails
 Will slime the rose to-night. Though if thou wilt,
 Methinks 't would be a guilt — a very guilt —
 Not to companion thee, and sigh away
 The light — the dusk — the dark — till break of day !'

' Dear lady,' said Endymion, ' 't is past :
 I love thee ! and my days can never last.
 That I may pass in patience still speak :
 Let me have music dying, and I seek 140
 No more delight — I bid adieu to all.
 Didst thou not after other climates call,
 And murmur about Indian streams ?' — Then she,
 Sitting beneath the midmost forest tree,
 For pity sang this roundelay —

' O Sorrow,
     Why dost borrow
 The natural hue of health, from vermeil lips ? —
     To give maiden blushes
     To the white rose bushes ? 150
 Or is 't thy dewy hand the daisy tips ?

' O Sorrow,
     Why dost borrow
 The lustrous passion from a falcon-eye ? —

To give the glow worm light ?
 Or, on a moonless night,
 To tinge, on siren shores, the salt sea-spry ?

‘ O Sorrow,
 Why dost borrow
 The mellow ditties from a mourning tongue ? — 160
 To give at evening pale
 Unto the nightingale,
 That thou mayst listen the cold dews among ?

‘ O Sorrow,
 Why dost borrow
 Heart’s lightness from the merriment of May ? —
 A lover would not tread
 A cowslip on the head,
 Though he should dance from eve till peep of day —
 Nor any drooping flower 170
 Held sacred for thy bower,
 Wherever he may sport himself and play.

‘ To Sorrow,
 I bade good morrow,
 And thought to leave her far away behind ;
 But cheerly, cheerly,
 She loves me dearly ;
 She is so constant to me, and so kind ;
 I would deceive her,
 And so leave her, 180
 But ah ! she is so constant and so kind.

‘ Beneath my palm-trees, by the river side
 I sat a-weeping : in the whole world wide .
 There was no one to ask me why I wept, —
 And so I kept
 Brimming the water-lily cups with tears
 Cold as my fears.

‘Beneath my palm-trees, by the river side,
 I sat a-weeping : what enamour’d bride,
 Cheated by shadowy wooer from the clouds,      190
     But hides and shrouds
 Beneath dark palm-trees by a river side ?

‘And as I sat, over the light blue hills
 There came a noise of revellers : the rills
 Into the wide stream came of purple hue —
     ’T was Bacchus and his crew !
 The earnest trumpet spake, and silver thrills
 From kissing cymbals made a merry din —
     ’T was Bacchus and his kin !

Like to a moving vintage down they came,      200
 Crown’d with green leaves, and faces all on flame ;
 All madly dancing through the pleasant valley,
     To scare thee, Melancholy !
 O then, O then, thou wast a simple name !
 And I forgot thee, as the berried holly
 By shepherds is forgotten, when, in June,
 Tall chestnuts keep away the sun and moon : —
     I rush’d into the folly !

‘Within his car, aloft, young Bacchus stood,
 Trifling his ivy-dart, in dancing mood,      210
     With sidelong laughing ;
 And little rills of crimson wine imbrued
 His plump white arms, and shoulders, enough white
     For Venus’ pearly bite ;
 And near him rode Silenus on his ass,
 Pelted with flowers as he on did pass
     Tipsily quaffing.

‘Whence came ye, merry Damsels ! whence came ye !
 So many, and so many, and such glee ?
 Why have ye left your bowers desolate,      220
     Your lutes, and gentler fate ?

“ We follow Bacchus ! Bacchus on the wing,
 A conquering !
 Bacchus, young Bacchus ! good or ill betide,
 We dance before him thorough kingdoms wide : —
 Come hither, lady fair, and joined be
 To our wild minstrelsy ! ”

‘ Whence came ye, jolly Satyrs ! whence came ye,
 So many, and so many, and such glee ?
 Why have ye left your forest haunts, why left 230
 Your nuts in oak-tree cleft ? —

“ For wine, for wine we left our kernel tree ;
 For wine we left our heath, and yellow brooms,
 And cold mushrooms ;
 For wine we follow Bacchus through the earth ;
 Great god of breathless cups and chirping mirth ! —
 Come hither, lady fair, and joined be
 To our mad minstrelsy ! ”

‘ Over wide streams and mountains great we went,
 And, save when Bacchus kept his ivy tent, 240
 Onward the tiger and the leopard pants,
 With Asian elephants :
 Onward these myriads — with song and dance,
 With zebras striped, and sleek Arabians’ prance,
 Web-footed alligators, crocodiles,
 Bearing upon their scaly backs, in files,
 Plump infant laughs mimicking the coil
 Of seamen, and stout galley-rowers’ toil :
 With toying oars and silken sails they glide,
 Nor care for wind and tide. 250

‘ Mounted on panthers’ furs and lions’ manes,
 From rear to van they scour about the plains ;
 A three days’ journey in a moment done ;
 And always, at the rising of the sun,

About the wilds they hunt with spear and horn,
On spleenful unicorn.

‘ I saw Osirian Egypt kneel adown
Before the vine-wreath crown !
I saw parch’d Abyssinia rouse and sing
To the silver cymbals’ ring ! 260
I saw the whelming vintage hotly pierce
Old Tartary the fierce !
The Kings of Inde their jewel-sceptres vail,
And from their treasures scatter pearled hail ;
Great Brahma from his mystic heaven groans,
And all his priesthood moans ;
Before young Bacchus’ eye-wink turning pale, —
Into these regions came I following him,
Sick-hearted, weary — so I took a whim
To stray away into these forests drear 270
Alone, without a peer :
And I have told thee all thou mayest hear.

‘ Young Stranger !
I’ve been a ranger
In search of pleasure throughout every clime :
Alas, ’t is not for me !
Bewitch’d I sure must be,
To lose in grieving all my maiden prime.

‘ Come then, Sorrow !
Sweetest Sorrow ! 280
Like an own babe I nurse thee on my breast ;
I thought to leave thee
And deceive thee,
But now of all the world I love thee best.

‘ There is not one,
No, no, not one
But thee to comfort a poor lonely maid ;

Thou art her mother,
 And her brother,
 Her playmate, and her wooer in the shade.' 290

O what a sigh she gave in finishing,
 And look, quite dead to every wordly thing !
 Endymion could not speak, but gazed on her ;
 And listened to the wind that now did stir
 About the crisped oaks full drearily,
 Yet with as sweet a softness as might be
 Remember'd from its velvet summer song.
 At last he said : ' Poor lady, how thus long
 Have I been able to endure that voice ?
 Fair Melody ! kind Siren ! I 've no choice ; 300
 I must be thy sad servant evermore :
 I cannot choose but kneel here and adore.
 Alas, I must not think — by Phœbe, no !
 Let me not think, soft Angel ! shall it be so ?
 Say, beautifullest, shall I never think ?
 O thou couldst foster me beyond the brink
 Of recollection ! make my watchful care
 Close up its bloodshot eyes, nor see despair !
 Do gently murder half my soul, and I
 Shall feel the other half so utterly ! — 310
 I 'm giddy at that cheek so fair and smooth ;
 O let it blush so ever ! let it soothe
 My madness ! let it mantle rosy-warm
 With the tinge of love, panting in safe alarm. —
 This cannot be thy hand, and yet it is ;
 And this is sure thine other softling — this Thine own fair bosom, and I am so near !
 Wilt fall asleep ! O let me sip that tear !
 And whisper one sweet word that I may know 319
 This is this world — sweet dewy blossom ! ' — Woe !
Woe ! woe to that Endymion ! Where is he ? —
 Even these words went echoing dimly
 Through the wide forest — a most fearful tone,
 Like one repenting in his latest moan ;

And while it died away a shade pass'd by,
 As of a thundercloud. When arrows fly
 Through the thick branches, poor ringdoves sleek forth

Their timid necks and tremble ; so these both
 Leant to each other trembling, and sat so
 Waiting for some destruction — when lo ! 330

Foot-feather'd Mercury appear'd sublime
 Beyond the tall tree tops ; and in less time
 Than shoots the slanted hail-storm, down he dropt
 Towards the ground ; but rested not, nor stopt
 One moment from his home : only the sword
 He with his wand light touch'd, and heavenward
 Swifter than sight was gone — even before
 The teeming earth a sudden witness bore
 Of his swift magic. Diving swans appear
 Above the crystal circlings white and clear ; 340

And catch the cheated eye in wild surprise,
 How they can dive in sight and unseen rise —
 So from the turf outsprang two steeds jet-black,
 Each with large dark blue wings upon his back.
 The youth of Caria placed the lovely dame
 On one, and felt himself in spleen to tame
 The other's fierceness. Through the air they flew,
 High as the eagles. Like two drops of dew
 Exhaled to Phœbus' lips, away they are gone,
 Far from the earth away — unseen, alone, 350

Among cool clouds and winds, but that the free,
 The buoyant life of song can floating be
 Above their heads, and follow them untired.
 Muse of my native land, am I inspired ?
 This is the giddy air, and I must spread
 Wide pinions to keep here ; nor do I dread
 Or height, or depth, or width, or any chance
 Precipitous : I have beneath my glance
 Those towering horses and their mournful freight.
 Could I thus sail, and see, and thus await 360
 Fearless for power of thought, without thine aid ? —

There is a sleepy dusk, an odorous shade
 From some approaching wonder, and behold
 Those winged steeds, with snorting nostrils bold
 Snuff at its faint extreme, and seem to tire,
 Dying to embers from their native fire !

There curl'd a purple mist around them ; soon,
 It seem'd as when around the pale new moon
 Sad Zephyr droops the clouds like weeping wil-
 low :

'T was Sleep slow journeying with head on pillow
 For the first time, since he came nigh dead-born 371
 From the old womb of night, his cave forlorn
 Had he left more forlorn ; for the first time,
 He felt aloof the day and morning's prime —
 Because into his depth Cimmerian
 There came a dream, showing how a young man,
 Ere a lean bat could plump its wintery skin,
 Would at high Jove's empyreal footstool win
 An immortality, and how espouse 380
 Jove's daughter, and be reckon'd of his house.
 Now was he slumbering towards heaven's gate,
 That he might at the threshold one hour wait
 To hear the marriage melodies, and then
 Sink downward to his dusky cave again.
 His litter of smooth semiluculent mist,
 Diversely tinged with rose and amethyst,
 Puzzled those eyes that for the centre sought ;
 And scarcely for one moment could be caught
 His sluggish form reposing motionless.
 Those two on winged steeds, with all the stress 390
 Of vision search'd for him, as one would look
 Athwart the shallows of a river nook
 To catch a glance at silver-throated eels, —
 Or from old Skiddaw's top, when fog conceals
 His rugged forehead in a mantle pale,
 With an eye-guess towards some pleasant vale
 Descry a favourite hamlet faint and far.

These raven horses, though they foster'd are
 Of earth's splenetic fire, dully drop 399
 Their full-vein'd ears, nostrils blood wide, and stop;
 Upon the spiritless mist have they outspread
 Their ample feathers, are in slumber dead, —
 And on those pinions, level in mid air,
 Endymion sleepeth and the lady fair.
 Slowly they sail, slowly as icy isle
 Upon a calm sea drifting: and meanwhile
 The mournful wanderer dreams. Behold! he walks
 On heaven's pavement; brotherly he talks
 To divine powers: from his hand full fain
 Juno's proud birds are pecking pearly grain: 410
 He tries the nerve of Phœbus' golden bow,
 And asketh where the golden apples grow:
 Upon his arm he braces Pallas' shield,
 And strives in vain to unsettle and to wield
 A Jovian thunderbolt: arch Hebe brings
 A full-brimm'd goblet, dances lightly, sings
 And tantalizes long; at last he drinks,
 And lost in pleasure, at her feet he sinks,
 Touching with dazzled lips her starlight hand.
 He blows a bugle, — an ethereal band 420
 Are visible above: the Seasons four, —
 Green-kirtled Spring, flush Summer, golden store
 In Autumn's sickle, Winter frosty hoar,
 Join dance with shadowy Hours; while still the blast,
 In swells unmitigated, still doth last
 To sway their floating morris. 'Whose is this?
 Whose bugle?' he inquires: they smile — 'O Dis!
 Why is this mortal here? Dost thou not know
 Its mistress' lips? Not thou? — 'Tis Dian's: lo!
 She rises crescented!' He looks, 't is she, 430
 His very goddess: good-bye earth, and sea,
 And air, and pains, and care, and suffering;
 Good-bye to all but love! Then doth he spring
 Towards her, and awakes — and, strange, o'erhead,

Of those same fragrant exhalations bred,
 Beheld awake his very dream : the gods
 Stood smiling ; merry Hebe laughs and nods ;
 And Phœbe bends towards him crescented.
 O state perplexing ! On the pinion bed,
 Too well awake, he feels the panting side 440
 Of his delicious lady. He who died
 For soaring too audacious in the sun,
 When that same treacherous wax began to run,
 Felt not more tongue-tied than Endymion.
 His heart leapt up as to its rightful throne,
 To that fair-shadow'd passion pulsed its way —
 Ah, what perplexity ! Ah, well a day !
 So fond, so beauteous was his bed-fellow,
 He could not help but kiss her : then he grew
 Awhile forgetful of all beauty save 450
 Young Phœbe's, golden-hair'd ; and so 'gan crave
 Forgiveness : yet he turn'd once more to look
 At the sweet sleeper, — all his soul was shook, —
 She press'd his hand in slumber ; so once more
 He could not help but kiss her and adore.
 At this the shadow wept, melting away.
 The Latmian started up : 'Bright goddess, stay !
 Search my most hidden breast ! By truth's own tongue,
 I have no dædale heart ; why is it wrung
 To desperation ? Is there nought for me, 460
 Upon the bourne of bliss, but misery ?'

These words awoke the stranger of dark tresses :
 Her dawning love-look rapt Endymion blesses
 With 'haviour soft. Sleep yawn'd from underneath.
 'Thou swan of Ganges, let us no more breathe
 This murky phantasm ! thou contented seem'st
 Pillow'd in lovely idleness, nor dream'st
 What horrors may discomfort thee and me.
 Ah, shouldst thou die from my heart-treachery ! —
 Yet did she merely weep — her gentle soul 471

Hath no revenge in it : as it is whole
 In tenderness, would I were whole in love !
 Can I prize thee, fair maid, all price above,
 Even when I feel as true as innocence ?
 I do, I do. — What is this soul then ? Whence Came it ? It does not seem my own, and I
 Have no self-passion or identity.
 Some fearful end must be : where, where is it ?
 By Nemesis, I see my spirit flit
 Alone about the dark — Forgive me, sweet : 480
 Shall we away ?' He roused the steeds ; they beat
 Their wings chivalrous into the clear air,
 Leaving old Sleep within his vapoury lair.

The good-night blush of eve was waning slow,
 And Vesper, risen star, began to throe
 In the dusk heavens silvery, when they
 Thus sprang direct towards the Galaxy.
 Nor did speed hinder converse soft and strange —
 Eternal oaths and vows they interchange,
 In such wise, in such temper, so aloof 490
 Up in the winds, beneath a starry roof,
 So witless of their doom, that verily
 'Tis well nigh past man's search their hearts to see —
 Whether they wept, or laugh'd or grieved or toy'd —
 Most like with joy gone mad, with sorrow cloy'd.

Full facing their swift flight, from ebon streak,
 The moon put forth a little diamond peak,
 No bigger than an unobserved star,
 On tiny point of fairy scimeter :
 Bright signal that she only stoop'd to tie 500
 Her silver sandals, ere deliciously
 She bow'd into the heavens her timid head.
 Slowly she rose, as though she would have fled,
 While to his lady meek the Carian turn'd,
 To mark if her dark eyes had yet discern'd

This beauty in its birth — Despair ! despair !
 He saw her body fading gaunt and spare
 In the 'cold moonshine. Straight he seized her wrist ;
 It melted from his grasp ; her hand he kiss'd,
 And, horror ! kiss'd his own — he was alone.           510
 Her steed a little higher soar'd and then
 Dropt hawk-wise to the earth.

There lies a den,

Beyond the seeming confines of the space
 Made for the soul to wander in and trace
 Its own existence, of remotest glooms.
 Dark regions are around it, where the tombs
 Of buried griefs the spirit sees, but scarce
 One hour doth linger weeping, for the pierce
 Of new-born woe it feels more inly smart :
 And in these regions many a venom'd dart           520
 At random flies ; they are the proper home
 Of every ill : the man is yet to come
 Who hath not journey'd in this native hell.
 But few have ever felt how calm and well
 Sleep may be had in that deep den of all.
 There anguish does not sting, nor pleasure pall ;
 Woe-hurricanes beat ever at the gate,
 Yet all is still within and desolate.
 Beset with painful gusts, within ye hear
 No sound so loud as when on curtain'd bier           530
 The death-watch tick is stifled. Enter none
 Who strive therefor : on the sudden it is won.
 Just when the sufferer begins to burn,
 Then it is free to him ; and from an urn,
 Still fed by melting ice, he takes a draught —
 Young Semele such richness never quaff'd
 In her maternal longing. Happy gloom !
 Dark Paradise ! where pale becomes the bloom
 Of health by due ; where silence dreariest
 Is most articulate ; where hopes infest ;           540

Where those eyes are the brightest far that keep
 Their lids shut longest in a dreamless sleep.
 O happy spirit-home ! O wondrous soul !
 Pregnant with such a den to save the whole
 In thine own depth. Hail, gentle Carian !
 For, never since thy griefs and woes began,
 Hast thou felt so content: a grievous feud
 Hath led thee to this Cave of Quietude.
 Aye, his lull'd soul was there, although upborne,
 With dangerous speed: and so he did not mourn 550
 Because he knew not whither he was going.
 So happy was he, not the aerial blowing
 Of trumpets at clear parley from the east
 Could rouse from that fine relish, that high feast.
 They stung the feather'd horse ; with fierce alarm
 He flapp'd towards the sound. Alas, no charm
 Could lift Endymion's head, or he had view'd
 A skyey mask, a pinion'd multitude, —
 And silvery was its passing: voices sweet
 Warbling the while as if to lull and greet 560
 The wanderer in his path. Thus warbled they,
 While past the vision went in bright array.

'Who, who from Dian's feast would be away ?
 For all the golden bowers of the day
 Are empty left ? Who, who away would be
 From Cynthia's wedding and festivity ?
 Not Hesperus : lo ! upon his silver wings
 He leans away for highest heaven and sings,
 Snapping his lucid fingers merrily ! —
 Ah, Zephyrus ! art here, and Flora too ! 570
 Ye tender bibbers of the rain and dew,
 Young playmates of the rose and daffodil,
 Be careful, ere ye enter in, to fill
     Your baskets high
 With fennel green, and balm, and golden pines,
 Savory, latter-mint, and columbines,
 Cool parsley, basil sweet, and sunny thyme ;

Yea, every flower and leaf of every clime,
All gather'd in the dewy morning : hie

Away ! fly, fly !—

580

Crystalline brother of the belt of heaven,
Aquarius ! to whom king Jove has given
Two liquid pulse streams 'stead of feather'd wings,
Two fanlike fountains, — thine illuminings

For Dian play :

Dissolve the frozen purity of air ;
Let thy white shoulders silvery and bare
Show cold through watery pinions ; make more bright
The Star-Queen's crescent on her marriage night :

Haste, haste away !—

590

Castor has tamed the planet Lion, see !
And of the Bear has Pollux mastery :
A third is in the race ! who is the third,
Speeding away swift as the eagle bird ?

The ramping Centaur !

The Lion's mane 's on end : the Bear how fierce !
The Centaur's arrow ready seems to pierce
Some enemy : far forth his bow is bent
Into the blue of heaven. He 'll be shent,

Pale unrelentor,

600

When he shall hear the wedding lutes a-playing. —
Andromeda ! sweet woman ! why delaying
So timidly among the stars : come hither !
Join this bright throng, and nimbly follow whither

They all are going.

Danae's Son, before Jove newly bow'd,
Has wept for thee, calling to Jove aloud.
Thee, gentle lady, did he disenthral :
Ye shall for ever live and love, for all

Thy tears are flowing. —

610

By Daphne's fright, behold Apollo !' —

More

Endymion heard not : down his steed him bore,
Prone to the green head of a misty hill.

His first touch of the earth went nigh to kill.
 'Alas!' said he, 'were I but always borne
 Through dangerous winds, had but my footsteps worn

A path in hell, for ever would I bless
 Horrors which nourish an uneasiness
 For my own sullen conquering : to him
 Who lives beyond earth's boundary, grief is dim, 620
 Sorrow is but a shadow : now I see
 The grass ; I feel the solid ground — Ah, me !
 It is thy voice — divinest ! Where ? — who ? who Left thee so quiet on this bed of dew ?
 Behold upon this happy earth we are ;
 Let us ay love each other ; let us fare
 On forest-fruits, and never, never go
 Among the abodes of mortals here below,
 Or be by phantoms duped. O destiny !
 Into a labyrinth now my soul would fly, 630
 But with thy beauty will I deaden it.
 Where didst thou melt to ? By thee will I sit
 For ever : let our fate stop here — a kid
 I on this spot will offer : Pan will bid
 Us live in peace, in love and peace among
 His forest wildernesses. I have clung
 To nothing, loved a nothing, nothing seen
 Or felt but a great dream ! Oh, I have been Presumptuous against love, against the sky,
 Against all elements, against the tie 640
 Of mortals each to each, against the blooms
 Of flowers, rush of rivers, and the tombs
 Of heroes gone ! Against his proper glory
 Has my own soul conspired : so my story
 Will I to children utter, and repent.
 There never lived a mortal man, who bent
 His appetite beyond his natural sphere,
 But starved and died. My sweetest Indian, here,
 Here will I kneel, for thou redeemed hast

My life from too thin breathing : gone and past 650
 Are cloudy phantasms. Caverns lone, farewell !
 And air of visions, and the monstrous swell
 Of visionary seas ! No, never more
 Shall airy voices cheat me to the shore
 Of tangled wonder, breathless and aghast.
 Adieu, my daintiest Dream ! although so vast
 My love is still for thee. The hour may come
 When we shall meet in pure elysium.
 On earth I may not love thee ; and therefore Doves will I offer up, and sweetest store 660
 All through the teeming year : so thou wilt shine
 On me, and on this damsel fair of mine,
 And bless our simple lives. My Indian bliss !
 My river-lily bud ! one human kiss !
 One sigh of real breath — one gentle squeeze,
 Warm as a dove's nest among summer trees,
 And warm with dew at ooze from living blood !
 Whither didst melt ? Ah, what of that ! — all good
 We'll talk about — no more of dreaming. — Now,
 Where shall our dwelling be ? Under the brow 670
 Of some steep mossy hill, where ivy dun
 Would hide us up, although spring leaves were none ;
 And where dark yew trees, as we rustle through,
 Will drop their scarlet berry cups of dew ?
 O thou wouldst joy to live in such a place ;
 Dusk for our loves, yet light enough to grace
 Those gentle limbs on mossy bed reclined :
 For by one step the blue sky shouldst thou find,
 And by another, in deep dell below,
 Sec, through the trees, a little river go 680
 All in its mid-day gold and glimmering.
 Honey from out the gnarled hive I'll bring,
 And apples, wan with sweetness, gather thee, —
 Cresses that grow where no man may them see,
 And sorrel untorn by the dew-claw'd stag :

Pipes will I fashion of the syrinx flag,
 That thou mayst always know whither I roam,
 When it shall please thee in our quiet home
 To listen and think of love. Still let me speak ;
 Still let me dive into the joy I seek, — 690
 For yet the past doth prison me. The rill,
 Thou haply mayst delight in, will I fill
 With fairy fishes from the mountain tarn,
 And thou shalt feed them from the squirrel's barn.
 Its bottom will I strew with amber shells,
 And pebbles blue from deep enchanted wells.
 Its sides I'll plant with dew-sweet eglantine,
 And honeysuckles full of clear bee-wine.
 I will entice this crystal rill to trace
 Love's silver name upon the meadow's face. 700
 I'll kneel to Vesta, for a flame of fire ;
 And to god Phœbus, for a golden lyre ;
 To Empress Dian, for a hunting-spear ;
 To Vesper, for a taper silver-clear,
 That I may see thy beauty through the night ;
 To Flora, and a nightingale shall light
 Tame on thy finger ; to the River-gods,
 And they shall bring thee taper fishing-rods
 Of gold, and lines of Naiads' long bright tress.
 Heaven shield thee for thine utter loveliness! 710
 Thy mossy footstool shall the altar be 'Fore which I'll bend, bending, dear love, to thee :
 Those lips shall be my Delphos, and shall speak
 Laws to my footsteps, colour to my cheek,
 Trembling or steadfastness to this same voice,
 And of three sweetest pleasurings the choice :
 And that affectionate light, those diamond things,
 Those eyes, those passions, those supreme pearl springs,
 Shall be my grief, or twinkle me to pleasure.
 Say, is not bliss within our perfect seizure ? 720
 O that I could not doubt !'

The mountaineer

Thus strove by fancies vain and crude to clear
 His brier'd path to some tranquillity.
 It gave bright gladness to his lady's eye,
 And yet the tears she wept were tears of sorrow;
 Answering thus, just as the golden morrow
 Beam'd upward from the valleys of the east :
 ' O that the flutter of his heart had ceased,
 Or the sweet name of love had pass'd away.
 Young feather'd tyrant ! by a swift decay 730
 Wilt thou devote this body to the earth :
 And I do think that at my very birth
 I lisp'd thy blooming titles inwardly ;
 For at the first, first dawn and thought of thee,
 With uplift hands I blest the stars of heaven.
 Art thou not cruel ? Ever have I striven
 To think thee kind, but ah, it will not do !
 When yet a child, I heard that kisses drew Favour from thee, and so I gave and gave
 To the void air, bidding them find out love : 740
 But when I came to feel how far above
 All fancy, pride, and fickle maidenhood,
 All earthly pleasure, all imagined good,
 Was the warm tremble of a devout kiss, —
 Even then, that moment, at the thought of this,
 Fainting I fell into a bed of flowers,
 And languish'd there three days. Ye milder powers,
 Am I not cruelly wrong'd ? Believe, believe
 Me, dear Endymion, were I to weave
 With my own fancies garlands of sweet life, 750
 Thou shouldst be one of all. Ah, bitter strife !
 I may not be thy love : I am forbidden —
 Indeed I am — thwarted, affrighted, chidden,
 By things I tremble at, and gorgon wrath.
 Twice hast thou ask'd whither I went : henceforth
 Ask me no more ! I may not utter it,
 Nor may I be thy love. We might commit
 Ourselves at once to vengeance ; we might die ;

We might embrace and die : voluptuous thought !
 Enlarge not to my hunger, or I 'm caught 760
 In trammels of perverse deliciousness.
 No, no, that shall not be : thee will I bless,
 And bid a long adieu.'

The Carian

No word return'd : both lovelorn, silent, wan,
 Into the valleys green together went.
 Far wandering, they were perforce content
 To sit beneath a fair lone beechen tree ;
 Nor at each other gazed, but heavily
 Pored on its hazel cirque of shedded leaves.

Endymion ! unhappy ! it nigh grieves 770
 Me to behold thee thus in last extreme :
 Enskied ere this, but truly that I deem
 Truth the best music in a first-born song.
 Thy lute-voiced brother will I sing ere long,
 And thou shalt aid — hast thou not aided me ?
 Yes, moonlight Emperor ! felicity
 Has been thy meed for many thousand years ;
 Yet often have I, on the brink of tears,
 Mourn'd as if yet thou wert a forester ; —
 Forgetting the old tale.

He did not stir 780

His eyes from the dead leaves, or one small pulse
 Of joy he might have felt. The spirit culls
 Unfaded amaranth, when wild it strays
 Through the old garden-ground of boyish days.
 A little onward ran the very stream
 By which he took his first soft poppy dream ;
 And on the very bark 'gainst which he leant
 A crescent he had carved, and round it spent
 His skill in little stars. The teeming tree
 Had swollen and green'd the pious character. 790
 But not ta'en out. Why, there was not a slope

Up which he had not fear'd the antelope ;
 And not a tree, beneath whose rooty shade
 He had not with his tamed leopards play'd ;
 Nor could an arrow light, or javelin,
 Fly in the air where his had never been —
 And yet he knew it not.

O treachery !

Why does his lady smile, pleasing her eye
 With all his sorrowing ? He sees her not.
 But who so stares on him ? His sister sure ! 800
 Peona of the woods ! — Can she endure —
 Impossible — how dearly they embrace !
 His lady smiles ; delight is in her face ;
 It is no treachery.

' Dear brother mine !

Endymion, weep not so ! Why shouldst thou pine
 When all great Latmos so exalt will be ?
 Thank the great gods, and look not bitterly ;
 And speak not one pale word, and sigh no more.
 Sure I will not believe thou hast such store
 Of grief, to last thee to my kiss again. 810
 Thou surely canst not bear a mind in pain,
 Come hand in hand with one so beautiful.
 Be happy both of you ! for I will pull
 The flowers of autumn for your coronals.
 Pan's holy priest for young Endymion calls ;
 And when he is restored, thou, fairest dame,
 Shalt be our queen. Now, is it not a shame
 To see ye thus, — not very, very sad ?
 Perhaps ye are too happy to be glad :
 O feel as if it were a common day ; 820
 Free-voiced as one who never was away.
 No tongue shall ask, Whence come ye ? but ye shall
 Be gods of your own rest imperial.
 Not even I, for one whole month, will pry
 Into the hours that have pass'd us by,

Since in my arbour I did sing to thee.
O Hermes ! on this very night will be
A hymning up to Cynthia, queen of light ;
For the soothsayers old saw yesternight
Good visions in the air, — whence will befall, 830
As say these sages, health perpetual
To shepherds and their flocks ; and furthermore,
In Dian's face they read the gentle lore :
Therefore for her these vesper-carols are.
Our friends will all be there from nigh and far.
Many upon thy death have ditties made ;
And many, even now, their foreheads shade
With cypress, on a day of sacrifice.
New singing for our maids shalt thou devise,
And pluck the sorrow from our huntsmen's brows.
Tell me, my lady-queen, how to espouse 841
This wayward brother to his rightful joys !
His eyes are on thee bent, as thou didst poise
His fate most goddess-like. Help me, I pray,
To lure — Endymion, dear brother, say
What ails thee ?' He could bear no more, and so
Bent his soul fiercely like a spiritual bow,
And twang'd it inwardly, and calmly said :
' I would have thee my only friend, sweet maid !
My only visitor ! not ignorant though, 850
That those deceptions which for pleasure go
'Mong men, are pleasures real as real may be ;
But there are higher ones I may not see,
If impiously an earthly realm I take,
Since I saw thee, I have been wide awake
Night after night, and day by day, until
Of the empyrean I have drunk my fill.
Let it content thee, Sister, seeing me
More happy than betides mortality.
A hermit young, I'll live in mossy cave, 860
Where thou alone shalt come to me, and lave
Thy spirit in the wonders I shall tell.
Through me the shepherd realm shall prosper well ;

For to thy tongue will I all health confide.
 And, for my sake, let this young maid abide
 With thee as a dear sister. Thou alone,
 Peona, mayst return to me. I own
 This may sound strangely : but when, dearest girl,
 Thou seest it for my happiness, no pearl
 Will trespass down those cheeks. Companion fair !
 Wilt be content to dwell with her, to share 871
 This sister's love with me ?' Like one resign'd
 And bent by circumstance, and thereby blind
 In self-commitment, thus that meek unknown :
 ' Aye, but a buzzing by my ears has flown,
 Of jubilee to Dian : — truth I heard !
 Well then, I see there is no little bird,
 Tender soever, but is Jove's own care.
 Long have I sought for rest, and, unaware,
 Behold I find it ! so exalted too ! 880
 So after my own heart ! I knew, I knew
 There was a place untenanted in it ;
 In that same void white Chastity shall sit,
 And monitor me nightly to lone slumber.
 With sanest lips I vow me to the number
 Of Dian's sisterhood ; and, kind lady,
 With thy good help, this very night shall see
 My future days to her fane consecrate.'

As feels a dreamer what doth most create
 His own particular fright, so these three felt : 890
 Or like one who, in after ages, knelt
 To Lucifer or Baal, when he 'd pine
 After a little sleep : or when in mine
 Far under-ground, a sleeper meets his friends
 Who know him not. Each diligently bends Towards common thoughts and things for very fear ;
 Striving their ghastly malady to cheer,
 By thinking it a thing of yes and no,
 That housewives talk of. But the spirit-blow

Was struck, and all were dreamers. At the last 900
Endymion said : ' Are not our fates all cast ?
Why stand we here ? Adieu, ye tender pair !
Adieu ! ' Whereat those maidens, with wild stare,
Walk'd dizzily away. Pained and hot
His eyes went after them, until they got Near to a cypress grove, whose deadly maw,
In one swift moment, would what then he saw
Engulf for ever. ' Stay, ' he cried, ' ah, stay !
Turn, damsels ! hist ! one word I have to say :
Sweet Indian, I would see thee once again. 910
It is a thing I dote on : so I'd fain,
Peona, ye should hand in hand repair,
Into those holy groves that silent are Behind great Dian's temple. I'll be yon,
At Vesper's earliest twinkle — they are gone —
But once, once, once again — ' At this he press'd
His hands against his face, and then did rest
His head upon a mossy hillock green,
And so remain'd as he a corpse had been
All the long day ; save when he scantly lifted 920
His eyes abroad, to see how shadows shifted
With the slow move of time, — sluggish and weary
Until the poplar tops, in journey dreary,
Had reach'd the river's brim. Then up he rose,
And, slowly as that very river flows,
Walk'd towards the temple grove with this lament :
' Why such a golden eve ? The breeze is sent Careful and soft, that not a leaf may fall
Before the serene father of them all
Bows down his summer head below the west. 930
Now am I of breath, speech, and speed possest,
But at the setting I must bid adieu
To her for the last time. Night will strew
On the damp grass myriads of lingering leaves,
And with them shall I die ; nor much it grieves
To die, when summer dies on the cold sward.
Why, I have been a butterfly, a lord

Of flowers, garlands, love-knots, silly posies,
 Groves, meadows, melodies, and arbour-roses ;
 My kingdom's at its death, and just it is 940
 That I should die with it : so in all this
 We miscall grief, bale, sorrow, heart-break, woe,
 Where is there to plain of ? By Titan's foe
 I am but rightly served.' So saying, he Tripp'd lightly on, in sort of deathful glee ;
 Laughing at the clear stream and setting sun,
 As though they jests had been : nor had he done
 His laugh at nature's holy countenance,
 Until that grove appear'd, as if perchance,
 And then his tongue with sober seemlihed 950
 Gave utterance as he enter'd : ' Ha ! ' I said,
 ' King of the butterflies ; but by this gloom,
 And by old Rhadamanthus' tongue of doom,
 This dusk religion, pomp of solitude,
 And the Promethean clay by thief endued,
 By old Saturnus' forelock, by his head
 Shook with eternal palsy, I did wed
 Myself to things of light from infancy ;
 And thus to be cast out, thus lorn to die,
 Is sure enough to make a mortal man 960
 Grow impious.' So he inwardly began
 On things for which no wording can be found ;
 Deeper and deeper sinking, until drown'd
 Beyond the reach of music : for the choir
 Of Cynthia he heard not, though rough brier
 Nor muffling thicket interposed to dull
 The vesper hymn, far swollen, soft and full,
 Through the dark pillars of those sylvan aisles.
 He saw not the two maidens, nor their smiles,
 Wan as primroses gather'd at midnight 970
 By chilly-finger'd spring. ' Unhappy wight !
 Endymion ! ' said Peona, ' we are here !
 What wouldst thou ere we all are laid on bier ?
 Then he embraced her, and his lady's hand
 Press'd, saying : ' Sister, I would have command,

If it were heaven's will, on our sad fate.
 At which that dark-eyed stranger stood elate
 And said, in a new voice, but sweet as love,
 To Endymion's amaze : 'By Cupid's dove,
 And so thou shalt ! and by the lily truth 980
 Of my own breast thou shalt, beloved youth !'
 And as she spake, into her face there came
 Light, as reflected from a silver flame :
 Her long black hair swell'd ampler, in display
 Full golden ; in her eyes a brighter day
 Dawn'd blue, and full of love. Aye, he beheld
 Phœbe, his passion ! joyous she upheld
 Her lucid bow, continuing thus : "Drear, drear
 Has our delaying been ; but foolish fear
 Withheld me first ; and then decrees of fate ; 990
 And then 't was fit that from this mortal state
 Thou shouldst, my love, by some unlook'd-for change
 Be spiritualized. Peona, we shall range
 These forests, and to thee they safe shall be
 As was thy cradle ; hither shalt thou flee
 To meet us many a time.' Next Cynthia bright
 Peona kiss'd, and bless'd with fair good night :
 Her brother kiss'd her too, and knelt adown
 Before his goddess, in a blissful swoon.
 She gave her fair hands to him, and behold, 1000
 Before three swiftest kisses he had told,
 They vanish'd far away ! — Peona went Home through the gloomy wood in wonderment.

THE POEMS OF 1818-1819

ISABELLA, OR THE POT OF BASIL

A STORY FROM BOCCACCIO

I

FAIR Isabel, poor simple Isabel !

Lorenzo, a young palmer in love's eye !
They could not in the self-same mansion dwell
Without some stir of heart, some malady ;
They could not sit at meals but feel how well
It soothed each to be the other by ;
They could not, sure, beneath the same roof sleep
But to each other dream, and nightly weep.

II

With every morn their love grew tenderer,
With every eve deeper and tenderer still ;
He might not in house, field, or garden stir,
But her full shape would all his seeing fill ;
And his continual voice was pleasanter
To her, than noise of trees or hidden rill ;
Her lute-string gave an echo of his name,
She spoilt her half-done broidery with the same.

III

He knew whose gentle hand was at the latch,
Before the door had given her to his eyes ;
And from her chamber-window he would catch
Her beauty farther than the falcon spies ;
And constant as her vespers would he watch,
Because her face was turn'd to the same skies ;

And with sick longing all the night outwear,
To hear her morning-step upon the stair.

IV

A whole long month of May in this sad plight
Made their cheeks paler by the break of June :
'To-morrow will I bow to my delight,
To-morrow will I ask my lady's boon.' —
'O may I never see another night,
Lorenzo, if thy lips breathe not love's tune.' —
So spake they to their pillows ; but, alas,
Honeyless days and days did he let pass ;

V

Until sweet Isabella's untouch'd cheek
Fell sick within the rose's just domain,
Fell thin as a young mother's, who doth seek
By every lull to cool her infant's pain :
'How ill she is !' said he, 'I may not speak,
And yet I will, and tell my love all plain :
If looks speak love-laws, I will drink her tears,
And at the least 't will startle off her cares.

VI

So said he one fair morning, and all day
His heart beat awfully against his side ;
And to his heart he inwardly did pray
For power to speak ; but still the ruddy tide
Stifled his voice, and pulsed resolve away —
Fever'd his high conceit of such a bride,
Yet brought him to the meekness of a child :
Alas ! when passion is both meek and wild !

VII

So once more he had waked and anguished
A dreary night of love and misery,
If Isabel's quick eye had not been wed
To every symbol on his forehead high :

She saw it waxing very pale and dead,
 And straight all flush'd ; so, lisped tenderly,
 ' Lorenzo ! ' — here she ceased her timid quest,
 But in her tone and look he read the rest.

VIII

' O Isabella, I can half perceive
 That I may speak my grief into thine ear ;
 If thou didst ever anything believe,
 Believe how I love thee, believe how near
 My soul is to its doom : I would not grieve
 Thy hand by unwelcome pressing, would not fear
 Thine eyes by gazing ; but I cannot live
 Another night, and not my passion shrive.

IX

' Love ! thou art leading me from wintry cold,
 Lady ! thou leadest me to summer clime,
 And I must taste the blossoms that unfold
 In its ripe warmth this gracious morning time.'
 So said, his erewhile timid lips grew bold,
 And poesied with hers in dewy rhyme :
 Great bliss was with them, and great happiness
 Grew, like a lusty flower in June's caress.

X

Parting they seem'd to tread upon the air,
 Twin roses by the zephyr blown apart
 Only to meet again more close, and share
 The inward fragrance of each other's heart.
 She, to her chamber gone, a ditty fair
 Sang, of delicious love and honey'd dart ;
 He with light steps went up a western hill,
 And bade the sun farewell, and joy'd his fill.

XI

All close they met again, before the dusk
 Had taken from the stars its pleasant veil,

All close they met, all eves, before the dusk
 Had taken from the stars its pleasant veil,
 Close in a bower of hyacinth and musk,
 Unknown of any, free from whispering tale.
 Ah! better had it been forever so,
 Than idle ears should pleasure in their woe.

XII

Were they unhappy then? — It cannot be —
 Too many tears for lovers have been shed,
 Too many sighs give we to them in fee,
 Too much of pity after they are dead,
 Too many doleful stories do we see,
 Whose matter in bright gold were best be read;
 Except in such a page where Theseus' spouse
 Over the pathless waves towards him bows.

XIII

But, for the general award of love,
 The little sweet doth kill much bitterness;
 Though Dido silent is in under-grove,
 And Isabella's was a great distress,
 Though young Lorenzo in warm Indian clove
 Was not embalm'd, this truth is not the less —
 Even bees, the little almsmen of spring-bowers,
 Know there is richest juice in poison-flowers.

XIV

With her two brothers this fair lady dwelt,
 Enriched from ancestral merchandise,
 And for them many a weary hand did swelt
 In torched mines and noisy factories,
 And many once proud-quiver'd loins did melt
 In blood from stinging whip; — with hollow eyes
 Many all day in dazzling river stood,
 To take the rich-ored driftings of the flood.

XV

For them the Ceylon diver held his breath,
 And went all naked to the hungry shark ;
 For them his ears gush'd blood ; for them in death
 The seal on the cold ice with piteous bark
 Lay full of darts ; for them alone did seethe
 A thousand men in troubles wide and dark :
 Half-ignorant, they turn'd an easy wheel,
 That set sharp racks at work, to pinch and peel.

XVI

Why were they proud ? Because their marble founts
 Gush'd with more pride than do a wretch's tears ? —
 Why were they proud ? Because fair orange-mounts
 Were of more soft ascent than lazar stairs ? —
 Why were they proud ? Because red-lined accounts
 Were richer than the songs of Grecian years ? —
 Why were they proud ? again we ask aloud,
 Why in the name of Glory were they proud ?

XVII

Yet were these Florentines as self-retired
 In hungry pride and gainful cowardice,
 As two close Hebrews in that land inspired,
 Paled in and vineyarded from beggar-spies ;
 The hawks of ship-mast forests — the untired
 And pannier'd mules for ducats and old lies —
 Quick cat's-paws on the generous stray-away, —
 Great wits in Spanish, Tuscan, and Malay.

XVIII

How was it these same ledger-men could spy
 Fair Isabella in her downy nest ?
 How could they find out in Lorenzo's eye
 A straying from his toil ? Hot Egypt's pest
 Into their vision covetous and sly !
 How could these money-bags see east and west ? —

Yet so they did — and every dealer fair
Must see behind, as doth the hunted hare.

XIX

O eloquent and famed Boccaccio !
Of thee we now should ask forgiving boon,
And of thy spicy myrtles as they blow,
And of thy roses amorous of the moon,
And of thy lilies, that do paler grow
Now they can no more hear thy ghittern's tune,
For venturing syllables that ill beseem
The quiet glooms of such a piteous theme.

XX

Grant thou a pardon here, and then the tale
Shall move on soberly, as it is meet ;
There is no other crime, no mad assail
To make old prose in modern rhyme more sweet :
But it is done — succeed the verse or fail —
To honour thee, and thy gone spirit greet ;
To stead thee as a verse in English tongue,
An echo of thee in the north-wind sung.

XXI

These brethren having found by many signs
What love Lorenzo for their sister had,
And how she loved him too, each unconfines
His bitter thoughts to other, well-nigh mad
That he, the servant of their trade designs,
Should in their sister's love be blithe and glad,
When 't was their plan to coax her by degrees
To some high noble and his olive-trees.

XXII

And many a jealous conference had they,
And many times they bit their lips alone,
Before they fix'd upon a surest way
To make the youngster for his crime atone ;

And at the last, these men of cruel clay
 Cut Mercy with a sharp knife to the bone ;
 For they resolved in some forest dim
 To kill Lorenzo, and there bury him.

XXIII

So on a pleasant morning, as he leant
 Into the sunrise, o'er the balustrade
 Of the garden-terrace, towards him they bent
 Their footing through the dews ; and to him said,
 ' You seem there in the quiet of content,
 Lorenzo, and we are most loth to invade
 Calm speculation ; but if you are wise,
 Bestride your steed while cold is in the skies.

XXIV

' To-day we purpose, aye, this hour we mount
 To spur three leagues towards the Apennine ;
 Come down, we pray thee, ere the hot sun count
 His dewy rosary on the eglantine.'
 Lorenzo, courteously as he was wont,
 Bow'd a fair greeting to these serpents' whine ;
 And went in haste, to get in readiness,
 With belt, and spur, and bracing huntsman's dress.

XXV

And as he to the court-yard pass'd along,
 Each third step did he pause, and listen'd oft
 If he could hear his lady's matin-song,
 Or the light whisper of her footstep soft ;
 And as he thus over his passion hung,
 He heard a laugh full musical aloft ;
 When, looking up, he saw her features bright
 Smile through an in-door lattice, all delight.

XXVI

' Love, Isabel !' said he, ' I was in pain
 Lest I should miss to bid thee a good morrow :

Ah! what if I should lose thee, when so fain
 I am to stifle all the heavy sorrow
 Of a poor three hours' absence? but we'll gain
 Out of the amorous dark what day doth borrow.
 Good bye! I'll soon be back.' — 'Good bye!' said she: —
 And as he went she chanted merrily.

XXVII

So the two brothers and their murder'd man
 Rode past fair Florence, to where Arno's stream
 Gurgles through straighten'd banks, and still doth fan
 Itself with dancing bulrush, and the bream
 Keeps head against the freshets. Sick and wan
 The brothers' faces in the ford did seem,
 Lorenzo's flush with love. — They pass'd the water
 Into a forest quiet for the slaughter.

XXVIII

There was Lorenzo slain and buried in,
 There in that forest did his great love cease;
 Ah! when a soul doth thus its freedom win,
 It aches in loneliness — is ill at peace
 As the break-covert bloodhounds of such sin:
 They dipp'd their swords in the water, and did tease
 Their horses homeward, with convulsed spur,
 Each richer by his being a murderer.

XXIX

They told their sister how, with sudden speed,
 Lorenzo had ta'en ship for foreign lands,
 Because of some great urgency and need
 In their affairs, requiring trusty hands.
 Poor Girl! put on thy stifling widow's weed,
 And 'scape at once from Hope's accursed bands;
 To-day thou wilt not see him, nor to-morrow,
 And the next day will be a day of sorrow.

XXX

She weeps alone for pleasures not to be ;
 Sorely she wept until the night came on,
 And then, instead of love, O misery !
 She brooded o'er the luxury alone :
 His image in the dusk she seem'd to see,
 And to the silence made a gentle moan,
 Spreading her perfect arms upon the air,
 And on her couch low murmuring, 'Where ? O where ?'

XXXI

But Selfishness, Love's cousin, held not long
 Its fiery vigil in her single breast ;
 She fretted for the golden hour, and hung
 Upon the time with feverish unrest —
 Not long — for soon into her heart a throng
 Of higher occupants, a richer zest,
 Came tragic ; passion not to be subdued,
 And sorrow for her love in travels rude.

XXXII

In the mid days of autumn, on their eyes
 The breath of Winter comes from far away,
 And the sick west continually bereaves
 Of some gold tinge, and plays a roundelay
 Of death among the bushes and the leaves,
 To make all bare before he dares to stray
 From his north cavern. So sweet Isabel
 By gradual decay from beauty fell,

XXXIII

Because Lorenzo came not. Oftentimes
 She ask'd her brothers, with an eye all pale,
 Striving to be itself, what dungeon climes
 Could keep him off so long ? They spake a tale

Time after time, to quiet her. Their crimes
 Came on them, like a smoke from Hinnom's vale ;
 And every night in dreams they groan'd aloud,
 To see their sister in her snowy shroud.

XXXIV

And she had died in drowsy ignorance,
 But for a thing more deadly dark than all ;
 It came like a fierce potion, drunk by chance,
 Which saves a sick man from the feather'd pall
 For some few gasping moments ; like a lance,
 Waking an Indian from his cloudy hall
 With cruel pierce, and bringing him again
 Sense of the gnawing fire at heart and brain.

XXXV

It was a vision. — In the drowsy gloom,
 The dull of midnight, at her couch's foot
 Lorenzo stood, and wept : the forest tomb
 Had marr'd his glossy hair which once could shoot
 Lustre into the sun, and put cold doom
 Upon his lips, and taken the soft lute
 From his lorn voice, and past his loamed ears
 Had made a miry channel for his tears.

XXXVI

Strange sound it was, when the pale shadow spake ;
 For there was striving, in its piteous tongue,
 To speak as when on earth it was awake,
 And Isabella on its music hung :
 Languor there was in it, and tremulous shake,
 As in a palsied Druid's harp unstrung ;
 And through it moan'd a ghostly undersong,
 Like hoarse night-gusts sepulchral briars among.

XXXVII

Its eyes, though wild, were still all dewy bright
 With love, and kept all phantom fear aloof

From the poor girl by magic of their light,
 The while it did unthread the horrid woof
 Of the late darken'd time, — the murderous spite
 Of pride and avarice, — the dark pine roof
 In the forest, — and the sodden turfed dell,
 Where, without any word, from stabs he fell.

XXXVIII

Saying moreover, 'Isabel, my sweet !
 Red whortleberries droop above my head,
 And a large flint-stone weighs upon my feet ;
 Around me beeches and high chestnuts shed
 Their leaves and prickly nuts ; a sheepfold bleat
 Comes from beyond the river to my bed :
 Go, shed one tear upon my heather-bloom,
 And it shall comfort me within the tomb.

XXXIX

'I am a shadow now, alas ! alas !
 Upon the skirts of human nature dwelling
 Alone : I chant alone the holy mass,
 While little sounds of life are round me knelling,
 And glossy bees at noon do fieldward pass,
 And many a chapel bell the hour is telling,
 Paining me through : those sounds grow strange to
 me,
 And thou art distant in Humanity.

XL

'I know what was, I feel full well what is,
 And I should rage, if spirits could go mad ;
 Though I forget the taste of earthly bliss,
 That paleness warms my grave, as though I
 had
 A Seraph chosen from the bright abyss
 To be my spouse : thy paleness makes me glad ;
 Thy beauty grows upon me, and I feel
 A greater love through all my essence steal.'

XLI

The Spirit mourn'd 'Adieu!' — dissolved, and left
 The atom darkness in a slow turmoil ;
 As when of healthful midnight sleep bereft,
 Thinking on rugged hours and fruitless toil,
 We put our eyes into a pillowy cleft,
 And see the spangly gloom froth up and boil :
 It made sad Isabella's eyelids ache,
 And in the dawn she started up awake.

XLII

'Ha ! ha !' said she, 'I knew not this hard life,
 I thought the worst was simple misery ;
 I thought some Fate with pleasure or with strife
 Portion'd us — happy days, or else to die ;
 But there is crime — a brother's bloody knife !
 Sweet Spirit, thou hast school'd my infancy :
 I'll visit thee for this, and kiss thine eyes,
 And greet thee morn and even in the skies.'

XLIII

When the full morning came, she had devised
 How she might secret to the forest hie ;
 How she might find the clay, so dearly prized,
 And sing to it one latest lullaby ;
 How her short absence might be unsurmised,
 While she the inmost of the dream would try.
 Resolved, she took with her an aged nurse,
 And went into that dismal forest-hearse.

XLIV

See, as they creep along the river side,
 How she doth whisper to that aged Dame,
 And, after looking round the champaign wide,
 Shows her a knife. — 'What feverous hectic flame
 Burns in thee, child ? — what good can thee betide,
 That thou shouldst smile again ?' — The evening came,

And they had found Lorenzo's earthy bed ;
The flint was there, the berries at his head.

XLV

Who hath not loiter'd in a green churchyard,
And let his spirit, like a demon-mole,
Work through the clayey soil and gravel hard,
To see skull, coffin'd bones, and funeral stole ;
Pitying each form that hungry Death hath marr'd,
And filling it once more with human soul ?
Ah ! this is holiday to what was felt
When Isabella by Lorenzo knelt.

XLVI

She gazed into the fresh-thrown mould, as though
One glance did fully all its secrets tell ;
Clearly she saw, as other eyes would know
Pale limbs at bottom of a crystal well ;
Upon the murderous spot she seem'd to grow,
Like to a native lily of the dell :
Then with her knife, all sudden, she began
To dig more fervently than misers can.

XLVII

Soon she turn'd up a soiled glove, whereon
Her silk had play'd in purple phantasies :
She kiss'd it with a lip more chill than stone,
And put it in her bosom, where it dries
And freezes utterly unto the bone
Those dainties made to still an infant's cries ;
Then 'gan she work again ; nor stay'd her care,
But to throw back at times her veiling hair.

XLVIII

That old nurse stood beside her wondering,
Until her heart felt pity to the core
At sight of such a dismal labouring,
And so she kneeled, with her locks all hoar,

And put her lean hands to the horrid thing :
 Three hours they labour'd at this travail sore :
 At last they felt the kernel of the grave,
 And Isabella did not stamp and rave.

XLIX

Ah! wherefore all this wormy circumstance?
 Why linger at the yawning tomb so long?
 O for the gentleness of old Romance,
 The simple plaining of a minstrel's song!
 Fair reader, at the old tale take a glance,
 For here, in truth, it doth not well belong
 To speak: — O turn thee to the very tale,
 And taste the music of that vision pale.

L

With duller steel than the Perséan sword
 They cut away no formless monster's head,
 But one, whose gentleness did well accord
 With death, as life. The ancient harps have said,
 Love never dies, but lives, immortal Lord:
 If Love impersonate was ever dead,
 Pale Isabella kiss'd it, and low moan'd.
 'T was love; cold, — dead indeed, but not dethron'd.

LI

In anxious secrecy they took it home,
 And then the prize was all for Isabel:
 She calm'd its wild hair with a golden comb,
 And all around each eye's sepulchral cell
 Pointed each fringed lash; the smeared loam
 With tears, as chilly as a dripping well,
 She drench'd away: and still she comb'd, and kept
 Sighing all day — and still she kiss'd and wept.

LII

Then in a silken scarf, — sweet with the dews
 Of precious flowers pluck'd in Araby,

And divine liquids come with odorous ooze
 Through the cold serpent-pipe refreshfully, —
 She wrapp'd it up ; and for its tomb did choose
 A garden-pot, wherein she laid it by,
 And cover'd it with mould, and o'er it set
 Sweet Basil, which her tears kept ever wet.

LIII

And she forgot the stars, the moon, and sun,
 And she forgot the blue above the trees,
 And she forgot the dells where waters run,
 And she forgot the chilly autumn breeze ;
 She had no knowledge when the day was done,
 And the new morn she saw not : but in peace
 Hung over her sweet Basil evermore,
 And moisten'd it with tears unto the core.

LIV

And so she ever fed it with thin tears,
 Whence thick, and green, and beautiful it grew,
 So that it smelt more balmy than its peers
 Of Basil-tufts in Florence ; for it drew
 Nurture besides, and life, from human fears,
 From the fast mouldering head there shut from view :
 So that the jewel, safely casketed,
 Came forth, and in perfumed leafits spread.

LV

O Melancholy, linger here awhile !
 O Music, Music, breathe despondingly !
 O Echo, Echo, from some sombre isle,
 Unknown, Lethean, sigh to us — O sigh !
 Spirits in grief, lift up your heads, and smile ;
 Lift up your heads, sweet Spirits, heavily,
 And make a pale light in your cypress glooms,
 Tinting with silver wan your marble tombs.

LVI

Moan hither, all ye syllables of woe,
 From the deep throat of sad Melpomene !
 Through bronzed lyre in tragic order go,
 And touch the strings into a mystery ;
 Sound mournfully upon the winds and low ;
 For simple Isabel is soon to be Among the dead : She withers, like a palm
 Cut by an Indian for its juicy balm.

LVII

O leave the palm to wither by itself ;
 Let not quick Winter chill its dying hour ! —
 It may not be — those Baälites of pelf,
 Her brethren, noted the continual shower
 From her dead eyes : and many a curious elf,
 Among her kindred, wonder'd that such dower
 Of youth and beauty should be thrown aside
 By one mark'd out to be a Noble's bride.

LVIII

And, furthermore, her brethren wonder'd much
 Why she sat drooping by the Basil green,
 And why it flourish'd, as by magic touch ;
 Greatly they wonder'd what the thing might mean :
 They could not surely give belief, that such
 A very nothing would have power to wean
 Her from her own fair youth, and pleasures gay,
 And even remembrance of her love's delay.

LIX

Therefore they watch'd a time when they might sift
 This hidden whim ; and long they watch'd in vain ;
 For seldom did she go to chapel-shrift,
 And seldom felt she any hunger-pain :

And when she left, she hurried back, as swift
 As bird on wing to breast its eggs again:
 And, patient as a hen-bird, sat her there
 Beside her Basil, weeping through her hair.

LX

Yet they contrived to steal the Basil-pot,
 And to examine it in secret place:
 The thing was vile with green and livid spot,
 And yet they knew it was Lorenzo's face:
 The guerdon of their murder they had got,
 And so left Florence in a moment's space,
 Never to turn again. — Away they went,
 With blood upon their heads, to banishment.

LXI

O Melancholy, turn thine eyes away!
 O Music, Music, breathe despondingly!
 O Echo, Echo, on some other day,
 From isles Lethean, sigh to us — O sigh!
 Spirits of grief, sing not your 'Well-a-way!'
 For Isabel, sweet Isabel, will die;
 Will die a death too lone and incomplete,
 Now they have ta'en away her Basil sweet.

LXII

Piteous she look'd on dead and senseless things,
 Asking for her lost Basil amorously:
 And with melodious chuckle in the strings
 Of her lorn voice, she oftentimes would cry
 After the Pilgrim in his wanderings,
 To ask him where her Basil was; and why
 'T was hid from her: 'For cruel 't is,' said she,
 'To steal my Basil-pot away from me.'

LXIII

And so she pined, and so she died forlorn,
 Imploring for her Basil to the last.

No heart was there in Florence but did mourn
 In pity of her love, so overcast.
 And a sad ditty of this story born
 From mouth to mouth through all the country
 pass'd :
 Still is the burthen sung — ‘ O cruelty,
 To steal my Basil-pot away from me !’

TO HOMER

STANDING aloof in giant ignorance,
 Of thee I hear and of the Cyclades,
 As one who sits ashore and longs perchance
 To visit dolphin-coral in deep seas.
 So thou wast blind ! — but then the veil was rent,
 For Jove uncurtain'd Heaven to let thee live,
 And Neptune made for thee a spumy tent,
 And Pan made sing for thee his forest-hive ;
 Ay on the shores of darkness there is light,
 And precipices show untrodden green ;
 There is a budding morrow in midnight ;
 There is a triple sight in blindness keen :
 Such seeing hadst thou, as it once befell
 To Dian, Queen of Earth, and Heaven, and Hell.

FRAGMENT OF AN ODE TO MAIA

MOTHER of Hermes ! and still youthful Maia !
 May I sing to thee
 As thou wast hymned on the shores of Baiae ?
 Or may I woo thee
 In earlier Sicilian ? or thy smiles
 Seek as they once were sought, in Grecian isles,
 By bards who died content on pleasant sward,
 Leaving great verse'unto a little clan ?

O, give me their old vigour, and unheard
 Save of the quiet Primrose, and the span
 Of heaven and few ears,
 Rounded by thee, my song should die away
 Content as theirs,
 Rich in the simple worship of a day.

SONG

I

HUSH, hush! tread softly! hush, hush, my dear!
 All the house is asleep, but we know very well
 That the jealous, the jealous old bald-pate may hear,
 Tho' you've padded his night-cap — O sweet Isabel!
 Tho' your feet are more light than a Faery's
 feet,
 Who dances on bubbles where brooklets meet, —
 Hush, hush! soft tiptoe! hush, hush, my dear!
 For less than a nothing the jealous can hear.

II

No leaf doth tremble, no ripple is there
 On the river, — all's still, and the night's sleepy eye
 Closes up, and forgets all its Lethean care,
 Charm'd to death by the drone of the humming
 May-fly;
 And the Moon, whether prudish or complai-
 sant,
 Has fled to her bower, well knowing I want
 No light in the dusk, no torch in the gloom,
 But my Isabel's eyes, and her lips pulp'd with bloom.

III

Lift the latch ! ah gently ! ah tenderly — sweet !
 We are dead if that latchet gives one little clink !
 Well done — now those lips, and a flowery seat —
 The old man may sleep, and the planets may wink ;
 The shut rose shall dream of our loves and awake
 Full-blown, and such warmth for the morning
     take,
 The stock-dove shall hatch her soft brace and shall coo,
 While I kiss to the melody, aching all through.

VERSES WRITTEN DURING A TOUR
 IN SCOTLAND

I

ON VISITING THE TOMB OF BURNS

THE Town, the churchyard, and the setting sun,
 The Clouds, the trees, the rounded hills all seem,
 Though beautiful, cold — strange — as in a dream,
 I dreamed long ago, now new begun.
 The short lived, paly Summer is but won
     From Winter's ague, for one hour's gleam ;
 Though sapphire-warm, their Stars do never beam :
 All is cold Beauty ; pain is never done :
 For who has mind to relish, Minos-wise,
     The Real of Beauty, free from that dead hue
     Sickly imagination and sick pride
     Cast wan upon it ! Burns ! with honour due
     I oft have honour'd thee. Great shadow, hide
 Thy face ; I sin against thy native skies.

II

TO AILSA ROCK

HEARKEN, thou craggy ocean pyramid!

Give answer from thy voice, the sea-fowls' screams!

When were thy shoulders mantled in huge streams?

When, from the sun, was thy broad forehead hid?

How long is 't since the mighty power bid

Thee heave to airy sleep from fathom dreams?

Sleep in the lap of thunder or sunbeams,

Or when gray clouds are thy cold coverlid.

Thou answer'st not; for thou art dead asleep;

Thy life is but two dead eternities —

The last in air, the former in the deep;

First with the whales, last with the eagle-skies —

Drown'd wast thou till an earthquake made thee steep,

Another cannot wake thy giant size.

WRITTEN IN THE COTTAGE WHERE BURNS WAS BORN

THIS mortal body of a thousand days

Now fills, O Burns, a space in thine own room,

Where thou didst dream alone on budded bays,

Happy and thoughtless of thy day of doom!

My pulse is warm with thine old Barley-bree,

My head is light with pledging a great soul,

My eyes are wandering, and I cannot see,

Fancy is dead and drunken at its goal;

Yet can I stamp my foot upon thy floor,

Yet can I ope thy window-sash to find

The meadow thou hast tramped o'er and o'er, —

Yet can I think of thee till thought is blind, —

Yet can I gulp a bumper to thy name, —

O smile among the shades, for this is fame!

AT FINGAL'S CAVE

NOT Aladdin magian
 Ever such a work began ;
 Not the wizard of the Dee
 Ever such a dream could see ;
 Not St. John, in Patmos' isle,
 In the passion of his toil,
 When he saw the churches seven,
 Golden aisled, built up in heaven,
 Gazed at such a rugged wonder,
 As I stood its roofing under.
 Lo ! I saw one sleeping there,
 On the marble cold and bare ;
 While the surges wash'd his feet,
 And his garments white did beat
 Drench'd about the sombre rocks ;
 On his neck his well-grown locks,
 Lifted dry above the main,
 Were upon the curl again.
 'What is this? and what art thou ?'
 Whisper'd I, and touch'd his brow ;
 'What art thou ? and what is this ?'
 Whisper'd I, and strove to kiss
 The spirit's hand, to wake his eyes ;
 Up he started in a trice :
 'I am Lycidas,' said he,
 'Famed in funeral minstrelsy !
 This was architected thus
 By the great Oceanus !—
 Here his mighty waters play
 Hollow organs all the day ;
 Here, by turns, his dolphins all,
 Finny palmers, great and small,
 Come to pay devotion due, —
 Each a mouth of pearls must strew !

Many a mortal of these days
 Dares to pass our sacred ways ;
 Dares to touch, audaciously,
 This cathedral of the sea !
 I have been the pontiff-priest,
 Where the waters never rest,
 Where a fledgy sea-bird choir
 Soars for ever ! Holy fire
 I have hid from mortal man ;
 Proteus is my Sacristan !
 But the dulled eye of mortal
 Hath pass'd beyond the rocky portal ;
 So for ever will I leave
 Such a taint, and soon unweave
 All the magic of the place.'
 So saying, with a Spirit's glance
 He dived !

WRITTEN UPON THE TOP OF BEN NEVIS

READ me a lesson, Muse, and speak it loud
 Upon the top of Nevis, blind in mist !
 I look into the chasms, and a shroud
 Vaporous doth hide them, — just so much I wist
 Mankind do know of hell ; I look o'erhead,
 And there is sullen mist, — even so much
 Mankind can tell of heaven ; mist is spread
 Before the earth, beneath me, — even such,
 Even so vague is man's sight of himself !
 Here are the craggy stones beneath my feet, —
 Thus much I know that, a poor witless elf,
 I tread on them, — that all my eye doth meet
 Is mist and crag, not only on this height,
 But in the world of thought and mental might !

TRANSLATION FROM A SONNET OF RONSARD

NATURE withheld Cassandra in the skies,
 For more adornment, a full thousand years ;
 She took their cream of Beauty's fairest dyes,
 And shaped and tinted her above all Peers :
 Meanwhile Love kept her dearly with his wings,
 And underneath their shadow fill'd her eyes
 With such a richness that the cloudy Kings
 Of high Olympus utter'd slavish sighs.
 When from the Heavens I saw her first descend,
 My heart took fire, and only burning pains,
 They were my pleasures— they my Life's sad end ;
 Love pour'd her beauty into my warm veins.

. . . . .

TO A LADY SEEN FOR A FEW MO-MENTS AT VAUXHALL

TIME's sea hath been five years at its slow ebb,
 Long hours have to and fro let creep the sand,
 Since I was tangled in thy beauty's web,
 And snared by the unglowing of thine hand.
 And yet I never look on midnight sky,
 But I behold thine eyes' well-remembered light ;
 I cannot look upon the rose's dye,
 But to thy cheek my soul doth take its flight ;
 I cannot look on any budding flower,
 But my fond ear, in fancy at thy lips
 And hearkening for a love-sound, doth devour
 Its sweets in the wrong sense :— Thou dost eclipse
 Every delight with sweet remembering,
 And grief unto my darling joys dost bring.

FANCY

EVER let the Fancy roam,
 Pleasure never is at home :
 At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth,
 Like to bubbles when rain pelteth ;
 Then let winged Fancy wander
 Through the thought still spread beyond her :
 Open wide the mind's cage-door,
 She'll dart forth, and cloudward soar.
 O sweet Fancy ! let her loose ;
 Summer's joys are spoilt by use, 10
 And the enjoying of the Spring
 Fades as does its blossoming ;
 Autumn's red-lipp'd fruitage too,
 Blushing through the mist and dew,
 Cloys with tasting : What do then ?
 Sit thee by the ingle, when
 The sear faggot blazes bright,
 Spirit of a winter's night ;
 When the soundless earth is muffled,
 And the caked snow is shuffled 20
 From the ploughboy's heavy shoon ;
 When the Night doth meet the Noon
 In a dark conspiracy
 To banish Even from her sky.
 Sit thee there, and send abroad,
 With a mind self-overawed,
 Fancy, high-commission'd : — send her !
 She has vassals to attend her :
 She will bring, in spite of frost,
 Beauties that the earth hath lost ; 30
 She will bring thee, all together,
 All delights of summer weather ;
 All the buds and bells of May,
 From dewy sward or thorny spray ;

Whose lip mature is ever new ?
 Where 's the eye, however blue,
 Does not weary ? Where 's the face
 One would meet in every place ?
 Where 's the voice, however soft,
 One would hear so very oft ?
 At a touch sweet Pleasure melteth
 Like to bubbles when 's in petteth.
 Let, then, winged Fancy find
 Thee a mistress to thy mind : 80
 Dulcet-eyed as Ceres' daughter
 Ere the God of Torment taught her
 How to frown and how to chide ;
 With a waist and with a side
 White as Hebe's, when her zone
 Slipt its golden clasp, and down
 Fell her kirtle to her feet,
 While she held the goblet sweet,
 And Jove grew languid. — Break the mesh
 Of the Fancy's silken leash ; 90
 Quickly break her prison-string,
 And such joys as these she 'll bring. —
 Let the winged Fancy roam,
 Pleasure never is at home.

ODE

BARDS of Passion and of Mirth,
 Ye have left your souls on earth !
 Have ye souls in heaven too,
 Double-lived in regions new ?
 Yes, and those of heaven commune
 With the spheres of sun and moon ;
 With the noise of fountains wond'rous
 And the parle of voices thund'rous ;
 With the whisper of heaven's trees
 And one another, in soft ease 10

Seated on Elysian lawns
 Browsed by none but Dian's fawns ;
 Underneath large blue-bells tented,
 Where the daisies are rose-scented,
 And the rose herself has got Perfume which on earth is not ;
 Where the nightingale doth sing
 Not a senseless, tranced thing,
 But livine melodious truth ;
 Philosophic numbers smooth ;                   20
 Tales and golden histories
 Of heaven and its mysteries.

Thus ye live on high, and then,
 On the earth ye live again ;
 And the souls ye left behind you
 Teach us, here, the way to find you,
 Where your other souls are joying,
 Never slumber'd, never cloying.
 Here, your earth-born souls still speak
 To mortals, of their little week ;                   30
 Of their sorrows and delights ;
 Of their passions and their spites ;
 Of their glory and their shame ;
 What doth strengthen and what maim.
 Thus ye teach us, every day,
 Wisdom, though fled far away.

Bards of Passion and of Mirth,
 Ye have left your souls on earth !
 Ye have souls in heaven too,
 Double-lived in regions new !                   40

SONG

I HAD a dove and the sweet dove died ;
 And I have thought it died of grieving :

O, what could it grieve for? Its feet were tied,
 With a silken thread of my own hand's weav-
     ing;
 Sweet little red feet! why should you die—
 Why should you leave me, sweet bird! why?
 You lived alone in the forest-tree,
 Why, pretty thing! would you not live with
     me?
 I kiss'd you oft and gave you white peas;
 Why not live sweetly, as in the green trees?

ODE ON MELANCHOLY

I

No, no! go not to Lethe, neither twist
 Wolf's-bane, tight-rooted, for its poisonous wine;
 Nor suffer thy pale forehead to be kiss'd
 By nightshade, ruby grape of Proserpine;
 Make not your rosary of yew-berries,
 Nor let the beetle, or the death-moth be
 Your mournful Psyche, nor the downy owl
 A partner in your sorrow's mysteries;
 For shade to shade will come too drowsily,
 And drown the wakeful anguish of the soul.

II

But when the melancholy fit shall fall
 Sudden from heaven like a weeping cloud,
 That fosters the droop-headed flowers all,
 And hides the green hills in an April shroud;
 Then glut thy sorrow on a morning rose,
 Or on the rainbow of the salt-sand wave,
 Or on the wealth of globed peonies;
 Or if thy mistress some rich anger shows,
 Emprison her soft hand, and let her rave,
 And feed deep, deep upon her peerless eyes.

III

She dwells with Beauty — Beauty that must die ;
 And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
 Bidding adieu ; and aching Pleasure nigh,
 Turning to poison while the bee-mouth sips :
 Aye, in the very temple of Delight
 Veil'd Melancholy has her sovran shrine,
 Though seen of none save him whose strenuous
 tongue
 Can burst Joy's grape against his palate fine ;
 His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,
 And be among her cloudy trophies hung.

THE EVE OF ST. AGNES

I

ST. AGNES' EVE — Ah, bitter chill it was !
 The owl, for all his feathers, was a-cold ;
 The hare limp'd trembling through the frozen grass,
 And silent was the flock in woolly fold :
 Numb were the Beadsman's fingers, while he told
 His rosary, and while his frosted breath,
 Like pious incense from a censer old,
 Seem'd taking flight for heaven, without a death,
 Past the sweet Virgin's picture, while his prayer he saith.

II

His prayer he saith, this patient, holy man :
 Then takes his lamp, and riseth from his knees,
 And back returneth, meagre, barefoot, wan
 Along the chapel aisle by slow degrees :
 The sculptured dead, on each side, seem to freeze,
 Emprison'd in black, purgatorial rails :
 Knights, ladies, praying in dumb orat'ries,
 He passeth by ; and his weak spirit fails
 To think how they may ache in icy hoods and mails.

III

Northward he turneth through a little door,
 And scarce three steps, ere Music's golden tongue
 Flatter'd to tears this aged man and poor ;
 But no — already had his death-bell rung ;
 The joys of all his life were said and sung :
 His was harsh penance on St. Agnes' Eve :
 Another way he went, and soon among
 Rough ashes sat he for his soul's reprieve,
 And all night kept awake, for sinners' sake to grieve.

IV

That ancient Beadsman heard the prelude soft ;
 And so it chanced, for many a door was wide,
 From hurry to and fro. Soon, up aloft,
 The silver, snarling trumpets 'gan to chide :
 The level chambers, ready with their pride,
 Were glowing to receive a thousand guests :
 The carved angels, ever eager-eyed,
 Stared, where upon their heads the cornice rests,
 With hair blown back, and wings put crosswise on their breasts.

V

At length burst in the argent revelry,
 With plume, tiara, and all rich array,
 Numerous as shadows haunting fairily
 The brain, new-stuff'd, in youth, with triumph's
 gay
 Of old romance. These let us wish away,
 And turn, sole-thoughted, to one Lady there,
 Whose heart had brooded, all that wintry day,
 On love, and wing'd St. Agnes' saintly care,
 As she had heard old dames full many times declare.

VI

They told her how, upon St. Agnes' Eve,
Young virgins might have visions of delight,
And soft adorings from their loves receive
Upon the honey'd middle of the night,
If ceremonies due they did aright ;
As, supperless to bed they must retire,
And couch supine their beauties, lily white ;
Nor look behind, nor sideways, but require
Of Heaven with upward eyes for all that they desire.

VII

Full of this whim was thoughtful Madeline :
The music, yearning like a God in pain,
She scarcely heard : her maiden eyes divine,
Fix'd on the floor, saw many a sweeping train
Pass by — she heeded not at all : in vain
Came many a tiptoe, amorous cavalier,
And back retired ; not cool'd by high disdain,
But she saw not : her heart was elsewhere ;
She sigh'd for Agnes' dreams, the sweetest of the year.

VIII

She danced along with vague, regardless eyes,
Anxious her lips, her breathing quick and short :
The hallow'd hour was near at hand : she sighs
Amid the timbrels, and the throng'd resort
Of whisperers in anger, or in sport ;
'Mid looks of love, defiance, hate, and scorn,
Hoodwink'd with faery fancy ; all amort,
Save to St. Agnes and her lambs unshorn,
And all the bliss to be before to-morrow morn.

IX

So, purposing each moment to retire,
She linger'd still. Meantime, across the moors,

Had come young Porphyro, with heart on fire
 For Madeline. Beside the portal doors,
 Buttress'd from moonlight, stands he, and implores
 All saints to give him sight of Madeline,
 But for one moment in the tedious hours,
 That he might gaze and worship all unseen ; Perchance speak, kneel, touch, kiss — in sooth such things have been.

X

He ventures in : let no buzz'd whisper tell :
 All eyes be muffled, or a hundred swords
 Will storm his heart, Love's fev'rous citadel :
 For him, those chambers held barbarian hordes,
 Hyena foemen, and hot-blooded lords,
 Whose very dogs would execrations howl
 Against his lineage: not one breast affords
 Him any mercy, in that mansion foul,
 Save one old beldame, weak in body and in soul.

XI

Ah, happy chance ! the aged creature came,
 Shuffling along with ivory-headed wand,
 To where he stood, hid from the torch's flame,
 Behind a broad hall-pillar, far beyond
 The sound of merriment and chorus bland :
 He startled her ; but soon she knew his face,
 And grasp'd his fingers in her palsied hand,
 Saying, 'Mercy, Porphyro! hie thee from this place ;
 They are all here to-night, the whole bloodthirsty race !

XII

'Get hence! get hence! there's dwarfish Hildebrand ;
 He had a fever late, and in the fit
 He cursed thee and thine, both house and land :

Then there's that old Lord Maurice, not a whit
 More tame for his gray hairs — Alas me! flit!
 Flit like a ghost away.' — 'Ah, Gossip dear,
 We're safe enough; here in this armchair sit,
 And tell me how' — 'Good Saints! not here, not here;
 Follow me, child, or else these stones will be thy bier.'

XIII

He follow'd through a lowly arched way,
 Brushing the cobwebs with his lofty plume;
 And as she mutter'd 'Well-a — well-a-day!'
 He found him in a little moonlight room,
 Pale, latticed, chill, and silent as a tomb.
 'Now tell me where is Madeline,' said he,
 'O tell me, Angela, by the holy loom
 Which none but secret sisterhood may see,
 When they St. Agnes' wool are weaving piously.'

XIV

'St. Agnes! Ah! it is St. Agnes' Eve —
 Yet men will murder upon holy days:
 Thou must hold water in a witch's sieve,
 And be liege-lord of all the Elves and Fays,
 To venture so: it fills me with amaze
 To see thee, Porphyro! — St. Agnes' Eve!
 God's help! my lady fair the conjurer plays
 This very night: good angels her deceive!
 But let me laugh awhile, I've mickle time to grieve.'

XV

Fecbly she laugheth in the languid moon,
 While Porphyro upon her face doth look,
 Like puzzled urchin on an aged crone
 Who keepeth closed a wond'rous riddle-book,
 As spectacled she sits in chimney nook.

But soon his eyes grew brilliant, when she told
 His lady's purpose ; and he scarce could brook
 Tears, at the thought of those enchantments cold,
 And Madeline asleep in lap of legends old.

XVI

Sudden a thought came like a full-blown rose,
 Flushing his brow, and in his pained heart
 Made purple riot : then doth he propose
 A stratagem, that makes the beldame start :
 ' A cruel man and impious thou art :
 Sweet lady, let her pray, and sleep, and dream
 Alone with her good angels, far apart
 From wicked men like thee. Go, go ! I deem Thou canst not surely be the same that thou didst seem.'

XVII

' I will not harm her, by all saints I swear,'
 Quoth Porphyro : ' O may I ne'er find grace
 When my weak voice shall whisper its last prayer,
 If one of her soft ringlets I displace,
 Or look with ruffian passion in her face :
 Good Angela, believe me by these tears ;
 Or I will, even in a moment's space,
 Awake, with horrid shout, my foemen's ears,
 And beard them, though they be more fang'd than wolves and bears.'

XVIII

' Ah ! why wilt thou affright a feeble soul ?
 A poor, weak, palsy-stricken, church-yard thing,
 Whose passing-bell may ere the midnight toll ;
 Whose prayers for thee, each morn and evening,
 Were never miss'd.' Thus plaining, doth she bring
 A gentler speech from burning Porphyro ;

So woful, and of such deep sorrowing,
That Angela gives promise she will do
Whatever he shall wish, betide her weal or woe.

XIX

Which was, to lead him, in close secrecy,
Even to Madeline's chamber, and there hide
Him in a closet, of such privacy
That he might see her beauty unespied,
And win perhaps that night a peerless bride,
While legion'd fairies paced the coverlet,
And pale enchantment held her sleepy-eyed.
Never on such a night have lovers met,
Since Merlin paid his Demon all the monstrous debt.

XX

'It shall be as thou wishest,' said the Dame :
'All cates and dainties shall be stored there
Quickly on this feast-night: by the tambour frame
Her own lute thou wilt see: no time to spare,
For I am slow and feeble, and scarce dare
On such a catering trust my dizzy head.
Wait here, my child, with patience; kneel in prayer
The while: Ah! thou must needs the lady wed,
Or may I never leave my grave among the dead.'

XXI

So saying she hobbled off with busy fear.
The lover's endless minutes slowly pass'd ;
The Dame return'd, and whisper'd in his ear
To follow her ; with aged eyes aghast
From fright of dim espial. Safe at last,
Through many a dusky gallery, they gain
The maiden's chamber, silken, hush'd and chaste ;
Where Porphyro took covert, pleased amain.
His poor guide hurried back with agues in her brain.

XXII

Her falt'ring hand upon the balustrade,
 Old Angela was feeling for the stair,
 When Madeline, St. Agnes' charmed maid,
 Rose, like a mission'd spirit, unaware :
 With silver taper's light, and pious care,
 She turn'd, and down the aged gossip led
 To a safe level matting. Now prepare,
 Young Porphyro, for gazing on that bed ;
 She comes, she comes again, like ring-dove fray'd and fled.

XXIII

Out went the taper as she hurried in ;
 Its little smoke, in pallid moonshine, died :
 She closed the door, she panted, all akin
 To spirits of the air, and visions wide :
 No uttered syllable, or, woe betide !
 But to her heart, her heart was voluble,
 Paining with eloquence her balmy side ;
 As though a tongueless nightingale should swell
 Her throat in vain, and die, heart-stifled in her dell.

XXIV

A casement high and triple arch'd there was,
 All garlanded with carven imag'ries
 Of fruits, and flowers, and bunches of knot-grass,
 And diamonded with panes of quaint device,
 Innumerable of stains and splendid dyes,
 As are the tiger-moth's deep-damask'd wings ;
 And in the midst, 'mong thousand heraldries,
 And twilight saints, and dim emblazonings,
 A shielded scutcheon blush'd with blood of queens and kings.

XXV

Full on this casement shone the wintry moon,
 And threw warm gules on Madeline's fair breast,

As down she knelt for heaven's grace and boon ;
Rose-bloom fell on her hands, together prest,
And on her silver cross soft amethyst,
And on her hair a glory, like a saint :
She seem'd a splendid angel, newly drest,
Save wings, for heaven : — Porphyro grew faint ;
She knelt, so pure a thing, so free from mortal taint.

XXVI

Anon his heart revives : her vespers done,
Of all its wreathed pearls her hair she frees ;
Unclasps her warmed jewels one by one ;
Loosens her fragrant bodice ; by degrees
Her rich attire creeps rustling to her knees :
Half-hidden, like a mermaid in sea-weed,
Pensive awhile she dreams awake, and sees,
In fancy, fair St. Agnes in her bed,
But dares not look behind, or all the charm is fled.

XXVII

Soon, trembling in her soft and chilly nest,
In sort of wakeful swoon, perplex'd she lay,
Until the poppi'd warmth of sleep oppress'd
Her soothed limbs, and soul fatigued away ;
Flown, like a thought, until the morrow-day ;
Blissfully haven'd both from joy and pain ;
Clasp'd like a missal where swart Paynims pray ;
Blinded alike from sunshine and from rain,
As though a rose should shut, and be a bud again.

XXVIII

Stol'n to this paradise, and so entranced,
Porphyro gazed upon her empty dress,
And listen'd to her breathing, if it chanced
To wake into a slumberous tenderness ;
Which when he heard, that minute did he bless,
And breathed himself : then from the closet crept,

Noiseless as fear in a wide wilderness,
 And over the hush'd carpet, silent, stept,
 And 'tween the curtains peep'd, where, lo! — how fast she slept.

XXIX

Then by the bed-side, where the faded moon
 Made a dim, silver twilight, soft he set
 A table, and, half-anguish'd, threw thereon
 A cloth of woven crimson, gold, and jet : —
 O for some drowsy Morphean amulet !
 The boisterous, midnight, festive clarion,
 The kettle-drum, and far-heard clarionet,
 Affray his ears, though but in dying tone : —
 The hall-door shuts again, and all the noise is gone.

XXX

And still she slept an azure-lidded sleep,
 In blanched linen, smooth, and lavender'd,
 While he from forth the closet brought a heap
 Of candied apple, quince, and plum, and gourd ;
 With jellies soother than the creamy curd,
 And lucent syrups, tinct with cinnamon ;
 Manna and dates, in argosy transferr'd
 From Fez ; and spiced dainties, every one,
 From silken Samarcand to cedar'd Lebanon.

XXXI

These delicacies he heap'd with glowing hand
 On golden dishes and in baskets bright
 Of wreathed silver : sumptuous they stand
 In the retired quiet of the night,
 Filling the chilly room with perfume light. —
 ' And now, my love, my seraph fair, awake !
 Thou art my heaven, and I thine eremite :
 Open thine eyes, for meek St. Agnes' sake,
 Or I shall drowse beside thee, so my soul doth ache.'

XXXII

Thus whispering, his warm, unnerved arm
 Sank in her pillow. Shaded was her dream
 By the dusk curtains:—'t was a midnight charm
 Impossible to melt as iced stream :
 The lustrous salvers in the moonlight gleam ;
 Broad golden fringe upon the carpet lies :
 It seem'd he never, never could redeem
 From such a steadfast spell his lady's eyes ;
 So mused awhile, entoil'd in woofed phantasies.

XXXIII

Awakening up, he took her hollow lute, —
 Tumultuous, — and, in chords that tenderest be,
 He play'd an ancient ditty, long since mute,
 In Provence call'd ' La belle dame sans mercy :'
 Close to her ear touching the melody ; —
 Wherewith disturb'd, she utter'd a soft moan :
 He ceased — she panted quick — and suddenly
 Her blue affrayed eyes wide open shone :
 Upon his knees he sank, pale as smooth-sculptured stone.

XXXIV

Her eyes were open, but she still beheld,
 Now wide awake, the vision of her sleep :
 There was a painful change, that night expell'd
 The blisses of her dream so pure and deep
 At which fair Madeline began to weep,
 And moan forth witless words with many a sigh ;
 While still her gaze on Porphyro would keep :
 Who knelt, with joined hands and piteous eyes
 Fearing to move or speak, she look'd so dreamingly.

XXXV

' Ah, Porphyro !' said she, ' but even now
 Thy voice was at sweet tremble in mine ear, .

Made tuneable with every sweetest vow ;
 And those sad eyes were spiritual and clear :
 How changed thou art ! how pallid, chill, and drear ! -

Give me that voice again, my Porphyro,
 Those looks immortal, those complainings dear !
 Oh leave me not in this eternal woe,
 For if thou diest, my Love, I know not where to go.'

XXXVI

Beyond a mortal man impassion'd far
 At these voluptuous accents, he arose,
 Ethereal, flush'd, and like a throbbing star
 Seen mid the sapphire heaven's deep repose ;
 Into her dream he melted, as the rose
 Blendeth its odour with the violet, —
 Solution sweet : meantime the frost-wind blows
 Like Love's alarum pattering the sharp sleet
 Against the window-panes ; St. Agnes' moon hath set.

XXXVII

'T is dark : quick pattereth the flaw-blown sleet :
 ' This is no dream, my bride, my Madeline !'
 'T is dark : the iced gusts still rave and beat :
 ' No dream, alas ! alas ! and woe is mine !
 Porphyro will leave me here to fade and pine. —
 Cruel ! what traitor could thee hither bring ?
 I curse not, for my heart is lost in thine,
 Though thou forsakest a deceived thing ; —
 A dove forlorn and lost with sick unpruned wing.'

XXXVIII

My Madeline ! sweet dreamer ! lovely bride !
 Say, may I be for aye thy vassal blest ?
 Thy beauty's shield, heart-shaped and vermeil dyed ?
 Ah, silver shrine, here will I take my rest
 After so many hours of toil and quest,

A famish'd pilgrim, — saved by miracle.
 Though I have found, I will not rob thy nest
 Saving of thy sweet self ; if thou think'st well
 To trust, fair Madeline, to no rude infidel.

XXXIX

' Hark ! 't is an elfin storm from faery land,
 Of haggard seeming, but a boon indeed :
 Arise — arise ! the morning is at hand : —
 The bloated wassailers will never heed : —
 Let us away, my love, with happy speed ;
 There are no ears to hear, or eyes to see, —
 Drown'd all in Rhenish and the sleepy mead :
 Awake ! arise ! my love, and fearless be,
 For o'er the southern moors I have a home for thee.'

XL

She hurried at his words, beset with fears,
 For there were sleeping dragons all around,
 At glaring watch, perhaps, with ready spears —
 Down the wide stairs a darkling way they found. —
 In all the house was heard no human sound.
 A chain-droop'd lamp was flickering by each door ;
 The arras, rich with horseman, hawk, and hound,
 Flutter'd in the besieging wind's uproar ;
 And the long carpets rose along the gusty floor.

XLI

They glide, like phantoms, into the wide hall ;
 Like phantoms to the iron porch they glide,
 Where lay the Porter, in uneasy sprawl,
 With a huge empty flagon by his side :
 The wakeful bloodhound rose, and shook his hide,
 But his sagacious eye an inmate owns :
 By one, and one, the bolts full easy slide : —
 The chains lie silent on the footworn stones ; —
 The key turns, and the door upon its hinges groans.

XLII

And they are gone : aye, ages long ago
 These lovers fled away into the storm.
 That night the Baron dreamt of many a woe,
 And all his warrior-guests, with shade and form
 Of witch, and demon, and large coffin-worm,
 Were long be-nightmared. Angela the old
 Died palsy-twitch'd, with meagre face deform :
 The Beadsman, after thousand aves told,
 For aye unsought-for slept among his ashes cold.

ODE ON A GRECIAN URN

I

THOU still unravish'd bride of quietness,
 Thou foster-child of Silence and slow Time,
 Sylvan historian, who canst thus express
 A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme :
 What leaf-fringed legend haunts about thy shape
 Of deities or mortals, 'or of both,
 In Tempe or the dales of Arcady ?
 What men or gods are these ? what maidens loth ?
 What mad pursuit ? What struggle to escape ?
 What pipes and timbrels ? What wild ecstasy ?

II

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
 Are sweeter ; therefore, ye soft pipes, play on ;
 Not to the sensual ear, but, more endear'd
 Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone :
 Fair youth, beneath the trees, thou canst not leave
 Thy song, nor ever can those trees be bare ;
 Bold Lover, never, never canst thou kiss,
 Though winning near the goal — yet, do not grieve ;
 She cannot fade, though thou hast not thy bliss,
 For ever wilt thou love, and she be fair !

III

Ah, happy, happy boughs ! that cannot shed
 Your leaves, nor ever bid the Spring adieu ;
 And, happy melodist, unwearied,
 For ever piping songs for ever new ;
 More happy love ! more happy, happy love !
 For ever warm and still to be enjoy'd,
 For ever panting, and for ever young ;
 All breathing human passion far above,
 That leaves a heart high-sorrowful and cloy'd,
 A burning forehead, and a parching tongue.

IV

Who are these coming to the sacrifice ?
 To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
 Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
 And all her silken flanks with garlands drest ?
 What little town by river or sea shore,
 Or mountain-built with peaceful citadel,
 Is emptied of this folk, this pious morn ?
 And, little town, thy streets for evermore
 Will silent be ; and not a soul to tell
 Why thou art desolate, can e'er return.

V

O Attic shade ! Fair attitude ! with brede
 Of marble men and maidens overwrought,
 With forest branches and the trodden weed ;
 Thou, silent form, dost tease us out of thought
 As doth eternity : Cold Pastoral !
 When old age shall this generation waste,
 Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
 Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
 'Beauty is truth, truth beauty,' — that is all
 Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

ODE ON INDOLENCE

' They toil not, neither do they spin.'

I

ONE morn before me were three figures seen,
 With bowed necks, and joined hands, side-faced ;
 And one behind the other stepp'd serene,
 In placid sandals, and in white robes graced ;
 They pass'd, like figures on a marble urn,
 When shifted round to see the other side ;
 They came again ; as when the urn once more
 Is shifted round, the first seen shades return ;
 And they were strange to me, as may betide
 With vases, to one deep in Phidian lore.

II

How is it, Shadows ! that I knew ye not ?
 How came ye muffled in so hush a mask ?
 Was it a silent deep-disguised plot
 To steal away, and leave without a task
 My idle days ? Ripe was the drowsy hour ;
 The blissful cloud of summer-indolence
 Benumb'd my eyes ; my pulse grew less and less ;
 Pain had no sting, and pleasure's wreath no flower :
 O, why did ye not melt, and leave my sense
 Unhaunted quite of all but — nothingness ?

III

A third time pass'd they by, and, passing, turn'd
 Each one the face a moment whiles to me ;
 Then faded, and to follow them I burn'd
 And ached for wings, because I knew the three ;
 The first was a fair Maid, and Love her name ;
 The second was Ambition, pale of cheek,
 And ever watchful with fatigued eye ;
 The last, whom I love more, the more of blame

Is heap'd upon her, maiden most unmeek, —
I knew to be my demon Poesy.

IV

They faded, and, forsooth! I wanted wings:
O folly! What is Love? and where is it?
And for that poor Ambition! it springs
From a man's little heart's short fever-fit;
For Poesy! — no, — she has not a joy, —
At least for me, — so sweet as drowsy noons,
And evenings steep'd in honied indolence;
O, for an age so shelter'd from annoy,
That I may never know how change the moons,
Or hear the voice of busy common-sense!

V

And once more came they by; — alas! wherefore?
My sleep had been embroider'd with dim dreams;
My soul had been a lawn besprinkled o'er
With flowers, and stirring shades, and baffled beams:
The morn was clouded, but no shower fell,
Tho' in her lids hung the sweet tears of May;
The open casement press'd a new-leaved vine,
Let in the budding warmth and throstle's lay;
O Shadows! 't was a time to bid farewell!
Upon your skirts had fallen no tears of mine.

VI

So, ye three Ghosts, adieu! Ye cannot raise
My head cool-bedded in the flowery grass;
For I would not be dieted with praise,
A pet-lamb in a sentimental farce!
Fade softly from my eyes and be once more
In masque-like figures on the dreamy urn;
Farewell! I yet have visions for the night,
And for the day faint visions there is store;
Vanish, ye Phantoms! from my idle spright,
Into the clouds, and nevermore return!

SONNET

WHY did I laugh to-night ? No voice will tell ;
 No God, no Demon of severe response,
 Deigns to reply from Heaven or from Hell :
 Then to my human heart I turn at once.
 Heart ! Thou and I are here sad and alone ;
 I say, why did I laugh ? O mortal pain !
 O Darkness ! Darkness ! ever must I moan,
 To question Heaven and Hell and Heart in vain.
 Why did I laugh ? I know this Being's lease,
 My fancy to its utmost blisses spreads ;
 Yet would I on this very midnight cease,
 And the world's gaudy ensigns see in shreds ;
 Verse, Fame, and Beauty are intense indeed,
 But Death intenser — Death is Life's high meed.

ODE TO FANNY

PHYSICIAN Nature ! let my spirit blood !
 O ease my heart of verse and let me rest ;
 Throw me upon thy Tripod, till the flood
 Of stifling numbers ebbs from my full breast.
 A theme ! a theme ! great Nature ! give a theme ;
 Let me begin my dream.
 I come — I see thee, as thou standest there ;
 Beckon me not into the wintry air.

Ah ! dearest love, sweet home of all my fears,
 And hopes, and joys, and panting miseries, —
 To-night, if I may guess, thy beauty wears
 A smile of such delight,
 As brilliant and as bright,
 As when with ravish'd, aching, vassal eyes,
 Lost in soft amaze,
 I gaze, I gaze !

Who now, with greedy looks, eats up my feast ?

What stare outfaces now my silver moon !

Ah ! keep that hand unravished at the least ;

Let, let the amorous burn —

But, pr'ythee, do not turn

The current of your heart from me so soon.

O ! save, in charity,

The quickest pulse for me.

Save it for me, sweet love ! though music breathe

Voluptuous visions into the warm air,

Though swimming through the dance's dangerous wreath ;

Be like an April day,

Smiling and cold and gay,

A temperate lily, temperate as fair ;

Then, Heaven ! there will be

A warmer June for me.

Why, this — you 'll say, my Fanny ! is not true :

Put your soft hand upon your snowy side,

Where the heart beats : confess — 't is nothing new —

Must not a woman be

A feather on the sea,

Sway'd to and fro by every wind and tide ?

Of as uncertain speed

As blow-ball from the mead ?

I know it — and to know it is despair

To one who loves you as I love, sweet Fanny !

Whose heart goes fluttering for you everywhere,

Nor, when away you roam,

Dare keep its wretched home :

Love, love alone, has pains severe and many :

Then, loveliest ! keep me free

From torturing jealousy.

Ah ! if you prize my subdued soul above

The poor, the fading, brief pride of an hour ;

Let none profane my Holy See of love,
 Or with a rude hand break
 The sacramental cake :
 Let none else touch the just new-budded flower ;
 If not — may my eyes close,
 Lov'd on their last repose.

A DREAM, AFTER READING DANTE'S
 EPISODE OF PAOLO AND FRANCESCA

As Hermes once took to his feathers light,
 When lulled Argus, baffled, swoon'd and slept
 So on a Delphic reed, my idle spright
 So play'd, so charm'd, so conquer'd, so bereft
 The dragon-world of all its hundred eyes ;
 And seeing it asleep, so fled away —
 Not to pure Ida with its snow-cold skies,
 Nor unto Tempe where Jove grieved a day ;
 But to that second circle of sad hell,
 Where 'mid the gust, the whirlwind, and the flaw
 Of rain and hail-stones, lovers need not tell
 Their sorrows. Pale were the sweet lips I saw,
 Pale were the lips I kiss'd, and fair the form
 I floated with, about that melancholy storm.

LA BELLE DAME SANS MERCI

I

Ah, what can ail thee, wretched wight,
 Alone and palely loitering ?
 The sedge is wither'd from the lake,
 And no birds sing.

II

Ah, what can ail thee, wretched wight,
 So haggard and so woe-begone ?

The squirrel's granary is full,
And the harvest 's done.

III

I see a lily on thy brow,
With anguish moist and fever dew ;
And on thy cheek a fading rose
Fast withereth too.

IV

I met a lady in the meads,
Full beautiful — a faery's child ;
Her hair was long, her foot was light,
And her eyes were wild.

V

I set her on my pacing steed,
And nothing else saw all day long,
For sideways would she lean, and sing
A faery's song.

VI

I made a garland for her head,
And bracelets too, and fragrant zone ;
She look'd at me as she did love,
And made sweet moan.

VII

She found me roots of relish sweet,
And honey wild, and manna dew ;
And sure in language strange she said —
' I love thee true.'

VIII

She took me to her elfin grot,
And there she gazed, and sighed deep,
And there I shut her wild wild eyes
So kiss'd to sleep.

IX

And there we slumber'd on the moss,
 And there I dream'd — Ah ! woe betide !
 The latest dream I ever dream'd
 On the cold hill side.

X

I saw pale kings, and princes too,
 Pale warriors, death-pale were they all ;
 They cried — ' La Belle Dame sans Merci
 Hath thee in thrall !'

XI

I saw their starved lips in the gloam,
 With horrid warning gaped wide,
 And I awoke, and found me here
 On the cold hill side.

XII

And this is why I sojourn here,
 Alone and palely loitering,
 Though the sedge is wither'd from the lake,
 And no birds sing.

CHORUS OF FAIRIES

FIRE, AIR, EARTH, AND WATER
 SALAMANDER, ZEPHYR, DUSKETHA, AND BREAMA

SALAMANDER

HAPPY, happy glowing fire !

ZEPHYR

Fragrant air ! delicious light !

DUSKETHA

Let me to my glooms retire !

BREAMA

I to green-weed rivers bright !

SALAMANDER

Happy, happy glowing fire !
 Dazzling bowers of soft retire,
 Ever let my nourish'd wing,
 Like a bat's, still wandering,
 Faintly fan your fiery spaces,
 Spirit sole in deadly places. 10
 In unhaunted roar and blaze,
 Open eyes that never daze,
 Let me see the myriad shapes
 Of men, and beasts, and fish, and apes,
 Portray'd in many a fiery den,
 And wrought by spumy bitumen.
 On the deep intenser roof,
 Arched every way, aloof,
 Let me breathe upon my skies,
 And anger their live tapestries; 20
 Free from cold, and every care,
 Of chilly rain, and shivering air.

ZEPHYR

Spright of Fire ! away ! away !
 Or your very roundelay
 Will sear my plumage newly budded
 From its quilled sheath, and studded
 With the self-same dews that fell
 On the May-grown Asphodel.
 Spright of Fire — away ! away !

BREAMA

Spright of Fire — away ! away ! 30
 Zephyr, blue-eyed Faery, turn,
 And see my cool sedge-shaded urn,
 Where it rests its mossy brim
 'Mid water-mint and cresses dim ;

And the flowers, in sweet troubles,
 Lift their eyes above the bubbles,
 Like our Queen, when she would please
 To sleep, and Oberon will tease.
 Love me, blue-eyed Faery ! true,
 Soothly I am sick for you.

40

ZEPHYR

Gentle Breama ! by the first
 Violet young nature nurst,
 I will bathe myself with thee,
 So you sometime follow me
 To my home, far, far, in west,
 Far beyond the search and quest
 Of the golden-browed sun.
 Come with me, o'er tops of trees,
 To my fragrant palaces,
 Where they ever floating are
 Beneath the cherish of a star
 Call'd Vesper, who with silver veil
 Ever hides his brilliance pale,
 Ever gently-drowsed doth keep
 Twilight for the Fays to sleep.
 Fear not that your watery hair
 Will thirst in drouthy ringlets there ;
 Clouds of stored summer rains
 Thou shalt taste, before the stains
 Of the mountain soil they take,
 And too unlucent for thee make.
 I love thee, crystal Faery, true !
 Sooth I am as sick for you !

50

60

SALAMANDER

Out, ye aguish Faeries, out !
 Chilly lovers, what a rout
 Keep ye with your frozen breath,
 Colder than the mortal death.
 Adder-eyed Dusketha, speak,
 Shall we leave them, and go seek

CHORUS OF FAIRIES

245

In the earth's wide entrails old
 Couches warm as theirs is cold ?
 O for a fiery gloom and thee,
 Dusketha, so enchantingly
 Freckle-wing'd and lizard-sided !

70

DUSKETHA

By thee, Spright, will I be guided !
 I care not for cold or heat ;
 Frost and flame, or sparks, or sleet,
 To my essence are the same ; —
 But I honour more the flame.
 Spright of fire, I follow thee
 Wheresoever it may be ;
 To the torrid spouts and fountains,
 Underneath earth-quaked mountains ;
 Or, at thy supreme desire,
 Touch the very pulse of fire
 With my bare unlidded eyes.

80

SALAMANDER

Sweet Dusketha ! paradise !
 Off, ye icy Spirits, fly !
 Frosty creatures of the sky !

DUSKETHA

Breathe upon them, fiery Spright !

90

ZEPHYR, BREAMA (to each other)

Away ! away to our delight !

SALAMANDER

Go, feed on icicles, while we
 Bedded in tongued flames will be.

DUSKETHA

Lead me to these fev'rous glooms,
 Spright of Fire !

BREAMA

Me to the blooms,
 Blue eyed Zephyr of those flowers
 Far in the west where the May-cloud lowers :
 And the beams of still Vesper, where winds are all whist,
 Are shed thro' the rain and the milder mist,
 And twilight your floating bowers.

FAERY SONGS

I

SHED no tear ! O shed no tear !
 The flower will bloom another year.
 Weep no more ! O weep no more !
 Young buds sleep in the root's white core.
 Dry your eyes ! O dry your eyes,
 For I was taught in Paradise
 To ease my breast of melodies —
 Shed no tear.

Overhead ! look overhead
 'Mong the blossoms white and red —
 Look up, look up — I flutter now
 On this flush pomegranate bough.
 See me ! 't is this silvery bill
 Ever cures the good man's ill.
 Shed no tear ! O shed no tear !
 The flower will bloom another year.
 Adieu, Adieu — I fly, adieu,
 I vanish in the heaven's blue —
 Adieu, Adieu !

II

Ah ! woe is me ! poor silver-wing !
 That I must chant thy lady's dirge,

And death to this fair haunt of spring,
 Of melody, and streams of flowery verge, —
     Poor silver-wing ! ah ! woe is me !
     That I must see
 These blossoms snow upon thy lady's pall !
     Go, pretty page ! and in her ear
     Whisper that the hour is near !
     Softly tell her not to fear
 Such calm favonian burial !
     Go, pretty page ! and soothly tell, —
     The blossoms hang by a melting spell,
 And fall they must, ere a star wink thrice
     Upon her closed eyes,
 That now in vain are weeping their last tears,
     At sweet life leaving, and those arbours green, —
 Rich dowry from the Spirit of the Spheres, —
     Alas ! poor Queen !

ON FAME

‘ You cannot eat your cake and have it too. ’ — Proverb.

How fever'd is that man, who cannot look
     Upon his mortal days with temperate blood,
 Who vexes all the leaves of his life's book,
     And robs his fair name of its maidenhood :
 It is as if the rose should pluck herself,
     Or the ripe plum finger its misty bloom ;
 As if a Naiad, like a meddling elf,
     Should darken her pure grot with muddy gloom.
 But the rose leaves herself upon the brier,
     For winds to kiss and grateful bees to feed,
 And the ripe plum still wears its dim attire,
     The undisturbed lake has crystal space :
     Why then should man, teasing the world for grace,
 Spoil his salvation for a fierce miscreed ?

ANOTHER ON FAME

FAME, like a wayward girl, will still be coy
 To those who woo her with too slavish knees,
 But makes surrender to some thoughtless boy,
 And dotes the more upon a heart at ease ;
 She is a Gipsy, — will not speak to those
 Who have not learnt to be content without her ;
 A Jilt, whose ear was never whisper'd close,
 Who thinks they scandal her who talk about her ;
 A very Gipsy is she, Nilus-born,
 Sister-in-law to jealous Potiphar ;
 Ye lovesick Bards ! repay her scorn for scorn ;
 Ye Artists lovelorn ! madmen that ye are !
 Make your best bow to her and bid adieu,
 Then, if she likes it, she will follow you.

TO SLEEP

O SOFT embalmer of the still midnight,
 Shutting, with careful fingers and benign,
 Our gloom-pleased eyes, embower'd from the light,
 Enshaded in forgetfulness divine :
 O soothest Sleep ! if so it please thee, close,
 In midst of this thine hymn, my willing eyes,
 Or wait the amen, ere thy poppy throws
 Around my bed its dewy charities ;
 Then save me, or the passed day will shine
 Upon my pillow, breeding many woes ;
 Save me from curious conscience, that still lords
 Its strength for darkness, burrowing like a mole ;
 Turn the key deftly in the oiled wards,
 And seal the hushed casket of my soul.

ODE TO PSYCHE

I

O GODDESS ! hear these tuneless numbers, wrung
By sweet enforcement and remembrance dear,
And pardon that thy secrets should be sung
Even into thine own soft-conched ear :
Surely I dreamt to-day, or did I see
The winged Psyche with awaken'd eyes ?
I wander'd in a forest thoughtlessly,
And, on the sudden, fainting with surprise,
Saw two fair creatures, couched side by side
In deepest grass, beneath the whisp'ring roof
Of leaves and trembled blossoms, where there ran
A brooklet, scarce espied :

II

'Mid hush'd, cool-rooted flowers fragrant-eyed,
Blue, silver-white, and budded Tyrian,
They lay calm-breathing on the bedded grass ;
Their arms embraced, and their pinions too ;
Their lips touch'd not, but had not bade adieu,
As if disjoined by soft-handed slumber,
And ready still past kisses to outnumber
At tender eye-dawn of aureorean love :
The winged boy I knew ;
But who wast thou, O happy, happy dove ?
His Psyche true !

III

O latest-born and loveliest vision far
Of all Olympus' faded hierarchy !
Fairer than Phœbe's sapphire-region'd star,
Or Vesper, amorous glow-worm of the sky ;
Fairer than these, though temple thou hast none,
Nor altar heap'd with flowers ;

Nor virgin-choir to make delicious moan
 Upon the midnight hours ;
 No voice, no lute, no pipe, no incense sweet
 From chain-swung censer teeming ;
 No shrine, no grove, no oracle, no heat
 Of pale-mouth'd prophet dreaming.

IV

O brightest ! though too late for antique vows,
 Too, too late for the fond believing lyre,
 When holy were the haunted forest boughs,
 Holy the air, the water, and the fire ;
 Yet even in these days so far retired
 From happy pieties, thy lucent fans,
 Fluttering among the faint Olympians,
 I see, and sing, by my own eyes inspired.
 So let me be thy choir, and make a moan
 Upon the midnight hours ;
 Thy voice, thy lute, thy pipe, thy incense sweet
 From swung censer teeming ;
 Thy shrine, thy grove, thy oracle, thy heat
 Of pale-mouth'd prophet dreaming.

V

Yes, I will be thy priest, and build a fane
 In some untrodden region of my mind,
 Where branched thoughts, new-grown with pleasant
 pain,
 Instead of pines shall murmur in the wind :
 Far, far around shall those dark-cluster'd trees
 Fledge the wild-ridged mountains steep by steep ;
 And there by zephyrs, streams, and birds, and bees,
 The moss-lain Dryads shall be lulled to sleep,
 And in the midst of this wide quietness
 A rosy sanctuary will I dress
 With the wreath'd trellis of a working brain,
 With buds, and bells, and stars without a name,

With all the gardener Fancy e'er could feign,
 Who breeding flowers, will never breed the same:
 And there shall be for thee all soft delight
     That shadowy thought can win,
 A bright torch, and a casement ope at night,
     To let the warm Love in !

SONNET

IF by dull rhymes our English must be chain'd,
 And, like Andromeda, the Sonnet sweet
 Fetter'd, in spite of pained loveliness ;
 Let us find out, if we must be constrain'd,
     Sandals more interwoven and complete
 To fit the naked foot of poesy ;
 Let us inspect the lyre, and weigh the stress
 Of every chord, and see what may be gain'd
     By ear industrious, and attention meet ;
 Misers of sound and syllable, no less
 Than Midas of his coinage, let us be
     Jealous of dead leaves in the bay-wreath crown :
 So, if we may not let the Muse be free,
     She will be bound with garlands of her own.

ODE TO A NIGHTINGALE

I

My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
 My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk,
 Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains
 One minute past, and Lethe-wards had sunk :
 'Tis not through envy of thy happy lot,
 But being too happy in thine happiness, —
     That thou, light-winged Dryad of the trees,
     In some melodious plot
 Of beechen green, and shadows numberless,
     Singest of summer in full-throated ease.

II

O for a draught of vintage! that hath been
 Cool'd a long age in the deep-delved earth,
 Tasting of Flora and the country-green,
 Dance, and Provençal song, and sunburnt mirth!
 O for a beaker full of the warm South,
 Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,
 With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
 And purple-stained mouth ;
 That I might drink, and leave the world unseen,
 And with thee fade away into the forest dim :

III

Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
 What thou among the leaves hast never known,
 The weariness, the fever, and the fret
 Here, where men sit and hear each other groan ;
 Where palsy shakes a few, sad, last gray hairs,
 Where youth grows pale, and spectre-thin, and dies ;
 Where but to think is to be full of sorrow
 And leaden-eyed despairs,
 Where Beauty cannot keep her lustrous eyes,
 Or new Love pine at them beyond to-morrow.

IV

Away ! away ! for I will fly to thee,
 Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
 But on the viewless wings of Poesy,
 Though the dull brain perplexes and retards :
 Already with thee ! tender is the night,
 And haply the Queen-Moon is on her throne,
 Cluster'd around by all her starry Fays ;
 But here there is no light,
 Save what from heaven is with the breezes blown
 Through verdurous glooms and winding mossy ways.

v

I cannot see what flowers are at my feet,
Nor what soft incense hangs upon the boughs,
But, in embalmed darkness, guess each sweet
Wherewith the seasonable month endows
The grass, the thicket, and the fruit-tree wild ;
White hawthorn, and the pastoral eglantine ;
Fast fading violets cover'd up in leaves ;
And mid-May's eldest child,
The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine,
The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves.

vi

Darkling I listen ; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Call'd him soft names in many a mused rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath ;
Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain,
While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
In such an ecstasy !
Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain —
To thy high requiem become a sod.

vii

Thou wast not born for death, immortal Bird !
No hungry generations tread thee down ;
The voice I hear this passing night was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown :
Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn ;
The same that oft-times hath
Charm'd magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.

VIII

Forlorn ! the very word is like a bell
 To toll me back from thee to my sole self !
 Adieu ! the fancy cannot cheat so well
 As she is famed to do, deceiving elf.
 Adieu ! adieu ! thy plaintive anthem fades
 Past the near meadows, over the still stream,
 Up the hill-side ; and now 't is buried deep
 In the next valley-glades :
 Was it a vision, or a waking dream ?
 Fled is that music : — do I wake or sleep ?

LAMIA

PART I

UPON a time, before the faery broods
 Drove Nymph and Satyr from the prosperous woods,
 Before King Oberon's bright diadem,
 Sceptre, and mantle, clasp'd with dewy gem,
 Frighted away the Dryads and the Fauns
 From rushes green, and brakes, and cowslipp'd lawns,
 The ever-smitten Hermes empty left
 His golden throne, bent warm on amorous theft ;
 From high Olympus had he stolen light,
 On this side of Jove's clouds, to escape the sight 10
 Of his great summer, and made retreat
 Into a forest on the shores of Crete.
 For somewhere in that sacred island dwelt
 A nymph, to whom all hooped Satyrs knelt ;
 At whose white feet the languid Tritons poured
 Pearls, while on land they wither'd and adored.
 Fast by the springs where she to bathe was wont,
 And in those meads where sometimes she might haunt,
 Were strewn rich gifts, unknown to any Muse,

Though Fancy's casket were unlock'd to choose. 20
 Ah, what a world of love was at her feet!
 So Hermes thought, and a celestial heat
 Burnt from his winged heels to either ear,
 That from a whiteness, as the lily clear,
 Blush'd into roses 'mid his golden hair,
 Fallen in jealous curls about his shoulders bare.

From vale to vale, from wood to wood, he flew,
 Breathing upon the flowers his passion new,
 And wound with many a river to its head,
 To find where this sweet nymph prepared her secret bed : 30

In vain ; the sweet nymph might nowhere be found,
 And so he rested, on the lonely ground,
 Pensive, and full of painful jealousies
 Of the Wood-Gods, and even the very trees.
 There as he stood, he heard a mournful voice,
 Such as once heard, in gentle heart, destroys
 All pain but pity: thus the lone voice spake :
 ' When from this wreathed tomb shall I awake !
 When move in a sweet body fit for life,
 And love, and pleasure, and the ruddy strife 40
 Of hearts and lips! Ah, miserable me !'
 The God, dove-footed, glided silently
 Round bush and tree, soft-brushing, in his speed,
 The taller grasses and full-flowering weed,
 Until he found a palpitating snake,
 Bright, and cirque-couchant in a dusky brake.

She was a gordian shape of dazzling hue,
 Vermilion-spotted, golden, green, and blue ;
 Striped like a zebra, freckled like a pard,
 Eyed like a peacock, and all crimson barr'd ; 50
 And full of silver moons, that, as she breathed,
 Dissolved, or brighter shone, or interwreathed
 Their lustres with the gloomier tapestries —
 So rainbow-sided, touch'd with miseries,

She seem'd, at once, some penanced lady elf,
 Some demon's mistress, or the demon's self.
 Upon her crest she wore a wannish fire
 Sprinkled with stars, like Ariadne's tiar :
 Her head was serpent, but ah, bitter-sweet !
 She had a woman's mouth with all its pearls complete : 60

And for her eyes — what could such eyes do there
 But weep, and weep, that they were born so fair ?

As Proserpine still weeps for her Sicilian air.
 Her throat was serpent, but the words she spake
 Came, as through bubbling honey, for Love's sake,
 And thus ; while Hermes on his pinions lay,
 Like a stoop'd falcon ere he takes his prey :

‘ Fair Hermes ! crown'd with feathers, fluttering light,

I had a splendid dream of thee last night :
 I saw thee sitting, on a throne of gold, 70
 Among the Gods, upon Olympus old,
 The only sad one ; for thou didst not hear
 The soft, lute-finger'd Muses chanting clear,
 Nor even Apollo when he sang alone,
 Deaf to his throbbing throat's long, long melodious
 moan.

I dreamt I saw thee, robed in purple flakes,
 Break amorous through the clouds, as morning
 breaks,

And, swiftly as a bright Phœbean dart,
 Strike for the Cretan isle ; and here thou art !
 Too gentle Hermes, hast thou found the maid ?' 80
 Whereat the star of Lethe not delay'd
 His rosy eloquence, and thus inquired :
 ‘ Thou smooth-lipp'd serpent, surely high-inspired !
 Thou beauteous wreath, with melancholy eyes,
 Possess whatever bliss thou canst devise,
 Telling me only where my nymph is fled, —

Where she doth breathe!' 'Bright planet, thou hast said,'

Return'd the snake, 'but seal with oaths, fair God!'

'I swear,' said Hermes, 'by my serpent rod,
And by thine eyes, and by thy starry crown! 90

Light flew his earnest words, among the blossoms blown.

Then thus again the brilliance feminine :

'Too frail of heart! for this lost nymph of thine,

Free as the air, invisibly, she strays

About these thornless wilds; her pleasant days

She tastes unseen; unseen her nimble feet

Leave traces in the grass and flowers sweet;

From weary tendrils, and bow'd branches green,

She plucks the fruit unseen, she bathes unseen :

And by my power is her beauty veil'd 100

To keep it unaffronted, unassail'd

By the love-glances of unlovely eyes,

Of Satyrs, Fauns, and blear'd Silenus' sighs.

Pale grew her immortality, for woe

Of all these lovers, and she grieved so

I took compassion on her, bade her steep

Her hair in weird syrops, that would keep

Her loveliness invisible, yet free

To wander as she loves, in liberty.

Thou shalt behold her, Hermes, thou alone, 110

If thou wilt, as thou swearest, grant my boon!'

Then, once again, the charmed God began

An oath, and through the serpent's ears it ran

Warm, tremulous, devout, psalterian.

Ravish'd she lifted her Circean head,

Blush'd a live damask, and swift-lipping said,

'I was a woman, let me have once more

A woman's shape, and charming as before.

I love a youth of Corinth — O the bliss!

Give me my woman's form, and place me where he
is. 120

Stoop, Hermes, let me breathe upon thy brow,

And thou shalt see thy sweet nymph even now.'
 The God on half-shut feathers sank serene,
 She breathed upon his eyes, and swift was seen
 Of both the guarded nymph near-smiling on the green.

It was no dream ; or say a dream it was,
 Real are the dreams of Gods, and smoothly pass
 Their pleasures in a long immortal dream.
 One warm, flush'd moment, hovering, it might seem
 Dash'd by the wood-nymph's beauty, so he burn'd ;
 Then, lighting on the printless verdure, turn'd 131
 To the swoon'd serpent, and with languid arm,
 Delicate, put to proof the lithe Caducean charm.
 So done, upon the nymph his eyes he bent
 Full of adoring tears and blandishment,
 And towards her stept : she, like a moon in wane,
 Faded before him, cower'd, nor could restrain
 Her fearful sobs, self-folding like a flower
 That faints into itself at evening hour :
 But the God fostering her chilled hand, 140
 She felt the warmth, her eyelids open'd bland,
 And, like new flowers at morning song of bees,
 Bloom'd, and gave up her honey to the lees.
 Into the green-recessed woods they flew ;
 Nor grew they pale, as mortal lovers do.

Left to herself, the serpent now began
 To change ; her elfin blood in madness ran,
 Her mouth foam'd, and the grass, therewith be-spreant,
 Wither'd at dew so sweet and virulent ;
 Her eyes in torture fix'd, and anguish drear, 150
 Hot, glazed, and wide, with lid-lashes all sear, Flash'd phosphor and sharp sparks, without one cooling tear.

The colours all inflamed throughout her train,
 She writhed about, convulsed with scarlet pain :
 A deep volcanian yellow took the place

Of all her milder-mooned body's grace ;
 And, as the lava ravishes the mead,
 Spoilt all her silver mail, and golden brede :
 Made gloom of all her frecklings, streaks and bars,
 Eclipsed her crescents, and lick'd up her stars : 160
 So that, in moments few, she was undrest
 Of all her sapphires, greens, and amethyst,
 And rubious-argent: of all these bereft,
 Nothing but pain and ugliness were left.
 Still shone her crown ; that vanish'd, also she Melted and disappear'd as suddenly ;
 And in the air, her new voice luting soft,
 Cried, ' Lycius ! gentle Lycius ! ' — Borne aloft
 With the bright mists about the mountains hoar
 These words dissolved: Crete's forests heard no
 more. 170

Whither fled Lamia, now a lady bright,
 A full-born beauty new and exquisite ?
 She fled into that valley they pass o'er
 Who go to Corinth from Cenchreas' shore ;
 And rested at the foot of those wild hills,
 The rugged founts of the Peræan rills,
 And of that other ridge whose barren back
 Stretches, with all its mist and cloudy rack,
 South-westward to Cleone. There she stood
 About a young bird's flutter from a wood, 180
 Fair, on a sloping green of mossy tread,
 By a clear pool, wherein she passioned
 To see herself escaped from so sore ills,
 While her robes flaunted with the daffodils.

Ah, happy Lycius ! — for she was a maid
 More beautiful than ever twisted braid,
 Or sigh'd, or blush'd, or on spring-flowered lea
 Spread a green kirtle to the minstrelsy :
 A virgin purest lipp'd, yet in the lore
 Of love deep learned to the red heart's core : 190

Not one hour old, yet of sciential brain
 To unperplex bliss from its neighbour pain ;
 Define their pettish limits, and estrange
 Their points of contact, and swift counterchange ;
 Intrigue with the specious chaos, and dispart
 Its most ambiguous atoms with sure art ;
 As though in Cupid's college she had spent
 Sweet days a lovely graduate, still unshent,
 And kept his rosy terms in idle languishment.

Why this fair creature chose so fairily 200
 By the wayside to linger, we shall see ;
 But first 't is fit to tell how she could muse
 And dream, when in the serpent prison-house,
 Of all she list, strange or magnificent :
 How, ever, where she will'd, her spirit went ;
 Whether to faint Elysium, or where
 Down through tress-lifting waves the Nereids fair
 Wind into Thetis' bower by many a pearly stair ;
 Or where God Bacchus drains his cups divine,
 Stretch'd out, at ease, beneath a glutinous pine ; 210
 Or where in Pluto's gardens palatine
 Mulciber's columns gleam in far piazzian line.
 And sometimes into cities she would send
 Her dream, with feast and rioting to blend ;
 And once, while among mortals dreaming thus,
 She saw the young Corinthian Lycius
 Charioting foremost in the envious race,
 Like a young Jove with calm uneager face,
 And fell into a swooning love of him.
 Now on the moth-time of that evening dim 220
 He would return that way, as well she knew,
 To Corinth from the shore ; for freshly blew
 The eastern soft wind, and his galley now
 Grated the quay-stones with her brazen prow
 In port Cenchreas, from Egina isle
 Fresh anchor'd ; whither he had been awhile
 To sacrifice to Jove, whose temple there

Waits with high marble doors for blood and incense rare.

Jove heard his vows, and better'd his desire ;
For by some freakful chance he made retire 230

From his companions, and set forth to walk,
Perhaps grown wearied of their Corinth talk :
Over the solitary hills he fared,

Thoughtless at first, but ere eve's star appear'd
His phantasy was lost, where reason fades,
In the calm'd twilight of Platonic shades.

Lamia beheld him coming, near, more near —

Close to her passing, in indifference drear,

His silent sandals swept the mossy green ;

So neighbour'd to him, and yet so unseen 240

She stood : he pass'd, shut up in mysteries,

His mind wrapp'd like his mantle, while her eyes

Follow'd his steps, and her neck regal white

Turn'd — syllabing thus, ' Ah, Lycius bright !

And will you leave me on the hills alone ?

Lycius, look back ! and be some pity shown.'

He did ; not with cold wonder fearingly,

But Orpheus-like at an Eurydice ;

For so delicious were the words she sung,

It seem'd he had loved them a whole summer long :

And soon his eyes had drunk her beauty up, 251

Leaving no drop in the bewildering cup,

And still the cup was full, — while he, afraid

Lest she should vanish ere his lips had paid

Due adoration, thus began to adore ;

Her soft look growing coy, she saw his chain so sure :

' Leave thee alone ! Look back ! Ah, Goddess,
see

Whether my eyes can ever turn from thee !

For pity do not this sad heart belie —

Even as thou vanishest so I shall die. 260

Stay ! though a Naiad of the rivers, stay !

To thy far wishes will thy streams obey :

Stay ! though the greenest woods be thy domain,
 Alone they can drink up the morning rain :
 Though a descended Pleiad, will not one
 Of thine harmonious sisters keep in tune
 Thy spheres, and as thy silver proxy shine ?
 So sweetly to these ravish'd ears of mine
 Came thy sweet greeting, that if thou shouldst
 fade,

Thy memory will waste me to a shade : — 270
 For pity do not melt ! — ‘ If I should stay,’
 Said Lamia, ‘ here, upon this floor of clay,
 And pain my steps upon these flowers too rough,
 What canst thou say or do of charm enough
 To dull the nice remembrance of my home ?
 Thou canst not ask me with thee here to roam
 Over these hills and vales, where no joy is, —
 Empty of immortality and bliss !

Thou art a scholar, Lycius, and must know
 That finer spirits cannot breathe below 280
 In human climes, and live : Alas ! poor youth,
 What taste of purer air hast thou to soothe
 My essence ? What serener palaces,
 Where I may all my many senses please,
 And by mysterious sleights a hundred thirsts appease ?

It cannot be — Adieu !’ So said, she rose
 Tiptoe with white arms spread. He, sick to lose
 The amorous promise of her lone complain,
 Swoon'd murmuring of love, and pale with pain.
 The cruel lady, without any show 290
 Of sorrow for her tender favourite's woe,
 But rather, if her eyes could brighter be,
 With brighter eyes and slow amenity,
 Put her new lips to his, and gave afresh
 The life she had so tangled in her mesh :
 And as he from one trance was wakening
 Into another, she began to sing,
 Happy in beauty, life, and love, and every thing,

A song of love, too sweet for earthly lyres,
 While, like held breath, the stars drew in their pant-
     ing fires. 300

And then she whisper'd in such trembling tone,
 As those who, safe together met alone
 For the first time through many anguish'd days,
 Use other speech than looks; bidding him raise
 His drooping head, and clear his soul of doubt,
 For that she was a woman, and without Any more subtle fluid in her veins
 Than throbbing blood, and that the self-same pains
 Inhabited her frail-strung heart as his.
 And next she wonder'd how his eyes could miss 310
 Her face so long in Corinth, where, she said,
 She dwelt but half retired, and there had led
 Days happy as the gold coin could invent
 Without the aid of love; yet in content
 Till she saw him, as once she pass'd him by,
 Where 'gainst a column he leant thoughtfully
 At Venus' temple porch, 'mid baskets heap'd
 Of amorous herbs and flowers, newly reap'd
 Late on that eve, as 't was the night before
 The Adonian feast; whereof she saw no more, 320
 But wept alone those days, for why should she adore?

Lycius from death awoke into amaze,
 To see her still, and singing so sweet lays;
 Then from amaze into delight he fell
 To hear her whisper woman's lore so well;
 And every word she spake enticed him on
 To unperplex'd delight and pleasure known.
 Let the mad poets say whate'er they please
 Of the sweets of Fairies, Peris, Goddesses,
 There is not such a treat among them all, 330
 Haunters of cavern, lake, and waterfall,
 As a real woman, lineal indeed
 From Pyrrha's pebbles or old Adam's seed.
 Thus gentle Lamia judged, and judged aright,

That Lycius could not love in half a fright,
 So threw the goddess off, and won his heart
 More pleasantly by playing woman's part,
 With no more awe than what her beauty gave,
 That, while it smote, still guaranteed to save.
 Lycius to all made eloquent reply, 340
 Marrying to every word a twin-born sigh :
 And last, pointing to Corinth, ask'd her sweet,
 If 't was too far that night for her soft feet.
 The way was short, for Lamia's eagerness
 Made, by a spell, the triple league decrease
 To a few paces ; not at all surmised
 By blinded Lycius, so in her comprised :
 They pass'd the city gates, he knew not how,
 So noiseless, and he never thought to know.

As men talk in a dream, so Corinth all, 350
 Throughout her palaces imperial,
 And all her populous streets and temples lewd,
 Mutter'd, like tempest in the distance brew'd,
 To the wide-spreaded night above her towers.
 Men, women, rich and poor, in the cool hours,
 Shuffled their sandals o'er the pavement white,
 Companion'd or alone ; while many a light
 Flared, here and there, from wealthy festivals,
 And threw their moving shadows on the walls,
 Or found them cluster'd in the corniced shade 360
 Of some arch'd temple door, or dusky colonnade.

Muffling his face, of greeting friends in fear,
 Her fingers he press'd hard, as one came near
 With curl'd gray beard, sharp eyes, and smooth bald
 crown,
 Slow-stepp'd, and robed in philosophic gown :
 Lycius shrank closer, as they met and past,
 Into his mantle, adding wings to haste,
 While hurried Lamia trembled : ' Ah,' said he,
 ' Why do you shudder, love, so ruefully ?

Why does your tender palm dissolve in dew ?' — 370
 'I'm wearied,' said fair Lamia : 'tell me who
 Is that old man ? I cannot bring to mind
 His features:— Lycius ! wherefore did you blind
 Yourself from his quick eyes ?' Lycius replied,
 'Tis Apollonius sage, my trusty guide
 And good instructor ; but to-night he seems
 The ghost of folly haunting my sweet dreams.'

While yet he spake they had arrived before
 A pillar'd porch, with lofty portal door,
 Where hung a silver lamp, whose phosphor glow 380
 Reflected in the slabbed steps below,
 Mild as a star in water ; for so new
 And so unsullied was the marble hue,
 So through the crystal polish, liquid fine,
 Ran the dark veins, that none but feet divine
 Could e'er have touch'd there. Sounds Æolian
 Breathed from the hinges, as the ample span
 Of the wide doors disclosed a place unknown
 Some time to any, but those two alone,
 And a few Persian mutes, who that same year 390
 Were seen about the markets : none knew where
 They could inhabit ; the most curious
 Were foil'd, who watch'd to trace them to their house :
 And but the flitter-winged verse must tell,
 For truth's sake, what woe afterwards befell,
 'T would humour many a heart to leave them thus,
 Shut from the busy world of more incredulous.

PART II

Love in a hut, with water and a crust,
 Is — Love, forgive us ! — cinders, ashes, dust ;
 Love in a palace is perhaps at last
 More grievous torment than a hermit's fast : —

‘Why do you sigh, fair creature?’ whisper’d he: 40
 ‘Why do you think?’ return’d she tenderly:
 ‘You have deserted me; — where am I now?
 Not in your heart while care weighs on your brow:

No, no, you have dismiss’d me; and I go
 From your breast houseless: aye, it must be so.’
 He answer’d, bending to her open eyes,
 Where he was mirror’d small in paradise,
 ‘My silver planet, both of eve and morn!
 Why will you plead yourself so sad forlorn,
 While I am striving how to fill my heart 50
 With deeper crimson, and a double smart?
 How to entangle, trammel up and snare
 Your soul in mine, and labyrinth you there,
 Like the hid scent in an unbudded rose?
 Aye, a sweet kiss — you see your mighty woes.
 My thoughts! shall I unveil them? Listen then!
 What mortal hath a prize, that other men
 May be confounded and abash’d withal,
 But lets it sometimes pace abroad majestic,
 And triumph, as in thee I should rejoice 60
 Amid the hoarse alarm of Corinth’s voice.
 Let my foes choke, and my friends shout afar,
 While through the thronged streets your bridal car
 Wheels round its dazzling spokes.’ — The lady’s cheek

Trembled; she nothing said, but, pale and meek,
 Arose and knelt before him, wept a rain
 Of sorrows at his words; at last with pain
 Beseeching him, the while his hand she wrung,
 To change his purpose. He thereat was stung,
 Perverse, with stronger fancy to reclaim 70
 Her wild and timid nature to his aim;
 Besides, for all his love, in self despite,
 Against his better self, he took delight
 Luxurious in her sorrows, soft and new.
 His passion, cruel grown, took on a hue

Fierce and sanguineous as 't was possible
 In one whose brow had no dark veins to swell.
 Fine was the mitigated fury, like
 Apollo's presence when in act to strike
 The serpent — Ha ! the serpent ! certes, she 80
 Was none. She burnt, she loved the tyranny,
 And, all subdued, consented to the hour
 When to the bridal he should lead his paramour.
 Whispering in midnight silence, said the youth,
 'Sure some sweet name thou hast, though, by my truth,

I have not ask'd it, ever thinking thee
 Not mortal, but of heavenly progeny,
 As still I do. Hast any mortal name,
 Fit appellation for this dazzling frame ?
 Or friends or kinsfolk on the cided earth, 90
 To share our marriage feast and nuptial mirth ?'
 'I have no friends,' said Lamia, 'no, not one ;
 My presence in wide Corinth hardly known :
 My parents' bones are in their dusty urns
 Sepulchred, where no kindled incense burns,
 Seeing all their luckless race are dead, save me,
 And I neglect the holy rite for thee.
 Even as you list invite your many guests ;
 But if, as now it seems, your vision rests
 With any pleasure on me, do not bid 100
 Old Apollonius — from him keep me hid.'
 Lycius, perplex'd at words so blind and blank,
 Made close inquiry ; from whose touch she shrank,
 Feigning a sleep ; and he to the dull shade
 Of deep sleep in a moment was betray'd.

It was the custom then to bring away
 The bride from home at blushing shut of day,
 Veil'd, in a chariot, heralded along
 By strewn flowers, torches, and a marriage song,
 With other pageants : but this fair unknown 110
 Had not a friend. So being left alone,

(Lycius was gone to summon all his kin,
 And knowing surely she could never win
 His foolish heart from its mad pompousness,
 She set herself, high-thoughted, how to dress
 The misery in fit magnificence.
 She did so, but 't is doubtful how and whence
 Came, and who were her subtle servitors.
 About the halls, and to and from the doors,
 There was a noise of wings, till in short space 120
 The glowing banquet-room shone with wide-arched grace.

A haunting music, sole perhaps and lone
 Supportress of the faery-roof, made moan
 Throughout, as fearful the whole charm might fade.

Fresh carved cedar, mimicking a glade
 Of palm and plantain, met from either side,
 High in the midst, in honour of the bride :
 Two palms and then two plantains, and so on,
 From either side their stems branch'd one to one
 All down the aisled place ; and beneath all 130
 There ran a stream of lamps straight on from wall to wall.

So canopied, lay an untasted feast
 Teeming with odours. Lamia, regal drest,
 Silently paced about, and as she went,
 In pale contented sort of discontent,
 Mission'd her viewless servants to enrich
 The fretted splendour of each nook and niche.
 Between the tree-stems, marbled plain at first,
 Came jasper panels ; then, anon, there burst
 Forth creeping imagery of slighter trees, 140
 And with the larger wove in small intricacies.
 Approving all, she faded at self-will,
 And shut the chamber up, close, hush'd and still,
 Complete and ready for the revels rude,
 When dreadful guests would come to spoil her solitude.

The day appear'd, and all the gossip rout.
 O senseless Lycius! Madman! wherefore flout
 The silent-blessing fate, warm cloister'd hours,
 And show to common eyes these secret bowers?
 The herd approach'd; each guest, with busy brain,
 Arriving at the portal, gazed amain, 151
 And enter'd marvelling: for they knew the street,
 Remember'd it from childhood all complete
 Without a gap, yet ne'er before had seen
 That royal porch, that high-built fair demesne;
 So in they hurried all, mazed, curious and keen:
 Save one, who look'd thereon with eye severe,
 And with calm-planted steps walk'd in austere:
 'T was Apollonius: something too he laugh'd,
 As though some knotty problem, that had daft 160
 His patient thought, had now begun to thaw,
 And solve and melt: — 't was just as he foresaw.

He met within the murmurous vestibule
 His young disciple. 'T is no common rule,
 Lycius,' said he, 'for uninvited guest
 To force himself upon you, and infest
 With an unbidden presence the bright throng
 Of younger friends; yet must I do this wrong,
 And you forgive me.' Lycius blush'd, and led
 The old man through the inner doors broadspread:
 With reconciling words and courteous mien 171
 Turning into sweet milk the sophist's spleen.

Of wealthy lustre was the banquet-room,
 Fill'd with pervading brilliance and perfume:
 Before each lucid panel fuming stood
 A censer fed with myrrh and spiced wood,
 Each by a sacred tripod held aloft,
 Whose slender feet wide-swerved upon the soft
 Wool-woofed carpets: fifty wreaths of smoke
 From fifty censers their light voyage took 180
 To the high roof, still mimick'd as they rose

Along the mirror'd walls by twin-clouds odorous.
 Twelve sphered tables, by silk seats inspher'd,
 High as the level of a man's breast rear'd
 On libbard's paws, upheld the heavy gold
 Of cups and goblets, and the store thrice told
 Of Ceres' horn, and, in huge vessels, wine
 Came from the gloomy tun with merry shine.
 Thus loaded with a feast the tables stood,
 Each shrining in the midst the image of a God. 190

When in an antechamber every guest
 Had felt the cold full sponge to pleasure press'd,
 By ministering slaves, upon his hands and feet,
 And fragrant oils with ceremony meet
 Pour'd on his hair, they all moved to the feast
 In white robes, and themselves in order placed
 Around the silken couches, wondering
 Whence all this mighty cost and blaze of wealth could spring.

Soft went the music the soft air along,
 While fluent Greek a vowel'd under-song 200
 Kept up among the guests, discoursing low
 At first, for scarcely was the wine at flow ;
 But when the happy vintage touch'd their brains,
 Louder they talk, and louder come the strains
 Of powerful instruments : — the gorgeous dyes,
 The space, the splendour of the draperies,
 The roof of awful richness, nectarous cheer,
 Beautiful slaves, and Lamia's self, appear,
 Now, when the wine has done its rosy deed,
 And every soul from human trammels freed, 210
 No more so strange ; for merry wine, sweet wine,
 Will make Elysian shades not too fair, too divine.
 Soon was God Bacchus at meridian height ;
 Flush'd were their cheeks, and bright eyes double
 bright :
 Garlands of every green, and every scent

From vales deflower'd, or forest-trees branch-rent,
 In baskets of bright osier'd gold were brought
 High as the handles heap'd, to suit the thought
 Of every guest : that each, as he did please,
 Might fancy-fit his brows, silk-pillow'd at his ease.

What wreath for Lamia ? What for Lycius ? 221
 What for the sage, old Apollonius ?
 Upon her aching forehead be there hung
 The leaves of willow and of adder's tongue ;
 And for the youth, quick, let us strip for him
 The thyrsus, that his watching eyes may swim
 Into forgetfulness ; and, for the sage,
 Let spear-grass and the spiteful thistle wage
 War on his temples. Do not all charms fly
 At the mere touch of cold philosophy ? 230
 There was an awful rainbow once in heaven :
 We know her woof, her texture ; she is given
 In the dull catalogue of common things.
 Philosophy will clip an Angel's wings,
 Conquer all mysteries by rule and line,
 Empty the haunted air, and gnomed mine —
 Unweave a rainbow, as it erewhile made
 The tender-person'd Lamia melt into a shade.

By her glad Lycius sitting, in chief place,
 Scarce saw in all the room another face, 240
 Till, checking his love trance, a cup he took Full brimm'd, and opposite sent forth a look
 'Cross the broad table, to beseech a glance
 From his old teacher's wrinkled countenance,
 And pledge him. The bald-head philosopher
 Had fix'd his eye, without a twinkle or stir,
 Full on the alarmed beauty of the bride,
 Brow-beating her fair form, and troubling her sweet pride.
 Lycius then press'd her hand, with devout touch,
 As pale it lay upon the rosy couch : 250

'T was icy, and the cold ran through his veins ;
Then sudden it grew hot, and all the pains
Of an unnatural heat shot to his heart.

'Lamia, what means this? Wherefore dost thou start ?

Know'st thou that man?' Poor Lamia answer'd not.

He gazed into her eyes, and not a jot
Own'd they the lovelorn piteous appeal :
More, more he gazed : his human senses reel :
Some hungry spell that loveliness absorbs ;
There was no recognition in those orbs: 260

'Lamia!' he cried — and no soft-toned reply.
The many heard, and the loud revelry
Grew hush : the stately music no more breathes ;
The myrtle sicken'd in a thousand wreaths.
By faint degrees, voice, lute, and pleasure ceased
A deadly silence step by step increased,
Until it seem'd a horrid presence there,
And not a man but felt the terror in his hair.

'Lamia!' he shriek'd ; and nothing but the shriek
With its sad echo did the silence break. 270

'Begone, foul dream!' he cried, gazing again
In the bride's face, where now no azure vein
Wander'd on fair-spaced temples ; no soft bloom
Misted the cheek ; no passion to illumine
The deep-recessed vision : — all was blight ;
Lamia, no longer fair, there sat a deadly white.
'Shut, shut those juggling eyes, thou ruthless man!
Turn them aside, wretch! or the righteous ban
Of all the Gods, whose dreadful images
Here represent their shadowy presences, 280
May pierce them on the sudden with the thorn
Of painful blindness ; leaving thee forlorn,
In trembling dotage to the feeblest fright
Of conscience, for their long-offended might,
For all thine impious proud-heart sophistries,
Unlawful magic, and enticing lies.

Corinthians ! look upon that gray-beard wretch !
 Mark how, possess'd, his lashless eyelids stretch
 Around his demon eyes ! Corinthians, see !
 My sweet bride withers at their potency.' 290
 'Fool !' said the sophist, in an under-tone
 Gruff with contempt ; which a death-nighing moan
 From Lycius answer'd, as heart-struck and lost,
 He sank supine beside the aching ghost.
 'Fool ! Fool !' repeated he, while his eyes still Relented not, nor moved ; 'from every ill
 Of life have I preserved thee to this day,
 And shall I see thee made a serpent's prey ?'
 Then Lamia breathed death breath ; the sophist's
 eye,
 Like a sharp spear, went through her utterly, 300
 Keen, cruel, perçant, stinging : she, as well
 As her weak hand could any meaning tell,
 Motion'd him to be silent ; vainly so,
 He look'd and look'd again a level — No !
 'A serpent !' echoed he ; no sooner said,
 Than with a frightful scream she vanished :
 And Lycius' arms were empty of delight,
 As were his limbs of life, from that same night.
 On the high couch he lay !—his friends came round —
 Supported him — no pulse or breath they found, 310
 And, in its marriage robe, the heavy body wound.

ACT I

SCENE I. — An Apartment in the CastleEnter CONRAD

Conrad. So, I am safe emerged from these broils!
 Amid the wreck of thousands I am whole ;
 For every crime I have a laurel-wreath,
 For every lie a lordship. Nor yet has
 My ship of fortune furl'd her silken sails, —
 Let her glide on ! This danger'd neck is saved,

By dexterous policy, from the rebel's axe;
 And of my ducal palace not one stone
 Is bruised by the Hungarian petards.
 Toil hard, ye slaves, and from the miser-earth 10
 Bring forth once more my bullion, treasured deep,
 With all my jewel'd salvers, silver and gold,
 And precious goblets that make rich the wine.
 But why do I stand babbling to myself?
 Where is Auranthe? I have news for her Shall —

Enter AURANTHE

Auranthe. Conrad! what tidings? Good, if I may guess
 From your alert eyes and high-lifted brows.
 What tidings of the battle? Albert? Ludolph?
 Otho?

Conrad. You guess aright. And, sister, slurring o'er
 Our by-gone quarrels, I confess my heart 20
 Is beating with a child's anxiety.
 To make our golden fortune known to you.

Auranthe. So serious?

Conrad. Yes, so serious, that before
 I utter even the shadow of a hint
 Concerning what will make that sin-worn cheek
 Blush joyous blood through every lineament,
 You must make here a solemn vow to me.

Auranthe. I pr'ythee, Conrad, do not overact
 The hypocrite. What vow would you impose?

Conrad. Trust me for once. That you may be assured 30

'T is not confiding to a broken reed,
 A poor court-bankrupt, outwitted and lost,
 Revolve these facts in your acutest mood,
 In such a mood as now you listen to me: —
 A few days since, I was an open rebel, —
 Against the Emperor, had suborn'd his son, —

Drawn off his nobles to revolt, — and shown
 Contented fools causes for discontent,
 Fresh hatched in my ambition's eagle-nest ;
 So thrived I as a rebel, — and, behold ! 40
 Now I am Otho's favourite, his dear friend,
 His right hand, his brave Conrad.

Auranthe. I confess
 You have intrigued with these unsteady times
 To admiration ; but to be a favourite —

Conrad. I saw my moment. The Hungarians,
 Collected silently in holes and corners,
 Appear'd, a sudden host, in the open day.
 I should have perish'd in our empire's wreck,
 But, calling interest loyalty, swore faith 50
 To most believing Otho ; and so help'd
 His blood-stain'd ensigns to the victory
 In yesterday's hard fight, that it has turn'd
 The edge of his sharp wrath to eager kindness.

Auranthe. So far yourself. But what is this to me
 More than that I am glad ? I congratulate you.

Conrad. Yes, sister, but it does regard you greatly,
 Nearly, momentarily, — aye, painfully !
 Make me this vow —

Auranthe. Concerning whom or what ?

Conrad. Albert !

Auranthe. I would inquire somewhat of him :
 You had a letter from me touching him ? 60
 No treason 'gainst his head in deed or word !
 Surely you spared him at my earnest prayer ?
 Give me the letter — it should not exist !

Conrad. At one pernicious charge of the enemy,
 I, for a moment-whiles, was prisoner ta'en
 And rifled, — stuff ! the horses' hoofs have minced it !

Auranthe. He is alive ?

Conrad. He is ! but here make oath
 To alienate him from your scheming brain,

Divorce him from your solitary thoughts,
 And cloud him in such utter banishment, 70
 That when his person meets again your eye,
 Your vision shall quite lose its memory,
 And wander past him as through vacancy.

Auranthe. I'll not be perjured.

Conrad. No, nor great, nor mighty ;
 You would not wear a crown, or rule a kingdom.
 To you it is indifferent.

Auranthe. What means this ?

Conrad. You'll not be perjured ! Go to Albert
 then,

That camp-mushroom — dishonour of our house.
 Go, page his dusty heels upon a march,
 Furbish his jingling baldric while he sleeps, 80
 And share his mouldy ration in a siege.
 Yet stay, — perhaps a charm may call you back,
 And make the widening circlets of your eyes
 Sparkle with healthy fevers. — The Emperor
 Hath given consent that you should marry Ludolph !

Auranthe. Can it be, brother ? For a golden crown

With a queen's awful lips I doubly thank you !
 This is to wake in Paradise ! Farewell
 Thou clod of yesterday — 't was not myself !
 Not till this moment did I ever feel 90
 My spirit's faculties ! I'll flatter you
 For this, and be you ever proud of it ;
 Thou, Jove-like, struck'dst thy forehead,
 And from the teeming marrow of thy brain
 I spring complete Minerva ! but the prince —
 His highness Ludolph — where is he ?

Conrad. I know not :

When, lacking my counsel at a beck,
 The rebel lords, on bended knees, received
 The Emperor's pardon, Ludolph kept aloof,
 Sole, in a stiff, fool-hardy, sulky pride ; 100

Yet, for all this, I never saw a father
 In such a sickly longing for his son.
 We shall soon see him, for the Emperor
 He will be here this morning.

Auranthe. That I heard
 Among the midnight rumours from the camp.

Conrad. You give up Albert to me ?

Auranthe. Harm him not!
 E'en for his highness Ludolph's sceptry hand,
 I would not Albert suffer any wrong.

Conrad. Have I not laboured, plotted — ?

Auranthe. See you spare him:
 Nor be pathetic, my kind benefactor! 110

On all the many bounties of your hand, —
 'T was for yourself you laboured — not for me !
 Do you not count, when I am queen, to take Advantage of your chance discoveries
 Of my poor secrets, and so hold a rod
 Over my life ?

Conrad. Let not this slave — this villain —
 Be cause of feud between us. See ! he comes !
 Look, woman, look, your Albert is quite safe !
 In haste it seems. Now shall I be in the way,
 And wish'd with silent curses in my grave, 120
 Or side by side with 'whelmed mariners.

Enter ALBERT.

Albert. Fair on your graces fall this early morrow!

So it is like to do without my prayers,
 For your right noble names, like favourite tunes,
 Have fallen full frequent from our Emperor's lips,
 High commented with smiles.

Auranthe. Noble Albert!

Conrad (aside). Noble!

Auranthe. Such salutation argues a glad heart
 In our prosperity. We thank you, sir.

Albert. Lady!

O, would to Heaven your poor servant
 Could do you better service than mere words! 130
 But I have other greeting than mine own,
 From no less man than Otho, who has sent
 This ring as pledge of dearest amity ;
 'Tis chosen I hear from Hymen's jewelry,
 And you will prize it, lady, I doubt not,
 Beyond all pleasures past, and all to come.
 To you great duke —

Conrad. To me ! What of me, ha ?

Albert. What pleased your grace to say ?

Conrad. Your message, sir !

Albert. You mean not this to me ?

Conrad. Sister, this way ;
 For there shall be no 'gentle Alberts' now, 140

No 'sweet Auranthes !'

[Exeunt CONRAD and AURANTHE.

Albert (solus). The duke is out of temper ; if he knows

More than a brother of his sister ought,
 I should not quarrel with his peevishness.
 Auranthe — Heaven preserve her always fair ! —
 Is in the heady, proud, ambitious vein ;
 I bicker not with her, — bid her farewell !
 She has taken flight from me, then let her soar, —
 He is a fool who stands at pining gaze !
 But for poor Ludolph, he is food for sorrow : 150
 No leveling bluster of my licensed thoughts,
 No military swagger of my mind,
 Can smother from myself the wrong I've done him, —
 Without design indeed, — yet it is so, —
 And opiate for the conscience have I none !

SCENE II.— The Court-yard of the Castle

Martial Music. Enter, from the outer gate, OTHO, Nobles, Knights, and Attendants. The Soldiers halt at the gate, with Banners in sight.

Otho. Where is my noble Herald ?

Enter CONRAD, from the Castle, attended by two Knights and Servants. ALBERT following.

Well, hast told

Auranthe our intent imperial ?

Lest our rent banners, too o' the sudden shown,
Should fright her silken casements, and dismay
Her household to our lack of entertainment.

A victory !

Conrad. God save illustrious Otho !

Otho. Aye, Conrad, it will pluck out all gray hairs ;

It is the best physician for the spleen ;

The courtliest inviter to a feast ;

The subtlest excuser of small faults ;

10

And a nice judge in the age and smack of wine.

Enter from the Castle, AURANTHE, followed by Pages, holding up her robes, and a train of Women. She kneels.

Hail my sweet hostess ! I do thank the stars,

Or my good soldiers, or their ladies' eyes,

That, after such a merry battle fought,

I can, all safe in body and in soul,

Kiss your fair hand and lady fortune's too.

My ring ! now, on my life, it doth rejoice

These lips to feel 't on this soft ivory !

Keep it, my brightest daughter ; it may prove

The little prologue to a line of kings.

20

I strove against thee and my hot-blood son,

Dull blockhead that I was to be so blind,
But now my sight is clear ; forgive me, lady.

Auranthe. My lord, I was a vassal to your frown,
And now your favour makes me but more humble ;
In wintry winds the simple snow is safe,
But fadeth at the greeting of the sun :
Unto thine anger I might well have spoken,
Taking on me a woman's privilege,
But this so sudden kindness makes me dumb. 30

Otho. What need of this ? Enough, if you will be
A potent tutoress to my wayward boy.
And teach him, what it seems his nurse could not,
To say, for once, I thank you ! Sigifred !

Albert. He has not yet returned, my gracious liege.

Otho. What then ! No tidings of my friendly Arab ?

Conrad. None, mighty Otho.

Send forth instantly

An hundred horsemen from my honoured gates,
To scour the plains and search the cottages.
Cry a reward, to him who shall first bring 40
News of that vanished Arabian,
A full-heap'd helmet of the purest gold.

Otho. More thanks, good Conrad ; for, except my son's,

There is no face I rather would behold
Than that same quick-eyed pagan's. By the saints,
This coming night of banquets must not light
Her dazzling torches ; nor the music breathe
Smooth, without clashing cymbal, tones of peace
And in-door melodies : nor the ruddy wine
Ebb spouting to the lees ; if I pledge not, 50
In my first cup, that Arab !

Albert. Mighty Monarch,
I wonder not this stranger's victor-deeds
So hang upon your spirit. Twice in the fight

It was my chance to meet his olive brow,
Triumphant in the enemy's shatter'd rhomb ;
And, to say truth, in any Christian arm
I never saw such prowess.

Otho. Did you ever ?

O, 't is a noble boy ! — tut ! — what do I say ?
I mean a triple Saladin, whose eyes,
When in the glorious scuffle they met mine, 60
Seem'd to say — 'Sleep, old man, in safety sleep ;
I am the victory !'

Conrad. Pity he's not here.

Otho. And my son too, pity he is not here.
Lady Auranthe, I would not make you blush,
But can you give a guess where Ludolph is ?
Know you not of him ?

Auranthe. Indeed, my liege, no secret —

Otho. Nay, nay, without more words, dost know of him ?

Auranthe. I would I were so over-fortunate,
Both for his sake and mine, and to make glad
A father's ears with tidings of his son. 70

Otho. I see 't is like to be a tedious day.
Were Theodore and Gonfred and the rest
Sent forth with my commands ?

Albert. Aye, my lord.

Otho. And no news ! No news ! 'Faith ! 't is very strange

He thus avoids us. Lady, is 't not strange ?
Will he be truant to you too ? It is a shame.

Conrad. Will 't please your highness enter, and accept,

The unworthy welcome of your servant's house ?
Leaving your cares to one whose diligence
May in few hours make pleasures of them all. 80

Otho. Not so tedious, Conrad. No, no, no, —
I must see Ludolph or the — What's that shout ?

Voices without. Huzza ! huzza ! Long live the Emperor !

Other voices. Fall back ! Away there !

Otho. Say what noise is that ?

ALBERT advancing from the back of the Stage, whither he had hastened on hearing the cheers of the soldiery.

Albert. It is young Gersa, the Hungarian prince,
Pick'd like a red stag from the fallow herd
Of prisoners. Poor prince, forlorn he steps,
Slow, and demure, and proud in his despair.
If I may judge by his so tragic bearing,
His eyes not downcast, and his folded arm, 90
He doth this moment wish himself asleep
Among his fallen captains on yon plains.

Enter GERSA, in chains, and guarded.

Otho. Well said, Sir Albert.

Gersa. Not a word of greeting,
No welcome to a princely visitor,
Most mighty Otho ? Will not my great host
Vouchsafe a syllable, before he bids
His gentlemen conduct me with all care
To some securest lodging — cold perhaps !

Otho. What mood is this ? Hath fortune touch'd thy brain ?

Gersa. O kings and princes of this fev'rous world,
What abject things, what mockeries must ye be, 101
What nerveless minions of safe palaces !
When here, a monarch, whose proud foot is used
To fallen princes' necks, as to his stirrup,
Must needs exclaim that I am mad forsooth,
Because I cannot flatter with bent knees
My conqueror !

Otho. Gersa, I think you wrong me :
I think I have a better fame abroad.

Gersa. I pr'ythee mock me not with gentle speech,
But, as a favour, bid me from thy presence ; 110
Let me no longer be the wondering food
Of all these eyes ; pr'ythee command me hence !

Otho. Do not mistake me, Gersa. That you may not,
Come, fair Auranthe, try if your soft hands
Can manage those hard rivets to set free
So brave a prince and soldier.

Auranthe (sets him free). Welcome task !

Gersa. I am wound up in deep astonishment !
Thank you, fair lady. Otho ! emperor !
You rob me of myself ; my dignity
Is now your infant ; I am a weak child. 120

Otho. Give me your hand, and let this kindly grasp
Live in our memories.

Gersa. In mine it will.
I blush to think of my unchasten'd tongue ;
But I was haunted by the monstrous ghost
Of all our slain battalions. Sire, reflect,
And pardon you will grant, that, at this hour,
The bruised remnants of our stricken camp
Are huddling undistinguish'd my dear friends,
With common thousands, into shallow graves.

Otho. Enough, most noble Gersa. You are free 130
To cheer the brave remainder of your host
By your own healing presence, and that too,
Not as their leader merely, but their king ;
For, as I hear, the wily enemy,
Who eased the crownet from your infant brows,
Bloody Taraxa, is among the dead.

Gersa. Then I retire, so generous Otho please,
Bearing with me a weight of benefits
Too heavy to be borne.

Otho. It is not so ;
Still understand me, King of Hungary, 140
Nor judge my open purposes awry.
Though I did hold you high in my esteem
For your self's sake, I do not personate
The stage-play emperor to entrap applause,
To set the silly sort o' the world agape,

And make the politic smile ; no, I have heard
 How in the Council you condemn'd this war,
 Urging the perfidy of broken faith, —
 For that I am your friend.

Gersa. If ever, sire,

You are my enemy, I dare here swear 150
 'T will not be Gersa's fault. Otho, farewell !

Otho. Will you return, Prince, to our banqueting ?

Gersa. As to my father's board I will return.

Otho. Conrad, with all due ceremony, give
 The prince a regal escort to his camp ;
 Albert, go thou and bear him company.
 Gersa, farewell !

Gersa. All happiness attend you !

Otho. Return with what good speed you may ; for soon

We must consult upon our terms of peace.

[Exeunt GERSA and ALBERT with others.]

And thus a marble column do I build 160
 To prop my empire's dome. Conrad, in thee
 I have another steadfast one, to uphold
 The portals of my state ; and, for my own
 Pre-eminence and safety, I will strive
 To keep thy strength upon its pedestal.
 For, without thee, this day I might have been
 A show-monster about the streets of Prague,
 In chains, as just now stood that noble prince :
 And then to me no mercy had been shown,
 For when the conquer'd lion is once dungeon'd, 170
 Who lets him forth again ? or dares to give
 An old lion sugar-cakes of mild reprieve ?
 Not to thine ear alone I make confession,
 But to all here, as, by experience,
 I know how the great basement of all power
 Is frankness, and a true tongue to the world ;
 And how intriguing secrecy is proof
 Of fear and weakness, and a hollow state.
 Conrad, I owe thee much.

Conrad. To kiss that hand,
My emperor, is ample recompense, 180
For a mere act of duty.

Otho. Thou art wrong ;
For what can any man on earth do more ?
We will make trial of your house's welcome,
My bright Auranthe !

Conrad. How is Friedburg honoured !

Enter ETHELBERT and six Monks.

Ethelbert. The benison of heaven on your head,
Imperial Otho !

Otho. Who stays me ? Speak ! Quick !

Ethelbert. Pause but one moment, mighty conqueror !
Upon the threshold of this house of joy.

Otho. Pray, do not prose, good Ethelbert, but speak

What is your purpose.

Ethelbert. The restoration of some captive maids,
Devoted to Heaven's pious ministries, 191
Who, driven forth from their religious cells,
And kept in thralldom by our enemy,
When late this province was a lawless spoil,
Still weep amid the wild Hungarian camp,
Though hemm'd around by thy victorious arms.

Otho. Demand the holy sisterhood in our name
From Gersa's tents. Farewell, old Ethelbert.

Ethelbert. The saints will bless you for this pious care.

Otho. Daughter, your hand ; Ludolph's would fit
it best. 200

Conrad. Ho ! let the music sound !

[Music. ETHELBERT raises his hands, as in benediction of OTHO. Exeunt severally. The scene closes on them.

SCENE III. — The Country, with the Castle in the distance

Enter LUDOLPH and SIGIFRED.

Ludolph. You have my secret; let it not be breathed.

Sigifred. Still give me leave to wonder that the Prince

Ludolph and the swift Arab are the same;
Still to rejoice that 't was a German arm
Death doing in a turban'd masquerade.

Ludolph. The emperor must not know it, Sigifred.

Sigifred. I pr'ythee, why? What happier hour of time

Could thy pleased star point down upon from heaven

With silver index, bidding thee make peace?

Ludolph. Still it must not be known, good Sigi-
fred; 10

The star may point oblique.

Sigifred. If Otho knew

His son to be that unknown Mussulman,
After whose spurring heels he sent me forth,
With one of his well-pleased Olympian oaths,
The charters of man's greatness, at this hour
He would be watching round the castle walls,
And, like an anxious warder, strain his sight
For the first glimpse of such a son return'd —

Ludolph, that blast of the Hungarians,

That Saracenic meteor of the fight, 20

That silent fury, whose fell scimitar

Kept danger all aloof from Otho's head,

And left him space for wonder.

Ludolph. Say no more.

Not as a swordsman would I pardon claim,

But as a son. The bronzed centurion,

Long toil'd in foreign wars, and whose high deeds

Are shaded in a forest of tall spears,
Known only to his troop, hath greater plea
Of favour with my sire than I can have.

Sigifred. My lord, forgive me that I cannot see
How this proud temper with clear reason squares. 31
What made you then, with such an anxious love,
Hover around that life, whose bitter days
You vext with bad revolt? Was 't opium,
Or the mad-fumed wine? Nay, do not frown,
I rather would grieve with you than upbraid.

Ludolph. I do believe you. No, 't was not to make
A father his son's debtor, or to heal
His deep heart-sickness for a rebel child.
'T was done in memory of my boyish days, 40
Poor cancel for his kindness to my youth,
For all his calming of my childish griefs,
And all his smiles upon my merriment.
No, not a thousand foughten fields could sponge
Those days paternal from my memory,
Though now upon my head he heaps disgrace.

Sigifred. My prince, you think too harshly —

Ludolph. Can I so?
Hath he not gall'd my spirit to the quick?
And with a sullen rigour obstinate
Pour'd out a phial of wrath upon my faults? 50
Hunted me as the Tartar does the boar,
Driven me to the very edge o' the world,
And almost put a price upon my head?

Sigifred. Remember how he spared the rebel lords.

Ludolph. Yes, yes, I know he hath a noble nature
That cannot trample on the fallen. But his
Is not the only proud heart in his realm.
He hath wrong'd me, and I have done him wrong;
He hath loved me, and I have shown him kindness;
We should be almost equal.

Sigifred. Yet, for all this, 60

I would you had appear'd among those lords,
And ta'en his favour.

Ludolph. Ha ! till now I thought
My friend had held poor Ludolph's honour dear.
What ! would you have me sue before his throne
And kiss the courtier's missal, its silk steps ?
Or hug the golden housings of his steed,
Amid a camp, whose steeled swarms I dared
But yesterday ? And, at the trumpet sound,
Bow like some unknown mercenary's flag
And lick the soiled grass ? No, no, my friend, 70
I would not, I, be pardon'd in the heap,
And bless indemnity with all that scum, —
Those men I mean, who on my shoulders propp'd
Their weak rebellion, winning me with lies,
And pitying forsooth my many wrongs ;
Poor self-deceived wretches, who must think
Each one himself a king in embryo,
Because some dozen vassals cried — my lord !
Cowards, who never knew their little hearts,
Till flurried danger held the mirror up, 80
And then they own'd themselves without a blush,
Curling, like spaniels, round my father's feet.
Such things deserted me and are forgiven,
While I, less guilty, am an outcast still,
And will be, for I love such fair disgrace.

Sigifred. I know the clear truth ; so would Otho
see,
For he is just and noble. Fain would I
Be pleader for you —

Ludolph. He 'll hear none of it ;
You know his temper, hot, proud, obstinate ;
Endanger not yourself so uselessly. 90
I will encounter his thwart spleen myself,
To-day, at the Duke Conrad's, where he keeps
His crowded state after the victory,
There will I be, a most unwelcome guest,
And parley with him, as a son should do,

Who doubly loathes a father's tyranny ;
 Tell him how feeble is that tyranny ;
 How the relationship of father and son
 Is no more valid than a silken leash
 Where lions tug adverse, if love grow not 100
 From interchanged love through many years.
 Aye, and those turreted Franconian walls,
 Like to a jealous casket, hold my pearl —
 My fair Auranthe! Yes, I will be there.

Sigifred. Be not so rash ; wait till his wrath shall pass,

Until his royal spirit softly ebbs
 Self-influenced ; then, in his morning dreams
 He will forgive thee, and awake in grief
 To have not thy good morrow.

Ludolph. Yes, to-day
 I must be there, while her young pulses beat 110
 Among the new-plumed minions of the war.
 Have you seen her of late? No? Auranthe,
 Franconia's fair sister, 't is I mean.
 She should be paler for my troublous days —
 And there it is — my father's iron lips
 Have sworn divorcement 'twixt me and my right.

Sigifred (aside). Auranthe! I had hoped this whim had pass'd.

Ludolph. And, Sigifred, with all his love of justice,
 When will he take that grandchild in his arms,
 That, by my love I swear, shall soon be his? 120
 This reconcilment is impossible,
 For see — but who are these?

Sigifred. They are messengers
 From our great emperor ; to you, I doubt not,
 For couriers are abroad to seek you out.

Enter THEODORE and GONFRED.

Theodore. Seeing so many vigilant eyes explore
 The province to invite your highness back
 To your high dignities, we are too happy.

Gonfred. We have eloquence to colour justly
The emperor's anxious wishes.

Ludolph.

Go. I follow you.

[Exeunt THEODORE and GONFRED.]

I play the prude : it is but venturing — 130
Why should he be so earnest ? Come, my friend,
Let us to Friedburg castle.

ACT II

SCENE I. — An antechamber in the Castle

Enter LUDOLPH and SIGIFRED.

Ludolph. No more advices, no more cautioning ;
I leave it all to fate — to any thing !
I cannot square my conduct to time, place,
Or circumstance : to me 't is all a mist !

Sigifred. I say no more.

Ludolph. It seems I am to wait
Here in the anteroom ; — that may be a trifle.
You see now how I dance attendance here,
Without that tyrant temper, you so blame,
Snapping the rein. You have medicined me
With good advices ; and I here remain, 10
In this most honourable anteroom,
Your patient scholar.

Sigifred. Do not wrong me, Prince.
By Heavens, I'd rather kiss Duke Conrad's slipper,
When in the morning he doth yawn with pride,
Than see you humbled but a half-degree !
Truth is, the Emperor would fain dismiss
The Nobles ere he sees you.

Enter GONFRED from the Council-room.

Ludolph.

Well, sir ! what ?

Gonfred. Great honour to the Prince ! The Emperor,

And what you soon will learn, I would have turn'd
 My sword to my own throat, rather than held
 Its threatening edge against a good King's quiet : 50
 Or with one word fever'd you, gentle Prince,
 Who seem'd to me, as rugged times then went,
 Indeed too much oppress'd. May I be bold
 To tell the Emperor you will haste to him ?

Ludolph. Your Dukedom's privilege will grant so much.

[Exit CONRAD.

He 's very close to Otho, a tight leech !
 Your hand — I go ! Ha ! here the thunder comes Sullen against the wind ! If in two angry brows
 My safety lies, then Sigifred, I 'm safe. 59

Enter OTHO and CONRAD.

Otho. Will you make Titan play the lackey-page
 To chattering pigmies ? I would have you know
 That such neglect of our high Majesty
 Annuls all feel of kindred. What is son, —
 Or friend — or brother — or all ties of blood, —
 When the whole kingdom, centred in ourself,
 Is rudely slighted ? Who am I to wait ?
 By Peter's chair ! I have upon my tongue
 A word to fright the proudest spirit here ! —
 Death ! — and slow tortures to the hardy fool,
 Who dares take such large charter from our smiles !
 Conrad, we would be private ! Sigifred ! 71
 Off ! And none pass this way on pain of death !

[Exeunt CONRAD and SIGIFRED.

Ludolph. This was but half expected, my good
 sire,

Yet I am grieved at it, to the full height,
 As though my hopes of favour had been whole.

Otho. How you indulge yourself ! What can you hope for ?

**Ludolph.* Nothing, my liege, I have to hope for nothing.

I come to greet you as a loving son,
 And then depart, if I may be so free,
 Seeing that blood of yours in my warm veins 80
 Has not yet mitigated into milk.

Otho. What would you, sir ?

Ludolph. A lenient banishment ;
 So please you let me unmolested pass
 This Conrad's gates, to the wide air again.
 I want no more. A rebel wants no more.

Otho. And shall I let a rebel loose again
 To muster kites and eagles 'gainst my head ?
 No, obstinate boy, you shall be kept caged up,
 Served with harsh food, with scum for Sunday-drink.

Ludolph. Indeed !

Otho. And chains too heavy for your life :
 I'll choose a jailer, whose swart monstrous face 90
 Shall be a hell to look upon, and she —

Ludolph. Ha !

Otho. Shall be your fair Auranthe.

Ludolph. Amaze ! Amaze !

Otho. To-day you marry her.

Ludolph. This is a sharp jest !

Otho. No. None at all. When have I said a lie ?

Ludolph. If I sleep not, I am a waking wretch.

Otho. Not a word more. Let me embrace my child.

Ludolph. I dare not. 'T would pollute so good a father !

O heavy crime ! that your son's blinded eyes
 Could not see all his parent's love aright, 100
 As now I see it. Be not kind to me —
 Punish me not with favour.

Otho. Are you sure,
 Ludolph, you have no saving plea in store ?

Ludolph. My father, none !

Otho. Then you astonish me.

Ludolph. No, I have no plea. Disobedience,

Rebellion, obstinacy, blasphemy,
 Are all my counsellors. If they can make
 My crooked deeds show good and plausible,
 Then grant-me loving pardon, but not else,
 Good Gods! not else, in any way, my liege!

Otho. You are a most perplexing noble boy. 111

Ludolph. You not less a perplexing noble father.

Otho. Well, you shall have free passport through the gates.

Farewell!

Ludolph. Farewell! and by these tears believe,
 And still remember, I repent in pain
 All my misdeeds!

Otho. Ludolph, I will! I will!

But, Ludolph, ere you go, I would inquire
 If you in all your wandering, ever met
 A certain Arab haunting in these parts.

Ludolph. No, my good lord, I cannot say I did.

Otho. Make not your father blind before his time; 121

Nor let these arms paternal hunger more
 For an embrace, to dull the appetite
 Of my great love for thee, my supreme child!
 Come close, and let me breathe into thine ear.
 I knew you through disguise. You are the Arab!
 You can't deny it. [Embracing him.]

Ludolph. Happiest of days!

Otho. We'll make it so.

Ludolph. 'Stead of one fatted calf
 Ten hecatombs shall bellow out their last,
 Smote 'twixt the horns by the death-stunning mace
 Of Mars, and all the soldiery shall feast 131
 Nobly as Nimrod's masons, when the towers
 Of Nineveh new kiss'd the parted clouds!

Otho. Large as a God speak out, where all is thine.

Ludolph. Ay, father, but the fire in my sad breast
 Is quench'd with inward tears! I must rejoice

For you, whose wings so shadow over me
 In tender victory, but for myself
 I still must mourn. The fair Auranthe mine!
 Too great a boon! I pr'y thee let me ask 140
 What more than I know of could so have changed
 Your purpose touching her.

Otho. At a word, this:
 In no deed did you give me more offence
 Than your rejection of Erminia.
 To my appalling, I saw too good proof
 Of your keen-eyed suspicion, — she is naught!

Ludolph. You are convinced?

Otho. Ay, spite of her sweet looks,
 O, that my brother's daughter should so fall!
 Her fame has pass'd into the grosser lips
 Of soldiers in their cups.

Ludolph. 'Tis very sad. 150

Otho. No more of her. Auranthe — Ludolph, come!

This marriage be the bond of endless peace!

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II. — The entrance of GERSA'S Tent in the Hungarian Camp

Enter ERMINIA.

Erminia. Where! where! where shall I find a messenger!
 A trusty soul? A good man in the camp?
 Shall I go myself? Monstrous wickedness!
 O cursed Conrad! devilish Auranthe!
 Here is proof palpable as the bright sun!
 O for a voice to reach the Emperor's ears!

[Shouts in the camp.]

Enter an HUNGARIAN CAPTAIN.

Captain. Fair prisoner, you hear those joyous shouts?

The king — aye, now our king, — but still your slave,

Young Gersa, from a short captivity
Has just return'd. He bids me say, bright dame, 10
That even the homage of his ranged chiefs
Cures not his keen impatience to behold
Such beauty once again. What ails you, lady ?

Erminia. Say, is not that a German, yonder ?
There !

Captain. Methinks by his stout bearing he should be —

Yes — it is Albert ; a brave German knight,
And much in the Emperor's favour.

Erminia. I would fain
Inquire of friends and kinsfolk ; how they fared
In these rough times. Brave soldier, as you pass
To royal Gersa with my humble thanks, 20
Will you send yonder knight to me ?

Captain. I will. [Exit.]

Erminia. Yes, he was ever known to be a man
Frank, open, generous ; Albert I may trust.
O proof ! proof ! proof ! Albert's an honest man ;
Not Ethelbert the monk, if he were here,
Would I hold more trustworthy. Now !

Enter ALBERT.

Albert. Good Gods !
Lady Erminia ! are you prisoner
In this beleaguer'd camp ? Or are you here
Of your own will ? You pleased to send for me.
By Venus, 't is a pity I knew not 30
Your plight before, and, by her Son, I swear
To do you every service you can ask.
What would the fairest — ?

Ermina. Albert, will you swear ?

Albert. I have. Well ?

Erminia. Albert, you have fame to lose.
If men, in court and camp, lie not outright,

You should be, from a thousand, chosen forth
To do an honest deed. Shall I confide — ?

Albert. Aye, any thing to me, fair creature. Do;
Dictate my task. Sweet woman, —

Erminia. Truce with that.
You understand me not; and, in your speech, 40
I see how far the slander is abroad.

Without proof could you think me innocent ?

Albert. Lady, I should rejoice to know you so.

Erminia. If you have any pity for a maid,
Suffering a daily death from evil tongues;
Any compassion for that Emperor's niece,
Who, for your bright sword and clear honesty,
Lifted you from the crowd of common men
Into the lap of honour; — save me, knight !

Albert. How ? Make it clear; if it be possible,
I by the banner of St. Maurice swear 51
To right you.

Erminia. Possible! — Easy. O my heart!
This letter's not so soil'd but you may read it; —
Possible! There — that letter! Read — read it.
[Gives him a letter.]

ALBERT (reading).

'To the Duke Conrad. — Forget the threat you made at parting, and I will forget to send the Emperor letters and papers of yours I have become possessed of. His life is no trifle to me; his death you shall find none to yourself.' (Speaks to himself.)
'T is me — my life that's pleaded for! (Reads.)
'He, for his own sake, will be dumb as the grave.
Erminia has my shame fix'd upon her, sure as a wen.
We are safe. AURANTHE.'

A she-devil! A dragon! I her imp!
Fire of Hell! Auranthe — lewd demon!
Where got you this? Where? When?

Erminia. I found it in the tent, among some spoils

Which, being noble, fell to Gersa's lot.

Come in, and see.

Albert.

Villainy! Villainy!

Conrad's sword, his corselet, and his helm,

70

And his letter. Caitiff, he shall feel —

Erminia. I see you are thunderstruck. Haste, haste away!

Albert. O, I am tortured by this villainy.

Erminia. You needs must be. Carry it swift to
Otho;

Tell him, moreover, I am prisoner

Here in this camp, where all the sisterhood,

Forced from their quiet cells, are parcel'd out

For slaves among these Huns. Away! Away!

Albert. I am gone.

Erminia. Swift be your steed! Within this hour
The Emperor will see it.

Albert.

Ere I sleep :

80

That I can swear.

Gersa (without). Brave captains! thanks. Enough
Of loyal homage now!

Enter GERSA.

Erminia.

Hail, royal Hun!

Gersa. What means this, fair one? Why in such alarm?

Who was it hurried by me so distract?

It seem'd you were in deep discourse together;

Your doctrine has not been so harsh to him

As to my poor deserts. Come, come, be plain.

I am no jealous fool to kill you both,

Or, for such trifles, rob th' adorned world

Of such a beauteous vestal.

Erminia.

I grieve, my Lord,

90

To hear you condescend to ribald-phrase.

Gersa. This is too much! Hearken, my lady pure!

Erminia. Silence! and hear the magic of a name —

Erminia ! I am she, — the Emperor's niece !
Praised be the Heavens, I now dare own myself !

Gersa. Erminia ! Indeed ! I've heard of her.
Pr'ythee, fair lady, what chance brought you here ?

Erminia. Ask your own soldiers.

Gersa. And you dare own your name.
For loveliness you may — and for the rest
My vein is not censorious.

Erminia. Alas ! poor me ! 100
'T is false indeed.

Gersa. Indeed you are too fair :
The swan, soft leaning on her fledgy breast,
When to the stream she launches, looks not back
With such a tender grace ; nor are her wings
So white as your soul is, if that but be
Twin picture to your face, Erminia !
To-day, for the first day, I am a king,
Yet would I give my unworn crown away
To know you spotless.

Erminia. Trust me one day more,
Generously, without more certain guarantee, 110
Than this poor face you deign to praise so much ;
After that, say and do whate'er you please.
If I have any knowledge of you, sir,
I think, nay I am sure, you will grieve much
To hear my story. O be gentle to me,
For I am sick and faint with many wrongs,
Tired out, and weary-worn with contumelies.

Gersa. Poor lady !

Enter ETHELBERT.

Erminia. Gentle Prince, 'tis false indeed.
Good morrow, holy father ! I have had
Your prayers, though I look'd for you in vain. 120

Ethelbert. Blessings upon you, daughter ! Sure you look
Too cheerful for these foul pernicious days.
Young man, you heard this virgin say 't was false, —

'T is false, I say. What! can you not employ
Your temper elsewhere, 'mong those burly tents,
But you must taunt this dove, for she hath lost
The Eagle Otho to beat off assault?

Fie! Fie! But I will be her guard myself,
I' the Emperor's name. I here demand

Herself, and all her sisterhood. She false! 130

Gersa. Peace! peace, old man! I cannot think she is.

Ethelbert. Whom I have known from her first infancy,

Baptized her in the bosom of the Church,
Watch'd her, as anxious husbandmen the grain,
From the first shoot till the unripe mid-May,
Then to the tender ear of her June days,
Which, lifting sweet abroad its timid green,
Is blighted by the touch of calumny;
You cannot credit such a monstrous tale.

Gersa. I cannot. Take her. Fair Erminia, 140
I follow you to Friedburg, — is 't not so?

Erminia. Ay, so we purpose.

Ethelbert. Daughter, do you so?
How 's this? I marvel! Yet you look not mad.

Erminia. I have good news to tell you, Ethelbert.

Gersa. Ho! ho, there! Guards!
Your blessing, father! Sweet Erminia,
Believe me, I am well nigh sure —

Erminia. Farewell.

Short time will show. [Enter Chiefs.

Yes, father Ethelbert,

I have news precious as we pass along. 149

Ethelbert. Dear daughter, you shall guide me.

Erminia. To no ill.

Gersa. Command an escort to the Friedburg lines, [Exeunt Chiefs.

Pray let me lead. Fair lady, forget not
Gersa, how he believed you innocent.
I follow you to Friedburg with all speed.

[Exeunt.

ACT III

SCENE I. — The CountryEnter ALBERT.

Albert. O that the earth were empty, as when Cain

Had no perplexity to hide his head !
Or that the sword of some brave enemy
Had put a sudden stop to my hot breath,
And hurl'd me down the illimitable gulf
Of times past, unremember'd ! Better so
Than thus fast-limed in a cursed snare,
The white limbs of a wanton. This the end
Of an aspiring life ! My boyhood past
In feud with wolves and bears, when no eye saw 10
The solitary warfare, fought for love
Of honour 'mid the growling wilderness.
My sturdier youth, maturing to the sword,
Won by the syren-trumpets, and the ring
Of shields upon the pavement, when bright mail'd
Henry the Fowler pass'd the streets of Prague.
Was 't to this end I louted and became
The menial of Mars, and held a spear
Sway'd by command, as corn is by the wind ?
Is it for this, I now am lifted up 20
By Europe's throned Emperor, to see
My honour be my executioner, —
My love of fame, my prided honesty
Put to the torture for confessional ?
Then the damn'd crime of blurting to the world
A woman's secret ! — Though a fiend she be,
Too tender of my ignominious life ;
But then to wrong the generous Emperor
In such a searching point, were to give up
My soul for foot-ball at Hell's holiday ! 30
I must confess, — and cut my throat, — to-day ?
To-morrow ? Ho ! some wine !

Enter SIGIFRED.

Sigifred. A fine humour —

Albert. Who goes there? Count Sigifred? Ha! ha!

Sigifred. What, man, do you mistake the hollow
sky

For a throng'd tavern, — and these stubbed trees
For old serge hangings, — me, your humble friend,
For a poor waiter? Why, man, how you stare!
What gipsies have you been carousing with?
No, no more wine; methinks you've had enough.

Albert. You well may laugh and banter. What a fool 40

An injury may make of a staid man!
You shall know all anon.

Sigifred. Some tavern brawl?

Albert. 'T was with some people out of common reach;

Revenge is difficult.

Sigifred. I am your friend;

We meet again to-day, and can confer
Upon it. For the present I'm in haste.

Albert. Whither?

Sigifred. To fetch King Gersa to the feast.

The Emperor on this marriage is so hot,
Pray Heaven it end not in apoplexy!
The very porters, as I pass'd the doors, 50
Heard his loud laugh, and answer'd in full choir.
I marvel, Albert, you delay so long
From these bright revelries; go, show yourself,
You may be made a duke.

Albert. Ay, very like:

Pray, what day has his Highness fix'd upon?

Sigifred. For what?

Albert. The marriage. What else can I mean?

Sigifred. To-day. O, I forgot, you could not know;

The news is scarce a minute old with me.

Albert. Married to-day ! To-day ! You did not say so ?

Sigifred. Now, while I speak to you, their comely heads 60

Are bow'd before the mitre.

Albert. O ! monstrous !

Sigifred. What is this ?

Albert. Nothing, Sigifred. Farewell !
We 'll meet upon our subject. Farewell, count !

Sigifred. Is this clear-headed Albert ? He brainturn'd !

'T is as portentous as a meteor. [Exit.

SCENE II. — An Apartment in the Castle

Enter as from the Marriage, OTHO, LUDOLPH, AURANTHE, CONRAD, Nobles, Knights, Ladies, etc. Music.

Otho. Now Ludolph ! Now Auranthe Daughter fair !

What can I find to grace your nuptial day
More than my love, and these wide realms in fee ?

Ludolph. I have too much.

Auranthe. And I, my liege, by far.

Ludolph. Auranthe ! I have ! O, my bride, my love !

Not all the gaze upon us can restrain
My eyes, too long poor exiles from thy face,
From adoration, and my foolish tongue
From uttering soft responses to the love
I see in thy mute beauty beaming forth ! 10
Fair creature, bless me with a single word !
All mine !

Auranthe. Spare, spare me, my Lord ; I swoon else.

Ludolph. Soft beauty ! by to-morrow I should die,
Wert thou not mine. [They talk apart.

1st Lady. How deep she has bewitch'd him !

1st Knight. Ask you for her recipe for love philtres.

2d Lady. They hold the Emperor in admiration.

Otho. If ever king was happy, that am I !

What are the cities 'yond the Alps to me,
The provinces about the Danube's mouth,
The promise of fair sail beyond the Rhone ;

20

Or routing out of Hyperborean hordes,
To these fair children, stars of a new age ?
Unless perchance I might rejoice to win
This little ball of earth, and chuck it them
To play with !

Auranthe. Nay, my Lord, I do not know.

Ludolph. Let me not famish.

Otho (to Conrad). Good Franconia,

You heard what oath I swear, as the sun rose,
That unless Heaven would send me back my son,

My Arab, — no soft music should enrich
The cool wine, kiss'd off with a soldier's smack ; 30
Now all my empire, barter'd for one feast,
Seems poverty.

Conrad. Upon the neighbour-plain

The heralds have prepared a royal lists ;
Your knights, found war-proof in the bloody field,
Speed to the game.

Otho. Well, Ludolph, what say you ?

Ludolph. My lord !

Otho. A tourney ?

Conrad. Or, if 't please you best —

Ludolph. I want no more !

1st Lady. He soars !

2d Lady. Past all reason.

Ludolph. Though heaven's choir
Should in a vast circumference descend
And sing for my delight, I 'd stop my ears !

40

Though bright Apollo's car stood burning here,

And he put out an arm to bid me mount,
His touch an immortality, not I !

This earth, this palace, this room, Auranthe !

Otho. This is a little painful ; just too much.

Conrad, if he flames longer in this wise,
I shall believe in wizard-woven loves
And old romances ; but I'll break the spell.

Ludolph !

Conrad. He'll be calm, anon.

Ludolph. You call'd !

Yes, yes, yes, I offend. You must forgive me : 50

Not being quite recover'd from the stun

Of your large bounties. A tourney, is it not ?

[A senet heard faintly.]

Conrad. The trumpets reach us.

Ethelbert (without). On your peril, sirs,
Detain us !

1st Voice (without). Let not the abbot pass.

2d Voice (without). No,

On your lives !

1st Voice (without). Holy father, you must not.

Ethelbert (without). Otho !

Otho. Who calls on Otho ?

Ethelbert (without). Ethelbert !

Otho. Let him come in.

Enter ETHELBERT leading in ERMINIA.

Thou cursed abbot, why
Hast brought pollution to our holy rites ?

Hast thou no fear of hangman, or the faggot ?

Ludolph. What portent — what strange prodigy is this ? 60

Conrad. Away !

Ethelbert. You, Duke ?

Erminia. Albert has surely fail'd me !
Look at the Emperor's brow upon me bent !

Ethelbert. A sad delay !

Conrad. Away, thou guilty thing !

Ethelbert. You again, Duke? Justice, most noble
Otho!

You — go to your sister there and plot again,
A quick plot, swift as thought to save your heads;
For lo! the toils are spread around your den,
The world is all agape to see dragg'd forth
Two ugly monsters.

Ludolph. What means he, my lord?

Conrad. I cannot guess.

Ethelbert. Best ask your lady sister,
Whether the riddle puzzles her beyond 71
The power of utterance.

Conrad. Foul barbarian, cease;
The Princess faints!

Ludolph. Stab him! O, sweetest wife!

Erminia. Alas!

Ethelbert. Your wife!

Ludolph. Ay, Satan! does that yerk ye?

Ethelbert. Wife! so soon!

Ludolph. Ay, wife! Oh, impudence!
Thou bitter mischief! Venomous bad priest!
How dar'st thou lift those beetle brows at me?
Me — the prince Ludolph, in this presence here,
Upon my marriage day, and scandalize
My joys with such opprobrious surprise? 80
Wife! Why dost linger on that syllable,
As if it were some demon's name pronounced
To summon harmful lightning, and make yawn
The sleepy thunder? Hast no sense of fear?
No ounce of man in thy mortality?

Tremble! for, at my nod, the sharpen'd axe
Will make thy bold tongue quiver to the roots,
Those gray lids wink, and thou not know it, monk!

Ethelbert. O, poor deceived Prince! I pity thee!
Great Otho! I claim justice —

Ludolph. Thou shalt have 't!
Thine arms from forth a pulpit of hot fire 91

Shall sprawl distracted ! O that that dull cowl
 Were some most sensitive portion of thy life,
 That I might give it to my hounds to tear !
 Thy girdle some fine zealous-pained nerve
 To girth my saddle ! And those devil's beads
 Each one a life, that I might, every day,
 Crush one with Vulcan's hammer !

Otho. Peace, my son ;
 You far outstrip my spleen in this affair.
 Let us be calm, and hear the abbot's plea 100
 For this intrusion.

Ludolph. I am silent, sire.

Otho. Conrad, see all depart not wanted here.

[Exeunt Knights, Ladies, etc.]

Ludolph, be calm. Ethelbert, peace awhile.
 This mystery demands an audience
 Of a just judge, and that will Otho be.

Ludolph. Why has he time to breathe another word ?

Otho. Ludolph, old Ethelbert, be sure, comes not
 To beard us for no cause ; he's not the man
 To cry himself up an ambassador
 Without credentials.

Ludolph. I'll chain up myself.

Otho. Old abbot, stand here forth. Lady Erminia, 111

Sit. And now, abbot ! what have you to say ?
 Our ear is open. First we here denounce
 Hard penalties against thee, if 't be found
 The cause for which you have disturb'd us here,
 Making our bright hours muddy, be a thing
 Of little moment.

Ethelbert. See this innocent !

Otho ! thou father of the people call'd,
 Is her life nothing ? Her fair honour nothing ?
 Her tears from matins until even-song 120
 Nothing ? Her burst heart nothing ? Emperor !
 Is this your gentle niece — the simplest flower

Of the world's herbal — this fair lily blanch'd
 Still with the dews of piety, this meek lady
 Here sitting like an angel newly-shent,
 Who veils its snowy wings and grows all pale, —
 Is she nothing ?

Otho. What more to the purpose, abbot

Ludolph. Whither is he winding ?

Conrad.

No clue yet!

Ethelbert. You have heard, my Liege, and so, no doubt, all here,

Foul, poisonous, malignant whisperings ; 130

Nay open speech, rude mockery grown common,

Against the spotless nature and clear fame

Of the princess Erminia, your niece.

I have intruded here thus suddenly,

Because I hold those base weeds, with tight hand,

Which now disfigure her fair growing stem,

Waiting but for your sign to pull them up

By the dark roots, and leave her palpable,

To all men's sight, a lady innocent.

The ignominy of that whisper'd tale 140

About a midnight gallant, seen to climb

A window to her chamber neighbour'd near,

I will from her turn off, and put the load

On the right shoulders ; on that wretch's head,

Who, by close stratagems, did save herself,

Chiefly by shifting to this lady's room

A rope-ladder for false witness.

Ludolph.

Most atrocious!

Otho. Ethelbert, proceed.

Ethelbert.

With sad lips I shall :

For, in the healing of one wound, I fear

To make a greater. His young highness here 150

To-day was married.

Ludolph.

Good.

Ethelbert.

Would it were good !

Yet why do I delay to spread abroad

The names of those two vipers, from whose jaw

A deadly breath went forth to taint and blast
This guileless lady ?

Otho. Abbot, speak their names.

Ethelbert. A minute first. It cannot be — but may

I ask, great judge, if you to-day have put
A letter by unread ?

Otho. Does 't end in this ?

Conrad. Out with their names !

Ethelbert. Bold sinner, say you so ?

Ludolph. Out, hideous monk !

Otho. Confess, or by the wheel —

Ethelbert. My evidence cannot be far away ; 161

And, though it never come, be on my head

The crime of passing an attaind upon

The slanderers of this virgin.

Ludolph. Speak aloud !

Ethelbert. Auranthe, and her brother there.

Conrad. Amaze !

Ludolph. Throw them from the windows !

Otho. Do what you will !

Ludolph. What shall I do with them ?

Something of quick dispatch, for should she hear,

My soft Auranthe, her sweet mercy would

Prevail against my fury. Damned priest ! 170

What swift death wilt thou die ? As to the lady,

I touch her not.

Ethelbert. Illustrious Otho, stay !

An ample store of misery thou hast,

Choke not the granary of thy noble mind

With more bad bitter grain, too difficult

A cud for the repentance of a man

Gray-growing. To thee only I appeal,

Not to thy noble son, whose yeasting youth

Will clear itself, and crystal turn again.

A young man's heart, by Heaven's blessing, is 180

A wide world, where a thousand new-born hopes

Empurple fresh the melancholy blood :

But an old man's is narrow, tenantless
 Of hopes, and stuff'd with many memories,
 Which, being pleasant, ease the heavy pulse —
 Painful, clog up and stagnate. Weigh this matter
 Even as a miser balances his coin ;
 And, in the name of mercy, give command
 That your knight Albert be brought here before
 you.

He will expound this riddle ; he will show 190
 A noon-day proof of bad Auranthe's guilt.

Otho. Let Albert straight be summon'd.

Ludolph.

Impossible !

I cannot doubt — I will not — no — to doubt
 Is to be ashes ! — wither'd up to death !

Otho. My gentle Ludolph, harbour not a fear ;
 You do yourself much wrong.

Ludolph.

O, wretched dolt !

Now, when my foot is almost on thy neck,
 Wilt thou infuriate me ? Proof ! Thou fool !
 Why wilt thou tease impossibility

With such a thick-skull'd persevering suit ? 200

Fanatic obstinacy ! Prodigy !

Monster of folly ! Ghost of a turn'd brain !

You puzzle me, — you haunt me, — when I dream

Of you my brain will split ! Bold sorcerer !

Juggler ! May I come near you ? On my soul

I know not whether to pity, curse, or laugh.

Enter ALBERT, and the Nobleman.

Here, Albert, this old phantom wants a proof !
 Give him his proof ! A camel's load of proofs !

Otho. Albert, I speak to you as to a man
 Whose words once utter'd pass like current gold ; 210
 And therefore fit to calmly put a close
 To this brief tempest. Do you stand possess'd
 Of any proof against the honourableness
 Of Lady Auranthe, our new-spoused daughter ?

Albert. You chill me with astonishment. How 's this ?

My liege, what proof should I have 'gainst a fame
Impossible of slur ? [OTHO rises.

Erminia. O wickedness !

Ethelbert. Deluded monarch, 't is a cruel lie.

Otho. Peace, rebel-priest !

Conrad. Insult beyond credence ! 220

Erminia. Almost a dream !

Ludolph. We have awaked from !

A foolish dream that from my brow hath wrung

A wrathful dew. O folly ! why did I

So act the lion with this silly gnat ?

Let them depart. Lady Erminia !

I ever grieved for you, as who did not ?

But now you have, with such a brazen front,

So most maliciously, so madly striven

To dazzle the soft moon, when tenderest clouds

Should be unloop'd around to curtain her ;

I leave you to the desert of the world

230

Almost with pleasure. Let them be set free

For me ! I take no personal revenge

More than against a nightmare, which a man

Forgets in the new dawn.

Otho. Still in extremes ! No, they must not be loose.

Ethelbert. Albert, I must suspect thee of a crime
So fiendish —

Otho. Fear'st thou not my fury, monk ?

Conrad, be they in your safe custody

Till we determine some fit punishment.

240

It is so mad a deed, I must reflect

And question them in private ; for perhaps,

By patient scrutiny, we may discover

Whether they merit death, or should be placed

In care of the physicians.

[Exeunt OTHO and Nobles, ALBERT following.

Conrad. My guards, ho !

Enter GERSA and SIGIFRED.

Gersa. What discord is at ferment in this house ?

Sigifred. We are without conjecture ; not a soul
We met could answer any certainty.

Gersa. Young Ludolph, like a fiery arrow, shot
By us.

Sigifred. The Emperor, with cross'd arms, in thought.

Gersa. In one room music, in another sadness,
Perplexity every where !

Albert. A trifle more !

Follow ; your presences will much avail 280
To tune our jarred spirits. I'll explain. [Exeunt.

ACT IV

SCENE I. — AURANTHE'S Apartment

AURANTHE and CONRAD discovered.

Conrad. Well, well, I know what ugly jeopardy
We are caged in ; you need not pester that Into my ears. Pr'ythee, let me be spared
A foolish tongue, that I may bethink me
Of remedies with some deliberation.
You cannot doubt but 't is in Albert's power
To crush or save us ?

Auranthe. No, I cannot doubt.

He has, assure yourself, by some strange means,
My secret ; which I ever hid from him,
Knowing his mawkish honesty.

Conrad. Cursed slave ! 10

Auranthe. Ay, I could almost curse him now myself.

Wretched impediment ! Evil genius !
A glue upon my wings, that cannot spread,
When they should span the provinces ! A snake,
A scorpion, sprawling on the first gold step,
Conducting to the throne, high canopied.

Conrad. You would not hear my counsel, when his life

Might have been trodden out, all sure and hush'd ;
Now the dull animal forsooth must be Intreated, managed ! When can you contrive 20
The interview he demands ?

Auranthe. As speedily
It must be done as my bribed woman can
Unseen conduct him to me ; but I fear
'T will be impossible, while the broad day
Comes through the panes with persecuting glare.
Methinks, if 't now were night I could intrigue
With darkness, bring the stars to second me,
And settle all this trouble.

Conrad. Nonsense ! Child !
See him immediately ; why not now ?

Auranthe. Do you forget that even the senseless door-posts 30
Are on the watch and gape through all the house ?
How many whisperers there are about,
Hungry for evidence to ruin me :
Men I have spurn'd, and women I have taunted ?
Besides, the foolish prince sends, minute whiles,
His pages — so they tell me — to inquire
After my health, intreating, if I please,
To see me.

Conrad. Well, suppose this Albert here ;
What is your power with him ?

Auranthe. He should be
My echo, my taught parrot ! but I fear 40
He will be cur enough to bark at me ;
Have his own say ; read me some silly screed
'Bout shame and pity.

Conrad. What will you do then ?

Auranthe. What I shall do, I know not ; what I would
Cannot be done ; for see, this chamber-floor

Will not yield to the pick-axe and the spade, —
Here is no quiet depth of hollow ground.

Conrad. Sister, you have grown sensible and wise,
Seconding, ere I speak it, what is now,
I hope, resolved between us.

Auranthe. Say, what is 't? 50

Conrad. You need not be his sexton too; a man
May carry that with him shall make him die
Elsewhere, — give that to him; pretend the while
You will to-morrow succumb to his wishes,
Be what they may, and send him from the Castle
On some fool's errand: let his latest groan
Frighten the wolves!

Auranthe. Alas! he must not die!

Conrad. Would you were both hearsed up in sti-fling lead!

Detested —

Auranthe. Conrad, hold! I would not bear
The little thunder of your fretful tongue, 60
Tho' I alone were taken in these toils,
And you could free me; but remember, sir,
You live alone in my security:
So keep your wits at work, for your own sake,
Not mine, and be more mannerly.

Conrad. Thou wasp!

If my domains were emptied of these folk,
And I had thee to starve —

Auranthe. O, marvellous!

But, Conrad, now be gone; the Host is look'd for;
Cringe to the Emperor, entertain the Lords.
And, do ye mind, above all things, proclaim 70
My sickness, with a brother's sadden'd eye,
Condoling with Prince Ludolph. In fit time
Return to me.

Conrad. I leave you to your thoughts. [Exit.

Auranthe (sola). Down, down, proud temper!
down, Auranthe's pride!

Why do I anger him when I should kneel ?
 Conrad ! Albert ! help ! help ! What can I do ?
 O wretched woman ! lost, wreck'd, swallow'd up,
 Accursed, blasted ! O, thou golden Crown,
 Orbing along the serene firmament
 Of a wide empire, like a glowing moon ; 80
 And thou, bright sceptre ! lustrous in my eyes, —
 There — as the fabled fair Hesperian tree,
 Bearing a fruit more precious ! graceful thing,
 Delicate, godlike, magic ! must I leave
 Thee to melt in the visionary air,
 Ere, by one grasp, this common hand is made
 Imperial ? I do not know the time
 When I have wept for sorrow ; but methinks
 I could now sit upon the ground, and shed
 Tears, tears of misery ! O, the heavy day ! 90
 How shall I bear my life till Albert comes ?
 Ludolph ! Erminia ? Proofs ! O happy day !
 Bring me some mourning weeds, that I may 'tire
 Myself, as fits one wailing her own death :
 Cut off these curls, and brand this lily hand,
 And throw these jewels from my loathing sight, —
 Fetch me a missal, and a string of beads, —
 A cup of bitter'd water, and a crust, —
 I will confess, O holy Abbot ! — How !
 What is this ? Auranthe ! thou fool, dolt, 100
 Whimpering idiot ! up ! up ! and quell !
 I am safe ! Coward ! why am I in fear ?
 Albert ! he cannot stickle, chew the cud
 In such a fine extreme, — impossible !
 Who knocks ? [Goes to the door, listens, and opens it.]

Enter ALBERT.

Albert, I have been waiting for you here
 With such an aching heart, such swooning throbs
 On my poor brain, such cruel — cruel sorrow,
 That I should claim your pity ! Art not well ?

Albert. Yes, lady, well.

Auranthe. You look not so, alas!
But pale, as if you brought some heavy news. 111

Albert. You know full well what makes me look so pale.

Auranthe. No! Do I? Surely I am still to learn
Some horror; all I know, this present, is
I am near hustled to a dangerous gulf,
Which you can save me from, — and therefore safe,
So trusting in thy love; that should not make Thee pale, my Albert.

Albert. It doth make me freeze.

Auranthe. Why should it, love?

Albert. You should not ask me that,
But make your own heart monitor, and save 120
Me the great pain of telling. You must know.

Auranthe. Something has vext you, Albert.
There are times

When simplest things put on a sombre cast;
A melancholy mood will haunt a man,
Until most easy matters take the shape
Of unachievable tasks; small rivulets
Then seem impassable.

Albert. Do not cheat yourself
With hope that gloss of words, or suppliant action,
Or tears, or ravings, or self-threaten'd death,
Can alter my resolve.

Auranthe. You make me tremble; 130
Not so much at your threats, as at your voice,
Untuned, and harsh, and barren of all love.

Albert. You suffocate me! Stop this devil's parley,
And listen to me; know me once for all.

Auranthe. I thought I did. Alas! I am deceived.

Albert. No, you are not deceived. You took me for
A man detesting all inhuman crime;
And therefore kept from me your demon's plot

Against Erminia. Silent ? Be so still ;
 For ever ! Speak no more ; but hear my words, <sup>140</sup>
 Thy fate. Your safety I have bought to-day
 By blazoning a lie, which in the dawn
 I'll expiate with truth.

Auranthe. O cruel traitor !

Albert. For I would not set eyes upon thy shame ;
 I would not see thee dragg'd to death by the hair,
 Penanced, and taunted on a scaffolding !
 To-night, upon the skirts of the blind wood
 That blackens northward of these horrid towers,
 I wait for you with horses. Choose your fate.
 Farewell! 150

Auranthe. Albert, you jest ; I'm sure you must.
 You, an ambitious Soldier ! I, a Queen,
 One who could say, — here, rule these Provinces !
 Take tribute from those cities for thyself !
 Empty these armouries, these treasuries,
 Muster thy warlike thousands at a nod !
 Go ! Conquer Italy !

Albert. Auranthe, you have made
 The whole world chaff to me. Your doom is fix'd.

Auranthe. Out, villain ! dastard !

Albert. Look there to the door !

Who is it ?

Auranthe. Conrad, traitor !

Albert. Let him in.

Enter CONRAD.

Do not affect amazement, hypocrite, 160
 At seeing me in this chamber.

Conrad. Auranthe ?

Albert. Talk not with eyes, but speak your curses out

Against me, who would sooner crush and grind
 A brace of toads, than league with them t' oppress
 An innocent lady, gull an Emperor,
 More generous to me than autumn sun
 To ripening harvests.

Auranthe. No more insult, sir!

Albert. Ay, clutch your scabbard; but, for prudence sake,

Draw not the sword; 't would make an uproar,
Duke,

You would not hear the end of. At nightfall 170

Your lady sister, if I guess aright,

Will leave this busy castle. You had best

Take farewell too of worldly vanities.

Conrad. Vassal!

Albert. To-morrow, when the Emperor sends
For loving Conrad, see you fawn on him.

Good even!

Auranthe. You'll be seen!

Albert. See the coast clear then.

Auranthe (as he goes). Remorseless Albert! Cruel, cruel wretch! [She lets him out.]

Conrad. So, we must lick the dust?

Auranthe. I follow him.

Conrad. How? Where? The plan of your escape?

Auranthe. He waits

For me with horses by the forest-side, 180
Northward.

Conrad. Good, good! he dies. You go, say you?

Auranthe. Perforce.

Conrad. Be speedy, darkness! Till that comes,
Friends keep you company! [Exit.]

Auranthe. And you! And you!

And all men! Vanish!

[Retires to an inner apartment.]

SCENE II. — An Apartment in the Castle

Enter LUDOLPH and a Page.

Page. Still very sick, my lord; but now I went,
Knowing my duty to so good a Prince;
And there her women, in a mournful throng,

Stood in the passage whispering ; if any Mov'd, 't was with careful steps, and hush'd as death :

They bade me stop.

Ludolph. Good fellow, once again
 Make soft inquiry ; pr'ythee, be not stay'd
 By any hindrance, but with gentlest force
 Break through her weeping servants, till thou com'st
 E'en to her chamber door, and there, fair boy — 10
 If with thy mother's milk thou hast suck'd in Any divine eloquence — woo her ears
 With plaints for me, more tender than the voice
 Of dying Echo, echoed.

Page. Kindest master !
 To know thee sad thus, will unloose my tongue
 In mournful syllables. Let but my words reach
 Her ears, and she shall take them coupled with Moans from my heart, and sighs not counterfeit.
 May I speed better ! [Exit Page.]

Ludolph (solus). Auranthe ! My Life !
 Long have I loved thee, yet till now not loved : 20
 Remembering, as I do, hard-hearted times
 When I had heard e'en of thy death perhaps,
 And thoughtless, suffer'd thee to pass alone
 Into Elysium ! — now I follow thee
 A substance or a shadow, wheresoe'er
 Thou ledest me, — whether thy white feet press,
 With pleasant weight, the amorous-aching earth,
 Or thro' the air thou pioneerest me,
 A shade ! Yet sadly I predestinate !
 O unbenignest Love, why wilt thou let 30
 Darkness steal out upon the sleepy world
 So wearily ; as if night's chariot-wheels
 Were clogg'd in some thick cloud ? O, changeful
 Love,

Let not her steeds with drowsy-footed pace
 Pass the high stars, before sweet embassy
 Comes from the pillow'd beauty of that fair

Completion of all delicate Nature's wit !
 Pout her faint lips anew with rubious health ;
 And, with thine infant fingers, lift the fringe
 Of her sick eyelids ; that those eyes may glow 40
 With wooing light upon me, ere the Morn
 Peers with disrelish, gray, barren, and cold !

Enter GERSA and Courtiers.

Otho calls me his Lion — should I blush
 To be so tamed ? so —

Gersa. Do me the courtesy,
 Gentlemen, to pass on.

1st Knight. We are your servants.

[Exeunt Courtiers.]

Ludolph. It seems then, Sir, you have found out
 the man

You would confer with ; — me ?

Gersa. If I break not Too much upon your thoughtful mood, I will Claim a brief while your patience.

Ludolph. For what cause
 So'er, I shall be honour'd.

Gersa. I not less. 50

Ludolph. What may it be ? No trifle can take place

Of such deliberate prologue, serious 'haviour,
 But, be it what it may, I cannot fail
 To listen with no common interest ;
 For though so new your presence is to me,
 I have a soldier's friendship for your fame.
 Please you explain.

Gersa. As thus : — for, pardon me,
 I cannot in plain terms grossly assault
 A noble nature ; and would faintly sketch
 What your quick apprehension will fill up ; 60
 So finely I esteem you.

Ludolph. I attend.

Gersa. Your generous father, most illustrious
 Otho,

Sits in the banquet-room among his chiefs ;
 His wine is bitter, for you are not there ;
 His eyes are fix'd still on the open doors,
 And ev'ry passer in he frowns upon,
 Seeing no Ludolph comes.

Ludolph. I do neglect —

Gersa. And for your absence may I guess the cause ?

Ludolph. Stay there ! No — guess ? More princely you must be
 Than to make guesses at me. 'T is enough. 70
 I'm sorry I can hear no more.

Gersa. And I
 As grieved to force it on you so abrupt ;
 Yet, one day, you must know a grief, whose sting
 Will sharpen more the longer 't is conceal'd.

Ludolph. Say it at once, Sir ! dead — dead — is she dead ?

Gersa. Mine is a cruel task : she is not dead,
 And would, for your sake, she were innocent —

Ludolph. Thou liest ! Thou amazest me beyond
 All scope of thought, convulseth my heart's blood
 To deadly churning ! Gersa, you are young, 80
 As I am ; let me observe you, face to face ;
 Not gray-brow'd like the poisonous Ethelbert,
 No rheum'd eyes, no furrowing of age,
 No wrinkles, where all vices nestle in
 Like crannied vermin, — no ! but fresh and young,
 And hopeful featured. Ha ! by Heaven you weep
 Tears, human tears ! Do you repent you then
 Of a cursed torturer's office ? Why shouldst join —
 Tell me, the league of devils ? Confess — confess —
 The Lie !

Gersa. Lie ! — but begone all ceremonious points
 Of honour battailous ! I could not turn 91
 My wrath against thee for the orb'd world.

Ludolph. Your wrath, weak boy ? Tremble at mine, unless

Retraction follow close upon the heels
 Of that late stounding insult ! Why has my sword
 Not done already a sheer judgment on thee ?
 Despair, or eat thy words ! Why, thou wast nigh
 Whimpering away my reason ! Hark ye, Sir,
 It is no secret, that Erminia,
 Erminia, Sir, was hidden in your tent ; 100
 O bless'd asylum ! Comfortable home !
 Begone ! I pity thee ; thou art a gull,
 Erminia's last new puppet ?

Gersa. Furious fire !

Thou mak'st me boil as hot as thou canst flame !
 And in thy teeth I give thee back the lie !
 Thou liest ! Thou, Auranthe's fool ! A wittol —

Ludolph. Look ! look at this bright sword :

There is no part of it, to the very hilt,
 But shall indulge itself about thine heart !
 Draw ! but remember thou must cower thy plumes,
 As yesterday the Arab made thee stoop — 111

Gersa. Patience ! Not here ; I would not spill thy blood

Here, underneath this roof where Otho breathes, —
 Thy father, — almost mine.

Ludolph. O faltering coward !

Re-enter PAGE.

Stay, stay ; here is one I have half a word with.
 Well — What ails thee, child ?

Page. My lord !

Ludolph. Good fellow !

Page. They are fled !

Ludolph. They ! Who ?

Page. When anxiously

I hasten'd back, your grieving messenger,
 I found the stairs all dark, the lamps extinct,
 And not a foot or whisper to be heard. 120
 I thought her dead, and on the lowest step
 Sat listening ; when presently came by

Two muffled up, — one sighing heavily,
The other cursing low, whose voice I knew
For the Duke Conrad's. Close I follow'd them
Thro' the dark ways they chose to the open air ;
And, as I follow'd, heard my lady speak.

Ludolph. Thy life answers the truth !

Page. The chamber's empty !

Ludolph. As I will be of mercy ! So, at last,
This nail is in my temples !

Gersa. Be calm in this. 130

Ludolph. I am.

Gersa. And Albert too has disappear'd ;
Ere I met you, I sought him everywhere ;
You would not hearken.

Ludolph. Which way went they, boy ?

Gersa. I 'll hunt with you.

Ludolph. No, no, no. My senses are Still whole. I have survived. My arm is strong —
My appetite sharp — for revenge ! I 'll no sharer
In my feast ; my injury is all my own,
And so is my revenge, my lawful chattels !
Terrier, ferret them out ! Burn — burn the witch !
Trace me their footsteps ! Away ! [Exeunt.

ACT V

SCENE I. — A part of the Forest

Enter CONRAD and AURANTHE.

Auranthe. Go no further ; not a step more.

Thou art

A master-plague in the midst of miseries.
Go, — I fear thee ! I tremble every limb,
Who never shook before. There's moody death
In thy resolved looks ! Yes, I could kneel
To pray thee far away ! Conrad, go ! go ! —
There ! yonder underneath the boughs I see
Our horses !

Conrad. Ay, and the man.

Auranthe. Yes, he is there.

Go, go — no blood ! no blood ! — go, gentle Conrad !

Conrad. Farewell !

Auranthe. Farewell ! For this Heaven pardon
you ! [Exit AURANTHE.

Conrad. If he survive one hour, then may I die
In unimagined tortures, or breathe through 12
A long life in the foulest sink o' the world !
He dies ! 'T is well she do not advertise
The caitiff of the cold steel at his back.

Enter LUDOLPH and Page.

Ludolph. Miss'd the way, boy ? Say not that on your peril !

Page. Indeed, indeed I cannot trace them further.

Ludolph. Must I stop here ? Here solitary die !
Stifled beneath the thick oppressive shade
Of these dull boughs, — this oven of dark thickets, — 20
Silent, — without revenge ? — pshaw ! — bitter end, —

A bitter death — a suffocating death, —
A gnawing — silent — deadly, quiet death !
Escaped ? — fled ? — vanish'd ? melted into air ?
She's gone ! I cannot clutch her ! no revenge !
A muffled death, ensnared in horrid silence !
Suck'd to my grave amid a dreamy calm !
O, where is that illustrious noise of war,
To smother up this sound of labouring breath,
This rustle of the trees !

[AURANTHE shrieks at a distance.

Page. My lord, a noise ! 30

This way — hark !

Ludolph. Yes, yes ! A hope ! A music !
A glorious clamour ! How I live again !

[Exeunt.

SCENE II. — Another part of the ForestEnter ALBERT (wounded).

Albert. O! for enough life to support me on To Otho's feet!

Enter LUDOLPH.

Ludolph. Thrice villanous, stay there!
Tell me where that detested woman is,
Or this is through thee!

Albert. My good Prince, with me
The sword has done its worst; not without worst Done to another, — Conrad has it home —
I see you know it all —

Ludolph. Where is his sister?

Enter AURANTHE.

Auranthe. Albert!

Ludolph. Ha! There! there! — He is the paramour! —

There — hug him — dying! O, thou innocence,
Shrine him and comfort him at his last gasp. 10
Kiss down his eyelids! Was he not thy love?
Wilt thou forsake him at his latest hour?
Keep fearful and aloof from his last gaze,
His most uneasy moments, when cold death
Stands with the door ajar to let him in?

Albert. O that that door with hollow slam would close

Upon me sudden, for I cannot meet,
In all the unknown chambers of the dead,
Such horrors —

Ludolph. Auranthe! what can he mean?
What horrors! Is it not a joyous time? 20
Am I not married to a paragon
'Of personal beauty and untainted soul?'
A blushing fair-eyed purity? A sylph,
Whose snowy timid hand has never sinn'd

Beyond a flower pluck'd, white as itself ?
 Albert, you do insult my bride — your mistress —
 To talk of horrors on our wedding-night !

Albert. Alas ! poor Prince, I would you knew my heart !

'T is not so guilty —

Ludolph. Hear, he pleads not guilty !

You are not ? or, if so, what matters it ?
 You have escaped me, free as the dusk air, 30
 Hid in the forest, safe from my revenge ;
 I cannot catch you ! You should laugh at me,
 Poor cheated Ludolph ! Make the forest hiss
 With jeers at me ! You tremble ; faint at once,
 You will come to again. O cockatrice,
 I have you ! Whither wander those fair eyes
 To entice the Devil to your help, that he May change you to a spider, so to crawl
 Into some cranny to escape my wrath ? 40

Albert. Sometimes the counsel of a dying man
 Doth operate quietly when his breath is gone :
 Disjoin those hands — part — part — do not destroy
 Each other — forget her ! — Our miseries
 Are equal shared, and mercy is —

Ludolph. A boon

When one can compass it. Auranthe, try
 Your oratory ; your breath is not so hitch'd.
 Ay, stare for help ! [ALBERT groans and dies.

There goes a spotted soul

Howling in vain along the hollow night ! 49
 Hear him ! He calls you — sweet Auranthe, come !

Auranthe. Kill me !

Ludolph. No ! What, upon our marriage-night !
 The earth would shudder at so foul a deed !
 A fair bride ! A sweet bride ! An innocent bride !
 No ! we must revel it, as 't is in use
 In times of delicate brilliant ceremony :
 Come, let me lead you to our halls again !
 Nay, linger not ; make no resistance, sweet ; —

Will you? Ah, wretch, thou canst not, for I have
 The strength of twenty lions 'gainst a lamb!
 Now — one adieu for Albert! — Come away! 60
 [Exeunt.]

SCENE III. — An inner Court in the Castle

Enter SIGIFRED, GONFRED, and THEODORE, meeting.

1st Knight. Was ever such a night?

Sigifred. What horrors more?

Things unbelieved one hour, so strange they are,
 The next hour stamps with credit.

1st Knight. Your last news?

Gonfred. After the Page's story of the death
 Of Albert and Duke Conrad?

Sigifred. And the return
 Of Ludolph with the Princess.

Gonfred. No more, save
 Prince Gersa's freeing Abbot Ethelbert,
 And the sweet lady, fair Erminia,
 From prison.

1st Knight. Where are they now? Hast yet heard?

Gonfred. With the sad Emperor they are closeted;
 I saw the three pass slowly up the stairs,
 The lady weeping, the old Abbot cowl'd.

Sigifred. What next?

1st Knight. I ache to think on't.

Gonfred. 'Tis with fate.

1st Knight. One while these proud towers are hush'd as death.

Gonfred. The next our poor Prince fills the arched rooms
 With ghastly ravings.

Sigifred. I do fear his brain.

Gonfred. I will see more. Bear you so stout a heart?

[Exeunt into the Castle.]

SCENE IV. — A Cabinet, opening towards a terrace

OTHO, ERMINIA, ETHELBERT, and a Physician, discovered.

Otho. O, my poor boy! My son! My son! My Ludolph!

Have ye no comfort for me, ye physicians
Of the weak body and soul?

Ethelbert. 'T is not in medicine,
Either of heaven or earth, to cure, unless Fit time be chosen to administer.

Otho. A kind forbearance, holy Abbot. Come,
Erminia; here, sit by me, gentle girl;
Give me thy hand; hast thou forgiven me?

Erminia. Would I were with the saints to pray for you!

Otho. Why will ye keep me from my darling
child? 10

Physician. Forgive me, but he must not see thy face.

Otho. Is then a father's countenance a Gorgon?
Hath it not comfort in it? Would it not Console my poor boy, cheer him, help his spirits?

Let me embrace him; let me speak to him;
I will! Who hinders me? Who's Emperor?

Physician. You may not, Sire; 't would overwhelm him quite,

He is so full of grief and passionate wrath;
Too heavy a sigh would kill him, or do worse.

He must be saved by fine contrivances; 20
And, most especially, we must keep clear

Out of his sight a father whom he loves;
His heart is full, it can contain no more,
And do its ruddy office.

Ethelbert. Sage advice;
We must endeavour how to ease and slacken

The tight-wound energies of his despair,
Not make them tenser.

Otho. Enough! I hear, I hear;
Yet you were about to advise more, — I listen.

Ethelbert. This learned doctor will agree with me,
That not in the smallest point should he be thwarted,
Or gainsaid by one word; his very motions, <sup>31</sup>
Nods, becks, and hints, should be obey'd with care,
Even on the moment: so his troubled mind
May cure itself.

Physician. There are no other means.

Otho. Open the door; let's hear if all is quiet.

Physician. Beseech you, Sire, forbear.

Erminia.

Do, do.

Otho.

I command!

Open it straight; — hush! — quiet! — my lost boy!
My miserable child!

Ludolph (indistinctly without). Fill, fill my goblet,
— here's a health!

Erminia.

O, close the door!

Otho. Let, let me hear his voice; this cannot last:

And fain would I catch up his dying words, <sup>40</sup>
Though my own knell they be! This cannot last!
O let me catch his voice — for lo! I hear
This silence whisper me that he is dead!
It is so! Gersa?

Enter GERSA.

Physician. Say, how fares the prince?

Gersa. More calm; his features are less wild and flush'd;

Once he complained of weariness.

Physician.

Indeed!

'T is good, — 't is good; let him but fall asleep,
That saves him.

Otho.

Gersa, watch him like a child;
Ward him from harm, — and bring me better news!

Physician. Humour him to the height. I fear to go ; 50

For should he catch a glimpse of my dull garb,
It might affright him, fill him with suspicion
That we believe him sick, which must not be.

Gersa. I will invent what soothing means I can.

Physician. This should cheer up your highness ;
weariness

Is a good symptom, and most favourable ;
It gives me pleasant hopes. Please you, walk forth
Upon the terrace ; the refreshing air
Will blow one half of your sad doubts away.

[Exeunt.

SCENE V.— A Banqueting Hall, brilliantly illuminated, and set forth with all costly magnificence, with supper-tables laden with services of gold and silver. A door in the back scene, guarded by two Soldiers. Lords, Ladies, Knights, Gentlemen, etc., whispering sadly, and ranging themselves ; part entering and part discovered.

1st Knight. Grievously are we tantalized, one and all ;

Sway'd here and there, commanded to and fro,
As though we were the shadows of a sleep,
And link'd to a dreaming fancy. What do we here ?

Gonfred. I am no seer ; you know we must obey
The prince from A to Z, though it should be
To set the place in flames. I pray, hast heard
Where the most wicked Princess is ?

1st Knight. There, sir,

In the next room ; have you remark'd those two Stout soldiers posted at the door ?

Gonfred.

For what ? 10

1st Lady. How ghast a train !

2d Lady. Sure this should be some splendid burial.

1st Lady. What fearful whispering! See, see, — Gersa there!

Enter GERSA.

Gersa. Put on your brightest looks; smile if you can;

Behave as all were happy; keep your eyes
From the least watch upon him; if he speaks
To any one, answer collectedly,
Without surprise, his questions, howe'er strange.
Do this to the utmost — though, alas! with me
The remedy grows hopeless! Here he comes, — 20
Observe what I have said — show no surprise.

Enter LUDOLPH, followed by SIGIFRED and Page.

Ludolph. A splendid company! rare beauties
here!

I should have Orphean lips, and Plato's fancy,
Amphion's utterance, toned with his lyre,
Or the deep key of Jove's sonorous mouth,
To give fit salutation. Methought I heard,
As I came in, some whispers — what of that?
'T is natural men should whisper; at the kiss
Of Psyche given by Love, there was a buzz 30
Among the gods! — and silence is as natural.
These draperies are fine, and, being a mortal,
I should desire no better; yet, in truth,
There must be some superior costliness,
Some wider-domed high magnificence!
I would have, as a mortal I may not,
Hangings of heaven's clouds, purple and gold,
Slung from the spheres; gauzes of silver mist,
Loop'd up with cords of twisted wreathed light,
And tassell'd round with weeping meteors!
These pendent lamps and chandeliers are bright 40
As earthly fires from dull dross can be cleansed;
Yet could my eyes drink up intenser beams

Undazzled — this is darkness — when I close
 These lids, I see far fiercer brilliances, —
 Skies full of splendid moons, and shooting stars,
 And spouting exhalations, diamond fires,
 And panting fountains quivering with deep glows !
 Yes — this is dark — is it not dark ?

Sigifred.

My Lord,

'T is late ; the lights of festival are ever
 Quench'd in the morn.

50

Ludolph.

'T is not to-morrow then ?

Sigifred. 'T is early dawn.

Gersa.

Indeed full time we slept :

Say you so, Prince ?

Ludolph.

I say I quarrel'd with you ;

We did not tilt each other — that 's a blessing, —
 Good gods ! no innocent blood upon my head !

Sigifred. Retire, Gersa !

Ludolph.

There should be three more here ;

For two of them, they stay away perhaps,
 Being gloomy-minded, haters of fair revels, —
 They know their own thoughts best.

As for the third,

Deep blue eyes, semi-shaded in white lids,
 Finish'd with lashes fine for more soft shade,
 Completed by her twin-arch'd ebon-brows ;
 White temples, of exactest elegance,
 Of even mould, felicitous and smooth ;
 Cheeks fashion'd tenderly on either side,
 So perfect, so divine, that our poor eyes
 Are dazzled with the sweet proportioning,
 And wonder that 't is so — the magic chance !

60

Her nostrils, small, fragrant, fairy-delicate ;
 Her lips — I swear no human bones e'er wore
 So taking a disguise ; — you shall behold her !

70

We'll have her presently ; ay, you shall see her,
 And wonder at her, friends, she is so fair ;
 She is the world's chief jewel, and, by heaven,
 She 's mine by right of marriage ! — she is mine !

Patience, good people, in fit time I send
 A summoner, — she will obey my call,
 Being a wife most mild and dutiful.
 First I would hear what music is prepared
 To herald and receive her ; let me hear !

Sigifred. Bid the musicians soothe him tenderly. 80
 [A soft strain of Music.

Ludolph. Ye have none better ? No, I am content ;

'T is a rich sobbing melody, with reliefs
 Full and majestic ; it is well enough,
 And will be sweeter. when you see her pace
 Sweeping into this presence, glistened o'er
 With emptied caskets, and her train upheld
 By ladies, habited in robes of lawn,
 Sprinkled with golden crescents, others bright
 In silks, with spangles shower'd, and bow'd to
 By Duchesses and pearled Margravines !
 Sad, that the fairest creature of the earth —
 I pray you mind me not — 't is sad, I say,
 That the extremest beauty of the world
 Should so entrench herself away from me,
 Behind a barrier of engender'd guilt !

90

2d Lady. Ah ! what a moan !

1st Knight. Most piteous indeed !

Ludolph. She shall be brought before this company,

And then — then —

1st Lady. He muses.

Gersa. O, Fortune, where will this end ?

Sigifred. I guess his purpose ! Indeed he must not have

That pestilence brought in, — that cannot be, 100
 There we must stop him.

Gersa. I am lost ! Hush, hush !
 He is about to rave again.

Ludolph. A barrier of guilt ! I was the fool !
 She was the cheater ! Who's the cheater now,

And who the fool? The entrapp'd, the caged, fool,
 The bird-limed raven? She shall croak to death
 Secure! Methinks I have her in my fist,
 To crush her with my heel! Wait, wait! I marvel
 My father keeps away. Good friend — ah! Sigifred!

Do bring him to me, — and Erminia 110
 I fain would see before I sleep — and Ethelbert,
 That he may bless me, as I know he will,
 Though I have cursed him.

Sigifred. Rather suffer me
 To lead you to them.

Ludolph. No, excuse me, — no!
 The day is not quite done. Go, bring them hither.
[Exit SIGIFRED.]

Certes, a father's smile should, like sun light,
 Slant on my sheafed harvest of ripe bliss,
 Besides, I thirst to pledge my lovely bride
 In a deep goblet: let me see — what wine?
 The strong Iberian juice, or mellow Greek? 120
 Or pale Calabrian? Or the Tuscan grape?
 Or of old Ætna's pulpy wine-presses,
 Black stain'd with the fat vintage, as it were
 The purple slaughter-house, where Bacchus' self Prick'd his own swollen veins? Where is my page?

Page. Here, here!

Ludolph. Be ready to obey me; anon thou shalt
 Bear a soft message for me; for the hour
 Draws near when I must make a winding up
 Of bridal mysteries — a fine-spun vengeance!
 Carve it on my tomb, that, when I rest beneath, 130
 Men shall confess this Prince was gull'd and cheated,
 But from the ashes of disgrace he rose
 More than a fiery phœnix, and did burn
 His ignominy up in purging fires!
 Did I not send, Sir, but a moment past,
 For my Father?

Gersa. You did.

Ludolph. Perhaps 't would be Much better he came not.
Gersa. He enters now !

Enter OTHO, ERMINIA, ETHELBERT, SIGIFRED, and Physician.

Ludolph. O thou good man, against whose sacred head
 I was a mad conspirator, chiefly too,
 For the sake of my fair newly wedded wife, 140
 Now to be punish'd, do not look so sad !
 Those charitable eyes will thaw my heart,
 Those tears will wash away a just resolve,
 A verdict ten times sworn ! Awake — awake —
 Put on a judge's brow, and use a tongue
 Made iron-stern by habit ! Thou shalt see
 A deed to be applauded, 'scribed in gold !
 Join a loud voice to mine, and so denounce
 What I alone will execute.

Otho. Dear son,
 What is it ? By your father's love, I sue
 That it be nothing merciless ! 150

Ludolph. To that demon ?
 Not so ! No ! She is in temple-stall
 Being garnish'd for the sacrifice, and I,
 The Priest of Justice, will immolate her
 Upon the altar of wrath. She stings me through ! —
 Even as the worm doth feed upon the nut,
 So she, a scorpion, preys upon my brain !
 I feel her gnawing here ! Let her but vanish,
 Then, father, I will lead your legions forth,
 Compact in steeled squares, and speared files, 160
 And bid our trumpets speak a fell rebuke
 To nations drows'd in peace !

Otho. To-morrow, son,
 Be your word law ; forget to-day —

Ludolph. I will

When I have finish'd it. Now, — now, I'm pight,
Tight-footed for the deed!

Erminia. Alas! Alas!

Ludolph. What angel's voice is that? Erminia!
Ah! gentlest creature, whose sweet innocence
Was almost murder'd; I am penitent;
Wilt thou forgive me? And thou, holy man,
Good Ethelbert, shall I die in peace with you? 170

Erminia. Die, my lord!

Ludolph. I feel it possible.

Otho. Physician?

Physician. I fear me he is past my skill.

Otho. Not so!

Ludolph. I see it — I see it — I have been wandering!

Half mad — not right here — I forget my purpose.

Bestir — bestir — Auranthe! Ha! ha! ha!

Youngster! Page! go bid them drag her to me!

Obey! This shall finish it! [Draws a dagger.

Otho. Oh, my son! my son!

Sigifred. This must not be — stop there!

Ludolph. Am I obey'd?

A little talk with her — no harm — haste! haste!

Set her before me — never fear I can strike. • 180

Several Voices. My Lord! My Lord!

Gersa. Good Prince!

Ludolph. Why do ye trouble me? out — out —
away!

There she is! take that! and that! no, no —

That's not well done. — Where is she?

The doors open. Enter Page. Several women are seen grouped about AURANTHE in the inner-room.

Page. Alas! My Lord, my Lord! they cannot move her!

Her arms are stiff, — her fingers clench'd and cold!

Ludolph. She 's dead !

[Staggers and falls into their arms.]

Ethelbert. Take away the dagger.

Gersa.

Softly ; so !

Otho. Thank God for that !

Sigifred.

It could not harm him now.

Gersa. No ! — brief be his anguish !

Ludolph. She's gone ! I am content — Nobles, good night ! 190

We are all weary — faint — set ope the doors —

I will to bed ! — To-morrow —

[Dies.]

The Curtain falls.

KING STEPHEN

A DRAMATIC FRAGMENT

ACT I

SCENE I. — Field of Battle

Alarum. Enter King STEPHEN, Knights, and Soldiers.

Stephen. If shame can on a soldier's vein-swoll'n front

Spread deeper crimson than the battle's toil,
Blush in your casing helmets ! for see, see !
Yonder my chivalry, my pride of war,
Wrench'd with an iron hand from firm array,
Are routed loose about the plashy meads,
Of honour forfeit. O, that my known voice
Could reach your dastard ears, and fright you more !
Fly, cowards, fly ! Gloucester is at your backs !
Throw your slack bridles o'er the flurried manes,
Ply well the rowell with faint trembling heels, 10
Scampering to death at last !

1st Knight.

The enemy

Bears his flaunt standard close upon their rear.

2d Knight. Sure of a bloody prey, seeing the fens
Will swamp them girth-deep.

Stephen. Over head and ears,
No matter ! 'T is a gallant enemy ;
How like a comet he goes streaming on.
But we must plague him in the flank, — hey, friends?
We are well breathed, — follow !

Enter Earl BALDWIN and Soldiers, as defeated.

Stephen. De Redvers !
What is the monstrous bugbear that can fright 20
Baldwin ?

Baldwin. No scare-crow, but the fortunate star
Of boisterous Chester, whose fell truncheon now
Points level to the goal of victory.
This way he comes, and if you would maintain
Your person unaffronted by vile odds,
Take horse, my Lord.

Stephen. And which way spur for life ?
Now I thank Heaven I am in the toils,
That soldiers may bear witness how my arm
Can burst the meshes. Not the eagle more
Loves to beat up against a tyrannous blast, 30
Than I to meet the torrent of my foes.
This is a brag, — be 't so, — but if I fall,
Carve it upon my 'scutcheon'd sepulchre.
On, fellow soldiers ! Earl of Redvers, back !
Not twenty Earls of Chester shall brow-beat
The diadem. [Exeunt. Alarum.

SCENE II. — Another part of the Field

Trumpets sounding a Victory. Enter GLOCESTER, Knights, and Forces.

Glocester. Now may we lift our bruised visors up,
And take the flattering freshness of the air,
While the wide din of battle dies away
Into times past, yet to be echoed sure
In the silent pages of our chroniclers.

1st Knight. Will Stephen's death be mark'd there,
my good Lord,
Or that we gave him lodging in yon towers ?

Glocester. Fain would I know the great usurper's fate.

Enter two Captains severally.

1st Captain. My Lord !

2d Captain. Most noble Earl !

1st Captain. The King —

2d Captain. The Empress greets —

Glocester. What of the King ?

1st Captain. He sole and lone maintains
A hopeless bustle 'mid our swarming arms, 12
And with a nimble savageness attacks,
Escapes, makes fiercer onset, then anew
Eludes death, giving death to most that dare
Trespass within the circuit of his sword !
He must by this have fallen. Baldwin is taken ;
And for the Duke of Bretagne, like a stag
He flies, for the Welsh beagles to hunt down. 19
God save the Empress !

Glocester. Now our dreaded Queen :
What message from her Highness ?

2d Captain. Royal Maud
From the throng'd towers of Lincoln hath look'd
down,

Like Pallas from the walls of Ilion,
And seen her enemies havock'd at her feet.
She greets most noble Glocester from her heart,
Entreating him, his captains, and brave knights,
To grace a banquet. The high city gates
Are envious which shall see your triumph pass ;
The streets are full of music.

Enter 2d Knight.

Glocester. Whence come you ?

2d Knight. From Stephen, my good Prince, —
Stephen ! Stephen ! 30

Glocester. Why do you make such echoing of his name ?

2d Knight. Because I think, my lord, he is no man,

But a fierce demon, 'nointed safe from wounds,
And misbaptized with a Christian name.

Glocester. A mighty soldier ! — Does he still hold out ?

2d Knight. He shames our victory. His valour still Keeps elbow-room amid our eager swords,

And holds our bladed falchions all aloof —
His gleaming battle-axe being slaughter-sick,
Smote on the morion of a Flemish knight, 40
Broke short in his hand ; upon the which he flung
The heft away with such a vengeful force,
It paunch'd the Earl of Chester's horse, who then
Spleen-hearted came in full career at him.

Glocester. Did no one take him at a vantage then ?

2d Knight. Three then with tiger leap upon him
flew,

Whom with his sword swift-drawn and nimbly held,
He stung away again, and stood to breathe,
Smiling. Anon upon him rush'd once more
A throng of foes, and in this renew'd strife, 50
My sword met his and snapp'd off at the hilt.

Glocester. Come, lead me to this man — and let us
move

In silence, not insulting his sad doom
With clamorous trumpets. To the Empress bear
My salutation as befits the time.

[Exeunt GLOCESTER and Forces.]

SCENE III. — The Field of Battle

Enter STEPHEN unarmed.

Stephen. Another sword ! And what if I could seize

One from Bellona's gleaming armoury,
 Or choose the fairest of her sheafed spears!
 Where are my enemies? Here, close at hand,
 Here come the testy brood. O, for a sword!
 I'm faint — a biting sword! A noble sword!
 A hedge-stake — or a ponderous stone to hurl
 With brawny vengeance, like the labourer Cain.
 Come on! Farewell my kingdom, and all hail
 Thou superb, plumed, and helmeted renown, 10
 All hail — I would not truck this brilliant day
 To rule in Pylos with a Nestor's beard —
 Come on!

Enter DE KAIMS and Knights, etc.

De Kaims. Is 't madness or a hunger after death
 That makes thee thus unarm'd throw taunts at us? —

Yield, Stephen, or my sword's point dips in
 The gloomy current of a traitor's heart.

Stephen. Do it, De Kaims, I will not budge an inch.

De Kaims. Yes, of thy madness thou shalt take the meed.

Stephen. Darest thou?

De Kaims. How dare, against a man disarm'd?

Stephen. What weapons has the lion but himself?
 Come not near me, De Kaims, for by the price 21
 Of all the glory I have won this day,
 Being a king, I will not yield alive
 To any but the second man of the realm,
 Robert of Gloucester.

De Kaims. Thou shalt vail to me.

Stephen. Shall I, when I have sworn against it, sir?

Thou think'st it brave to take a breathing king,
 That, on a court-day bow'd to haughty Maud,
 The awed presence-chamber may be bold
 To whisper, there's the man who took alive 30

Stephen — me — prisoner. Certes, De Kaims,
The ambition is a noble one.

De Kaims. 'T is true,

And, Stephen, I must compass it.

Stephen.

No, no,

Do not tempt me to throttle you on the gorge,
Or with my gauntlet crush your hollow breast,
Just when your knighthood is grown ripe and full

For lordship.

A Soldier. Is an honest yeoman's spear
Of no use at a need? Take that.

Stephen.

Ah, dastard!

De Kaims. What, you are vulnerable! my prisoner!

Stephen. No, not yet. I disclaim it, and demand
Death as a sovereign right unto a king 41
Who 'sdains to yield to any but his peer,
If not in title, yet in noble deeds,
The Earl of Gloucester. Stab to the hilt, De Kaims,
For I will never by mean hands be led
From this so famous field. Do you hear! Be quick!

Trumpets. Enter the Earl of CHESTER, and Knights.

SCENE IV. — A Presence Chamber. Queen MAUD in a Chair of State, the Earls of GLOUCESTER and CHES-TER, Lords, Attendants

Maud. Gloucester, no more: I will behold that Boulogne:

Set him before me. Not for the poor sake
Of regal pomp and a vain-glorious hour,
As thou with wary speech, yet near enough,
Hast hinted.

Glocester. Faithful counsel have I given;
If wary, for your Highness' benefit.

Maud. The heavens forbid that I should not think so,
 For by thy valour have I won this realm,
 Which by thy wisdom I will ever keep.
 To sage advisers let me ever bend 10
 A meek attentive ear, so that they treat
 Of the wide kingdom's rule and government,
 Not trenching on our actions personal.
 Advised, not school'd, I would be ; and henceforth
 Spoken to in clear, plain, and open terms,
 Not side-ways sermon'd at.

Glocester. Then in plain terms,
 Once more for the fallen king —

Maud. Your pardon, Brother,
 I would no more of that ; for, as I said,
 'Tis not for worldly pomp I wish to see
 The rebel, but as dooming judge to give 20
 A sentence something worthy of his guilt.

Glocester. If 't must be so, I'll bring him to your presence. [Exit GLOCESTER.]

Maud. A meaner summoner might do as well —
 My Lord of Chester, is 't true what I hear
 Of Stephen of Boulogne, our prisoner,
 That he, as a fit penance for his crimes,
 Eats wholesome, sweet, and palatable food
 Off Gloucester's golden dishes — drinks pure wine,
 Lodges soft ?

Chester. More than that, my gracious Queen,
 Has anger'd me. The noble Earl, methinks, 30
 Full soldier as he is, and without peer
 In counsel, dreams too much among his books.
 It may read well, but sure 't is out of date
 To play the Alexander with Darius.

Maud. Truth! I think so. By Heavens it shall not last!

Chester. It would amaze your Highness now to mark

How Gloucester overstrains his courtesy
To that crime-loving rebel, that Boulogne —

Maud. That ingrate!

Chester. For whose vast ingratitude
To our late sovereign lord, your noble sire, 40
The generous Earl condoles in his mishaps,
And with a sort of lackeying friendliness,
Talks off the mighty frowning from his brow
Woos him to hold a duet in a smile,
Or, if it please him, play an hour at chess —

Maud. A perjured slave!

Chester. And for his perjury,
Gloucester has fit rewards — nay, I believe,
He sets his bustling household's wits at work
For flatteries to ease this Stephen's hours,
And make a heaven of his purgatory ; 50
Adorning bondage with the pleasant gloss
Of feasts and music, and all idle shows
Of indoor pageantry ; while siren whispers,
Predestined for his ear, 'scape as half-check'd
From lips the courtliest and the rubiest,
Of all the realm, admiring of his deeds.

Maud. A frost upon his summer!

Chester. A queen's nod
Can make his June December. Here he comes.

. . . . .

THE EVE OF ST. MARK

A FRAGMENT

UPON a Sabbath-day it fell ;
 Twice holy was the Sabbath-bell,
 That call'd the folk to evening prayer ;
 The city streets were clean and fair
 From wholesome drench of April rains ;
 And, on the western window panes,
 The chilly sunset faintly told
 Of unmaturred green valleys cold,
 Of the green thorny bloomless hedge,
 Of rivers new with spring-tide sedge, 10
 Of primroses by shelter'd rills,
 And daisies on the aguish hills.
 Twice holy was the Sabbath-bell :
 The silent streets were crowded well
 With staid and pious companies,
 Warm from their fireside orat'ries ;
 And moving, with demurest air,
 To even-song, and vesper prayer.
 Each arched porch, and entry low,
 Was fill'd with patient folk and slow, 20
 With whispers hush, and shuffling feet,
 While play'd the organ loud and sweet.

The bells had ceased, the prayers begun,
 And Bertha had not yet half done
 A curious volume, patch'd and torn,
 That all day long, from earliest morn,
 Had taken captive her two eyes,
 Among its golden broideries ;
 Perplex'd her with a thousand things, —
 The stars of Heaven, and angels' wings, 30
 Martyrs in a fiery blaze,

Azure saints and silver rays,
 Moses' breastplate and the seven,
 Candlesticks John saw in Heaven,
 The winged Lion of Saint Mark,
 And the Covenantal Ark,
 With its many mysteries,
 Cherubim and golden mice.

Bertha was a maiden fair,
 Dwelling in th' old Minster-square ; 40
 From her fireside she could see,
 Sidelong, its rich antiquity,
 Far as the Bishop's garden wall ;
 Where sycamores and elm-trees tall,
 Full-leaved, the forest had outstript,
 By no sharp north-wind ever nipt,
 So shelter'd by the mighty pile.
 Bertha arose, and read awhile,
 With forehead 'gainst the window-pane.
 Again she tried, and then again, 50
 Until the dusk eve left her dark
 Upon the legend of St. Mark.
 From plaited lawn-frill, fine and thin,
 She lifted up her soft warm chin,
 With aching neck and swimming eyes,
 And dazed with saintly imag'ries.

All was gloom, and silent all,
 Save now and then the still foot-fall
 Of one returning homewards late,
 Past the echoing minster-gate. 60
 The clamorous daws, that all the day
 Above tree-tops and towers play,
 Pair by pair had gone to rest,
 Each in its ancient belfry-nest,
 Where asleep they fall betimes,
 To music and the drowsy chimes.

All was silent, all was gloom,
 Abroad and in the homely room :
 Down she sat, poor cheated soul !
 And struck a lamp from the dismal coal ; 70
 Lean'd forward, with bright drooping hair
 And slant book, full against the glare.
 Her shadow, in uneasy guise,
 Hover'd about, a giant size,
 On ceiling-beam and old oak chair,
 The parrot's cage, and panel-square ;
 And the warm angled winter-screen,
 On which were many monsters seen,
 Call'd doves of Siam, Lima mice,
 And legless birds of Paradise, 80
 Macaw, and tender Avadavat,
 And silken-furr'd Angora cat.
 Untired she read, her shadow still
 Glower'd about, as it would fill
 The room with wildest forms and shades,
 As though some ghostly queen of spades
 Had come to mock behind her back,
 And dance, and ruffle her garments black.
 Untired she read the legend page,
 Of holy Mark, from youth to age, 90
 On land, on sea, in pagan chains,
 Rejoicing for his many pains.
 Sometimes the learned eremite,
 With golden star, or dagger bright,
 Referr'd to pious poesies
 Written in smallest crow-quill size
 Beneath the text ; and thus the rhyme
 Was parcell'd out from time to time :
 — ' Als writith he of swevenis,
 Men han beforne they wake in bliss, 100
 Whanne that hir friendes thinke him bound
 In crimped shroude farre under grounde ;
 And how a litling child mote be

A saint er its nativitie,
Gif that the modre (God her blesse !)
Kepen in solitarinesse,
And kissen devoute the holy croce,
Of Goddes love, and Sathan's force, —
He writith ; and thinges many mo
Of swiche thinges I may not show. 110
Bot I must tellen verilie
Somdel of Saintè Cicilie,
And chieffie what he auctorethe
Of Saintè Markis life and dethe :'

At length her constant eyelids come
Upon the fervent martyrdom ;
Then lastly to his holy shrine,
Exalt amid the tapers' shine
At Venice, —

HYPERION

A FRAGMENT

BOOK I

DEEP in the shady sadness of a vale
 Far sunken from the healthy breath of morn,
 Far from the fiery noon, and eve's one star,
 Sat gray-hair'd Saturn, quiet as a stone,
 Still as the silence round about his lair ;
 Forest on forest hung about his head
 Like cloud on cloud. No stir of air was there,
 Not so much life as on a summer's day
 Robs not one light seed from the feather'd grass,
 But where the dead leaf fell, there did it rest. 10
 A stream went voiceless by, still deadened more
 By reason of his fallen divinity
 Spreading a shade : the Naiad 'mid her reeds
 Press'd her cold finger closer to her lips.

Along the margin-sand large foot-marks went,
 No further than to where his feet had stray'd,
 And slept there since. Upon the sodden ground
 His old right hand lay nerveless, listless, dead,
 Unscptred ; and his realmless eyes were closed ;
 While his bow'd head seem'd list'ning to the Earth,
 His ancient mother, for some comfort yet. 21

It seem'd no force could wake him from his place ;
 But there came one, who with a kindred hand
 Touch'd his wide shoulders, after bending low
 With reverence, though to one who knew it not.
 She was a Goddess of the infant world ;
 By her in stature the tall Amazon
 Had stood a pigmy's height : she would have ta'en
 Achilles by the hair and bent his neck ;

Or with a finger stay'd Ixion's wheel. 30
 Her face was large as that of Memphian sphinx,
 Pedestal'd haply in a palace-court,
 When sages look'd to Egypt for their lore.
 But oh! how unlike marble was that face;
 How beautiful, if sorrow had not made
 Sorrow more beautiful than Beauty's self.
 There was a listening fear in her regard,
 As if calamity had but begun;
 As if the vanward clouds of evil days
 Had spent their malice, and the sullen rear 40
 Was with its stored thunder labouring up.
 One hand she press'd upon that aching spot
 Where beats the human heart, as if just there,
 Though an immortal, she felt cruel pain:
 The other upon Saturn's bended neck
 She laid, and to the level of his ear
 Leaning with parted lips, some words she spake
 In solemn tenour and deep organ tone:
 Some mourning words, which in our feeble tongue
 Would come in these like accents; O how frail 50
 To that large utterance of the early gods!
 'Saturn, look up! — though wherefore, poor old King?

I have no comfort for thee, no not one:
 I cannot say, "O wherefore sleepest thou?"
 For heaven is parted from thee, and the earth
 Knows thee not, thus afflicted, for a God;
 And ocean too, with all its solemn noise,
 Has from thy sceptre pass'd; and all the air
 Is emptied of thine hoary majesty.
 Thy thunder, conscious of the new command, 60
 Rumbles reluctant o'er our fallen house;
 And thy sharp lightning in unpractised hands
 Scorches and burns our once serene domain.
 O aching time! O moments big as years!
 All as ye pass swell out the monstrous truth,
 And press it so upon our weary griefs

That unbelief has not a space to breathe.
 Saturn, sleep on : — O thoughtless, why did I
 Thus violate thy slumbrous solitude ?
 Why should I ope thy melancholy eyes ?
 Saturn, sleep on ! while at thy feet I weep.'

70

As when, upon a tranced summer-night,
 Those green-robed senators of mighty woods,
 Tall oaks, branch-charmed by the earnest stars,
 Dream, and so dream all night without a stir,
 Save from one gradual solitary gust
 Which comes upon the silence, and dies off,
 As if the ebbing air had but one wave :
 So came these words and went ; the while in tears
 She touch'd her fair large forehead to the ground, 80
 Just where her falling hair might be outspread
 A soft and silken mat for Saturn's feet.
 One moon, with alteration slow, had shed
 Her silver seasons four upon the night,
 And still these two were postured motionless,
 Like natural sculpture in cathedral cavern ;
 The frozen God still couchant on the earth,
 And the sad Goddess weeping at his feet :
 Until at length old Saturn lifted up
 His faded eyes, and saw his kingdom gone, 90
 And all the gloom and sorrow of the place,
 And that fair kneeling Goddess ; and then spake,
 As with a palsied tongue, and while his beard
 Shook horrid with such aspen-malady :
 ' O tender spouse of gold Hyperion,
 Thea, I feel thee ere I see thy face ;
 Look up, and let me see our doom in it ;
 Look up, and tell me if this feeble shape
 Is Saturn's ; tell me, if thou hear'st the voice
 Of Saturn ; tell me, if this wrinkling brow, 100
 Naked and bare of its great diadem,
 Peers like the front of Saturn. Who had power
 To make me desolate ? whence came the strength ?

How was it nurtured to such bursting forth,
 While Fate seem'd strangled in my nervous grasp ?
 But it is so ; and I am smother'd up,
 And buried from all godlike exercise
 Of influence benign on planets pale,
 Of admonitions to the winds and seas,
 Of peaceful sway above man's harvesting, 110
 And all those acts which Deity supreme
 Doth ease its heart of love in. — I am gone
 Away from my own bosom : I have left
 My strong identity, my real self,
 Somewhere between the throne, and where I sit
 Here on this spot of earth. Search, Thea, search !
 Open thine eyes eterne, and sphere them round
 Upon all space : space starr'd, and lorn of light ;
 Space region'd with life-air, and barren void ;
 Spaces of fire, and all the yawn of hell. 120
 Search, Thea, search ! and tell me if thou seest
 A certain shape or shadow, making way
 With wings or chariot fierce to repossess
 A heaven he lost erewhile : it must — it must Be of ripe progress — Saturn must be King.
 Yes, there must be a golden victory ;
 There must be Gods thrown down, and trumpets
 blown
 Of triumph calm, and hymns of festival
 Upon the gold clouds metropolitan,
 Voices of soft proclaim, and silver stir 130
 Of strings in hollow shells ; and there shall be
 Beautiful things made new, for the surprise
 Of the sky-children ; I will give command :
 Thea ! Thea ! Thea ! where is Saturn !

This passion lifted him upon his feet,
 And made his hands to struggle in the air,
 His Druid locks to shake and ooze with sweat,
 His eyes to fever out, his voice to cease.
 He stood, and heard not Thea's sobbing deep ;

A little time, and then again he snatch'd 140
 Utterance thus : — 'But cannot I create ?
 Cannot I form ? Cannot I fashion forth
 Another world, another universe,
 To overbear and crumble this to nought ?
 Where is another chaos ? Where ?' — That word
 Found way unto Olympus, and made quake
 The rebel three. — Thea was startled up,
 And in her bearing was a sort of hope,
 As thus she quick-voiced spake, yet full of awe.

'This cheers our fallen house : come to our friends,
 O Saturn ! come away, and give them heart ; 151
 I know the covert, for thence came I hither.'
 Thus brief ; then with beseeching eyes she went
 With backward footing through the shade a space :
 He follow'd, and she turn'd to lead the way
 Through aged boughs, that yielded like the mist
 Which eagles cleave upmounting from their nest.

Meanwhile in other realms big tears were shed,
 More sorrow like to this, and such like woe,
 Too huge for mortal tongue or pen of scribe : 160
 The Titans fierce, self-hid, or prison-bound
 Groan'd for the old allegiance once more,
 And listen'd in sharp pain for Saturn's voice.
 But one of the whole mammoth-brood still kept
 His sov'reignty, and rule, and majesty ;
 Blazing Hyperion on his orb'd fire
 Still sat, still snuff'd the incense, teeming up
 From man to the sun's God ; yet unsecure :
 For as among us mortals omens drear
 Fright and perplex, so also shudder'd he, 170
 Not at dog's howl, or gloom-bird's hated screech,
 Or the familiar visiting of one
 Upon the first toll of his passing-bell,
 Or prophesyings of the midnight lamp :
 But horrors, portion'd to a giant nerve,

Oft made Hyperion ache. His palace bright
 Bastion'd with pyramids of glowing gold,
 And touch'd with shade of bronzed obelisks,
 Glared a blood-red through all its thousand courts,
 Arches, and domes, and fiery galleries ; 180
 And all its curtains of Aurorian clouds
 Flush'd angerly : while sometimes eagles' wings,
 Unseen before by Gods or wondering men,
 Darken'd the place ; and neighing steeds were heard,
 Not heard before by Gods or wondering men.
 Also, when he would taste the spicy wreaths,
 Of incense breathed aloft from sacred hills,
 Instead of sweets, his ample palate took
 Savour of poisonous brass and metal sick :
 And so, when harbour'd in the sleepy west, 190
 After the full completion of fair day,
 For rest divine upon exalted couch
 And slumber in the arms of melody,
 He paced away the pleasant hours of ease
 With stride colossal, on from hall to hall ;
 While far within each aisle and deep recess,
 His winged minions in close clusters stood,
 Amazed and full of fear ; like anxious men
 Who on wide plains gather in panting troops,
 When earthquakes jar their battlements and tow-
 ers. 200
 Even now while Saturn, roused from icy trance,
 Went step for step with Thea through the woods,
 Hyperion, leaving twilight in the rear,
 Came slope upon the threshold of the west ;
 Then, as was wont, his palace-door flew ope
 In smoothest silence, save what solemn tubes,
 Blown by the serious Zephyrs, gave of sweet
 And wandering sounds, slow-breathed melodies ;
 And like a rose in vermeil tint and shape,
 In fragrance soft, and coolness to the eye, 210
 That inlet to severe magnificence
 Stood full blown, for the God to enter in.

He enter'd, but he enter'd full of wrath,
 His flaming robes stream'd out beyond his heels,
 And gave a roar, as if of earthly fire,
 That scared away the meek ethereal Hours
 And made their dove-wings tremble. On he flared
 From stately nave to nave, from vault to vault,
 Through bowers of fragrant and enwreathed light,
 And diamond-paved lustrous long arcades 220
 Until he reach'd the great main cupola ;
 There standing fierce beneath, he stamp'd his foot,
 And from the basements deep to the high towers
 Jarr'd his own golden region : and before
 The quavering thunder thereupon had ceased,
 His voice leapt out, despite of godlike curb,
 To this result : ' O dreams of day and night !
 O monstrous forms ! O effigies of pain !
 O spectres busy in a cold, cold gloom !
 O lank-ear'd Phantoms of black-weeded pools ! 230
 Why do I know ye ? why have I seen ye ! why
 Is my eternal essence thus distraught
 To see and to behold these horrors new ?
 Saturn is fallen, am I too to fall ?
 Am I to leave this haven of my rest,
 This cradle of my glory, this soft clime,
 This calm luxuriance of blissful light,
 These crystalline pavilions, and pure fanes,
 Of all my lucent empire ? It is left
 Deserted, void, nor any haunt of mine. 240
 The blaze, the splendour, and the symmetry,
 I cannot see — but darkness, death and darkness.
 Even here, into my centre of repose,
 The shady visions come to domineer,
 Insult, and blind, and stifle up my pomp. —
 Fall ! — No, by Tellus and her briny robes !
 Over the fiery frontier of my realms
 I will advance a terrible right arm
 Shall scare that infant thunderer, rebel Jove,
 And bid old Saturn take his throne again.' 250

He spake, and ceased, the while a heavier threat
 Held struggle with his throat, but came not forth ;
 For as in theatres of crowded men
 Hubbub increases more they call out, 'Hush !
 So at Hyperion's words the Phantoms pale
 Bestirr'd themselves, thrice horrible and cold ;
 And from the mirror'd level where he stood
 A mist arose, as from a scummy marsh.
 At this, through all his bulk an agony
 Crept gradual, from the feet unto the crown, 260
 Like a lithe serpent vast and muscular
 Making slow way, with head and neck convulsed
 From over-strained might. Released, he fled
 To the eastern gates, and full six dewy hours
 Before the dawn in season due should blush,
 He breathed fierce breath against the sleepy portals,

Clear'd them of heavy vapours, burst them wide
 Suddenly on the ocean's chilly streams.
 The planet orb of fire, whereon he rode
 Each day from east to west the heavens through, 270
 Spun round in sable curtaining of clouds ;
 Not therefore veiled quite, blindfold, and hid,
 But ever and anon the glancing spheres,
 Circles, and arcs, and broad-belted colure,
 Glow'd through, and wrought upon the muffling dark

Sweet-shaped lightnings from the nadir deep
 Up to the zenith, — hieroglyphics old,
 Which sages and keen-eyed astrologers
 Then living on the earth, with labouring thought
 Won from the gaze of many centuries : 280
 Now lost, save what we find on remnants huge
 Of stone, or marble swart ; their import gone,
 Their wisdom long since fled. — Two wings this orb

Possess'd for glory, two fair argent wings,
 Ever exalted at the God's approach :

And now, from forth the gloom their plumes immense

Rose, one by one, till all outspread were ;

While still the dazzling globe maintain'd eclipse,

Awaiting for Hyperion's command.

Fain would he have commanded, fain took throne

And bid the day begin, if but for change.

291

He might not : — No, though a primeval God

The sacred seasons might not be disturb'd.

Therefore the operations of the dawn

Stay'd in their birth, even as here 't is told.

Those silver wings expanded sisterly,

Eager to sail their orb ; the porches wide

Open'd upon the dusk demesnes of night ;

And the bright Titan, phrenzied with new woes,

Unused to bend, by hard compulsion bent

300

His spirit to the sorrow of the time :

And all along a dismal rack of clouds,

Upon the boundaries of day and night,

He stretch'd himself in grief and radiance faint.

There as he lay, the Heaven with its stars

Look'd down on him with pity, and the voice

Of Cœlus, from the universal space,

Thus whisper'd low and solemn in his ear :

' O brightest of my children dear, earth-born

And sky-engendered, Son of Mysteries

310

All unrevealed even to the powers

Which met at thy creating ; at whose joys

And palpitations sweet, and pleasures soft,

I, Cœlus, wonder, how they came and whence ;

And at the fruits thereof what shapes they be,

Distinct, and visible ; symbols divine,

Manifestations of that beauteous life

Diffused unseen throughout eternal space :

Of these new-form'd art thou, oh brightest child !

Of these, thy brethren and the Goddesses !

320

There is sad feud among ye, and rebellion

Of son against his sire. I saw him fall,

I saw my first-born tumbled from his throne !
 To me his arms were spread, to me his voice Found way from forth the thunders round his head!

Pale wox I, and in vapours hid my face.
 Art thou, too, near such doom? vague fear there
 is:

For I have seen my sons most unlike Gods.
 Divine ye were created, and divine
 In sad demeanour, solemn, undisturb'd, 330
 Unruffled, like high Gods, ye lived and ruled :
 Now I behold in you fear, hope, and wrath ;
 Actions of rage and passion ; even as
 I see them, on the mortal world beneath,
 In men who die. — This is the grief, O Son !
 Sad sign of ruin, sudden dismay, and fall !
 Yet do thou strive ; as thou art capable,
 As thou canst move about, an evident God ;
 And canst oppose to each malignant hour
 Ethereal presence : — I am but a voice ; 340
 My life is but the life of winds and tides,
 No more than winds and tides can I avail : —
 But thou canst. — Be thou therefore in the van
 Of circumstance ; yea, seize the arrow's barb
 Before the tense string murmur. — To the earth !
 For there thou wilt find Saturn, and his woes.
 Meantime I will keep watch on thy bright sun,
 And of thy seasons be a careful nurse.' —
 Ere half this region-whisper had come down,
 Hyperion arose, and on the stars 350
 Lifted his curved lids, and kept them wide
 Until it ceased ; and still he kept them wide ;
 And still they were the same bright, patient stars.
 Then with a slow incline of his broad breast,
 Like to a diver in the pearly seas,
 Forward he stoop'd over the airy shore,
 And plunged all noiseless into the deep night.

BOOK II

JUST at the self-same beat of Time's wide wings
 Hyperion slid into the rustled air,
 And Saturn gain'd with Thea that sad place
 Where Cybele and the bruised Titans mourn'd.
 It was a den where no insulting light
 Could glimmer on their tears; where their own groans
 They felt, but heard not, for the solid roar
 Of thunderous waterfalls and torrents hoarse,
 Pouring a constant bulk, uncertain where.
 Crag jutting forth to crag, and rocks that seem'd 10
 Ever as if just rising from a sleep,
 Forehead to forehead held their monstrous horns;
 And thus in thousand hugest phantasies
 Made a fit roofing to this nest of woe.
 Instead of thrones, hard flint they sat upon,
 Couches of rugged stone, and slaty ridge
 Stubborn'd with iron. All were not assembled:
 Some chain'd in torture, and some wandering.
 Cœus, and Gyges, and Briareüs,
 Typhon, and Dolor, and Porphyryon, 20
 With many more, the brawniest in assault,
 Were pent in regions of laborious breath;
 Dungeon'd in opaque element to keep Their clenched teeth still clench'd, and all their limbs
 Lock'd up like veins of metal, crampt and screw'd;
 Without a motion, save of their big hearts
 Heaving in pain, and horribly convulsed
 With sanguine, feverous, boiling gurge of pulse.
 Mnemosyne was straying in the world;
 Far from her moon had Phœbe wandered; 30
 And many else were free to roam abroad,
 But for the main, here found they covert drear.
 Scarce images of life, one here, one there,

Lay vast and edgeways ; like a dismal cirque
 Of Druid stones, upon a forlorn moor,
 When the chill rain begins at shut of eve,
 In dull November, and their chancel vault,
 The Heaven itself, is blinded throughout night.
 Each one kept shroud, nor to his neighbour gave
 Or word, or look, or action of despair. 40
 Creüs was one ; his ponderous iron mace
 Lay by him, and a shatter'd rib of rock
 Told of his rage, ere he thus sank and pined.
 Iapetus another ; in his grasp,
 A serpent's plashy neck ; its barbed tongue
 Squeezed from the gorge, and all its uncurl'd length
 Dead ; and because the creature could not spit
 Its poison in the eyes of conquering Jove.
 Next Cottus : prone he lay, chin uppermost,
 As though in pain : for still upon the flint 50
 He ground severe his skull, with open mouth
 And eyes at horrid working. Nearest him
 Asia, born of most enormous Caf,
 Who cost her mother Tellus keener pangs,
 Though feminine, than any of her sons :
 More thought than woe was in her dusky face,
 For she was prophesying of her glory ;
 And in her wide imagination stood
 Palm-shaded temples, and high rival fanes,
 By Oxus or in Ganges' sacred isles. 60
 Even as Hope upon her anchor leans,
 So leant she, not so fair, upon a tusk
 Shed from the broadest of her elephants.
 Above her, on a crag's uneasy shelve,
 Upon his elbow raised, all prostrate else,
 Shadow'd Enceladus ; once tame and mild
 As grazing ox unworried in the meads ;
 Now tiger-passion'd, lion-thoughted, wroth,
 He meditated, plotted, and even now
 Was hurling mountains in that second war, 70
 Not long delay'd, that scared the younger Gods

To hide themselves in forms of beast and bird.
 Not far hence Atlas ; and beside him prone
 Phorcus, the sire of Gorgons. Neighbour'd close
 Oceanus, and Tethys, in whose lap
 Sobb'd Clymene among her tangled hair.
 In midst of all lay Themis, at the feet
 Of Ops the queen all clouded round from sight ;
 No shape distinguishable, more than when Thick night confounds the pine - tops with the clouds :

80

And many else whose names may not be told.
 For when the Muse's wings are air-ward spread,
 Who shall delay her flight ? And she must chant
 Of Saturn, and his guide, who now had climb'd
 With damp and slippery footing from a depth
 More horrid still. Above a sombre cliff
 Their heads appear'd, and up their stature grew
 Till on the level height their steps found ease :
 Then Thea spread abroad her trembling arms
 Upon the precincts of this nest of pain,
 And side-long fix'd her eye on Saturn's face :
 There saw she direst strife ; the supreme God
 At war with all the frailty of grief,
 Of rage, of fear, anxiety, revenge,
 Remorse, spleen, hope, but most of all despair.
 Against these plagues he strove in vain : for Fate
 Had pour'd a mortal oil upon his head,
 A disanointing poison : so that Thea,
 Affrighted, kept her still, and let him pass
 First onwards in, among the fallen tribe.

100

As with us mortal men, the laden heart
 Is persecuted more, and fever'd more,
 When it is sighing to the mournful house
 Where other hearts are sick of the same bruise ;
 So Saturn, as he walk'd into the midst,
 Felt faint, and would have sunk among the rest,
 But that he met Enceladus's eye,

Whose mightiness, and awe of him, at once
 Came like an inspiration; and he shouted, 109
 'Titans, behold your God!' at which some groan'd;
 Some started on their feet; some also shouted;
 Some wept, some wail'd — all bow'd with reverence;

And Ops, uplifting her black folded veil,
 Show'd her pale cheeks, and all her forehead wan,
 Her eyebrows thin and jet, and hollow eyes.
 There is a roaring in the bleak-grown pines
 When Winter lifts his voice; there is a noise
 Among immortals when a God gives sign,
 With hushing finger, how he means to load
 His tongue with the full weight of utterless thought,
 With thunder, and with music, and with pomp: 121
 Such noise is like the roar of bleak-grown pines;
 Which, when it ceases in this mountain'd world,
 No other sound succeeds; but ceasing here,
 Among these fallen, Saturn's voice therefrom
 Grew up like organ, that begins anew
 Its strain, when other harmonies, stopt short,
 Leave the dinn'd air vibrating silverly.
 Thus grew it up: — 'Not in my own sad breast,
 Which is its own great judge and searcher out, 130
 Can I find reason why ye should be thus:
 Not in the legends of the first of days,
 Studied from that old spirit-leaved book
 Which starry Uranus with finger bright
 Saved from the shores of darkness, when the waves
 Low-ebb'd still hid it up in shallow gloom; —
 And the which book ye know I ever kept
 For my firm-based footstool: — Ah, infirm!
 Not there, nor in sign, symbol, or portent
 Of element, earth, water, air, and fire, — 140
 At war, at peace, or inter-quarrelling
 One against one, or two, or three, or all
 Each several one against the other three,
 As fire with air loud warring when rain-floods

Drown both, and press them both against earth's
face,

Where, finding sulphur, a quadruple wrath
Unhinges the poor world ; — not in that strife,
Wherefrom I take strange lore, and read it deep,
Can I find reason why ye should be thus :
No, nowhere can unriddle, though I search, 150
And pore on nature's universal scroll
Even to swooning, why ye, Divinities,
The first-born of all shaped and palpable Gods,
Should cower beneath what, in comparison,
Is untremendous might. Yet ye are here,
O'erwhelm'd, and spurn'd, and batter'd, ye are here !
O Titans, shall I say " Arise ! " — Ye groan :
Shall I say " Crouch ! " — Ye groan. What can I
then ?

O Heaven wide ! O unseen parent dear !
What can I ? Tell me, all ye brethren Gods, 160
How we can war, how engine our great wrath !
O speak your counsel now, for Saturn's ear
Is all a-hunger'd. Thou, Oceanus,
Ponderest high and deep ; and in thy face
I see, astonied, that severe content
Which comes of thought and musing: give us help !'

So ended Saturn ; and the God of the Sea,
Sophist and Sage, from no Athenian grove,
But cogitation in his watery shades,
Arose, with locks not oozy, and began, 170
In murmurs, which his first-endeavouring tongue
Caught infant-like from the far-foamed sands.
' O ye, whom wrath consumes ! who, passion-stung,
Writhe at defeat, and nurse your agonies !
Shut up your senses, stifle up your ears,
My voice is not a bellows unto ire.
Yet listen, ye who will, whilst I bring proof
How ye, perforce, must be content to stoop ;

And in the proof much comfort will I give,
If ye will take that comfort in its truth. 180
We fall by course of Nature's law, not force
Of thunder, or of Jove. Great Saturn, thou
Has sifted well the atom-universe ;
But for this reason, that thou art the King,
And only blind from sheer supremacy,
One avenue was shaded from thine eyes,
Through which I wander'd to eternal truth.
And first, as thou wast not the first of powers,
So art thou not the last ; it cannot be ;
Thou art not the beginning nor the end. 190
From chaos and parental darkness came
Light, the first fruits of that intestine broil,
That sullen ferment, which for wondrous ends
Was ripening in itself. The ripe hour came,
And with it light, and light engendering
Upon its own producer, forthwith touch'd
The whole enormous matter into life.
Upon that very hour, our parentage,
The Heavens and the Earth, were manifest :
Then thou first-born, and we the giant-race, 200
Found ourselves ruling new and beauteous realms.
Now comes the pain of truth, to whom 't is pain ;
O folly ! for to bear all naked truths,
And to envisage circumstance, all calm,
That is the top of sovereignty. Mark well !
As Heaven and Earth are fairer, fairer far
Than Chaos and blank Darkness, though once chiefs ;
And as we show beyond that Heaven and Earth
In form and shape compact and beautiful,
In will, in action free, companionship, 210
And thousand other signs of purer life ;
So on our heels a fresh perfection treads,
A power more strong in beauty, born of us
And fated to excel us, as we pass
In glory that old Darkness : nor are we Thereby more conquer'd, than by us the rule

Of shapeless Chaos. Say, doth the dull soil
 Quarrel with the proud forests it hath fed,
 And feedeth still, more comely than itself ?
 Can it deny the chiefdom of green groves ? 220
 Or shall the tree be envious of the dove
 Because it cooeth, and hath snowy wings
 To wander wherewithal and find its joys ?
 We are such forest-trees, and our fair boughs
 Have bred forth, not pale solitary doves,
 But eagles golden-feather'd, who do tower
 Above us in their beauty, and must reign
 In right thereof ; for 't is the eternal law
 That first in beauty should be first in might :
 Yea, by that law, another race may drive 230
 Our conquerors to mourn as we do now.
 Have ye beheld the young God of the Seas,
 My dispossessor ? Have ye seen his face ?
 Have ye beheld his chariot, foam'd along
 By noble winged creatures he hath made ?
 I saw him on the calmed waters scud,
 With such a glow of beauty in his eyes,
 That it enforced me to bid sad farewell
 To all my empire ; farewell sad I took,
 And hither came, to see how dolorous fate 240
 Had wrought upon ye ; and how I might best
 Give consolation in this woe extreme.
 Receive the truth and let it be your balm.'

Whether through poz'd conviction, or disdain
 They guarded silence, when Oceanus
 Left murmuring, what deepest thought can tell ?
 But so it was, none answer'd for a space,
 Save one whom none regarded, Clymene :
 And yet she answer'd not, only complain'd,
 With hectic lips, and eyes up-looking mild, 250
 Thus wording timidly among the fierce :
 'O Father, I am here the simplest voice,
 And all my knowledge is that joy is gone,

And this thing woe crept in among our hearts,
There to remain forever, as I fear :
I would not bode of evil, if I thought
So weak a creature could turn off the help
Which by just right should come of mighty Gods ;
Yet let me tell my sorrow, let me tell
Of what I heard, and how it made me weep, 260
And know that we had parted from all hope.
I stood upon a shore, a pleasant shore,
Where a sweet clime was breathed from a land
Of fragrance, quietness, and trees, and flowers.
Full of calm joy it was, as I of grief ;
Too full of joy and soft delicious warmth ;
So that I felt a movement in my heart
To chide, and to reproach that solitude
With songs of misery, music of our woes ;
And sat me down, and took a mouthed shell 270
And murmur'd into it, and made melody —
O melody no more ! for while I sang,
And with poor skill let pass into the breeze
The dull shell's echo, from a bowery strand
Just opposite, an island of the sea,
There came enchantment with the shifting wind,
That did both drown and keep alive my ears.
I threw my shell away upon the sand,
And a wave fill'd it, as my sense was fill'd
With that new blissful golden melody. 280
A living death was in each gush of sounds,
Each family of rapturous hurried notes,
That fell, one after one, yet all at once,
Like pearl beads dropping sudden from their string :
And then another, then another strain,
Each like a dove leaving its olive perch,
With music wing'd instead of silent plumes,
To hover round my head, and make me sick
Of joy and grief at once. Grief overcame,
And I was stopping up my frantic ears, 290
When, past all hindrance of my trembling hands,

A voice came sweeter, sweeter than all tune,
 And still it cried, "Apollo! young Apollo!
 The morning-bright Apollo! young Apollo!"
 I fled, it follow'd me, and cried, "Apollo!"
 O Father, and O Brethren, had ye felt
 Those pains of mine; O Saturn, hadst thou felt,
 Ye would not call this too indulged tongue
 Presumptuous, in thus venturing to be heard.'

So far her voice flow'd on, like timorous brook 300
 That, lingering along a pebbled coast,
 Doth fear to meet the sea: but sea it met,
 And shudder'd; for the overwhelming voice
 Of huge Enceladus swallow'd it in wrath:
 The ponderous syllables, like sullen waves
 In the half-glutted hollows of reef-rocks,
 Came booming thus, while still upon his arm
 He lean'd; not rising, from supreme contempt.
 'Or shall we listen to the over-wise,
 Or to the over-foolish giant, Gods? 310
 Not thunderbolt on thunderbolt, till all
 That rebel Jove's whole armoury were spent,
 Not world on world upon these shoulders piled,
 Could agonize me more than baby-words
 In midst of this dethronement horrible.
 Speak! roar! shout! yell! ye sleepy Titans all.
 Do ye forget the blows, the buffets vile?
 Are ye not smitten by a youngling arm?
 Dost thou forget, sham Monarch of the Waves,
 Thy scalding in the seas? What! have I roused 320
 Your spleens with so few simple words as these?
 O joy! for now I see ye are not lost:
 O joy! for now I see a thousand eyes
 Wide-glaring for revenge.'—As this he said,
 He lifted up his stature vast, and stood,
 Still without intermission speaking thus:
 'Now ye are flames, I'll tell you how to burn,
 And purge the ether of our enemies;

How to feed fierce the crooked stings of fire,
 And singe away the swollen clouds of Jove, 330
 Stifling that puny essence in its tent.
 O let him feel the evil he hath done ;
 For though I scorn Oceanus's lore,
 Much pain have I for more than loss of realms :
 The days of peace and slumberous calm are fled ;
 Those days, all innocent of scathing war,
 When all the fair Existences of heaven
 Came open-eyed to guess what we would speak : —
 That was before our brows were taught to frown,
 Before our lips knew else but solemn sounds ; 340
 That was before we knew the winged thing,
 Victory, might be lost, or might be won,
 And be ye mindful that Hyperion,
 Our brightest brother, still is undisgraced —
 Hyperion, lo ! his radiance is here ! '

All eyes were on Enceladus's face,
 And they beheld, while still Hyperion's name
 Flew from his lips up to the vaulted rocks,
 A pallid gleam across his features stern :
 Not savage, for he saw full many a God 350
 Wroth as himself. He look'd upon them all,
 And in each face he saw a gleam of light,
 But splendor in Saturn's, whose hoar locks
 Shone like the bubbling foam about a keel
 When the prow sweeps into a midnight cove.
 In pale and silver silence they remain'd,
 Till suddenly a splendour, like the morn,
 Pervaded all the beetling gloomy steeps,
 All the sad spaces of oblivion,
 And every gulf, and every chasm old, 360
 And every height, and every sullen depth,
 Voiceless, or hoarse with loud tormented streams :
 And all the everlasting cataracts,
 And all the headlong torrents far and near,
 Mantled before in darkness and huge shade,

Now saw the light and made it terrible.
 It was Hyperion :— a granite peak
 His bright feet touch'd, and there he stay'd to view
 The misery his brilliance had betray'd
 To the most hateful seeing of itself. 370
 Golden his hair of short Numidian curl,
 Regal his shape majestic, a vast shade
 In midst of his own brightness, like the bulk
 Of Memnon's image at the set of sun
 To one who travels from the dusking East :
 Sighs, too, as mournful as that Memnon's harp,
 He utter'd, while his hands contemplative
 He press'd together, and in silence stood.
 Despondence seized again the fallen Gods
 At sight of the dejected King of Day, 380
 And many hid their faces from the light :
 But fierce Enceladus sent forth his eyes
 Among the brotherhood ; and, at their glare,
 Uprose Iäpetus, and Creüs too,
 And Phorcus, sea-born, and together strode
 To where he tower'd on his eminence.
 There those four shouted forth old Saturn's name ;
 Hyperion from the peak loud answered ' Saturn !'
 Saturn sat near the Mother of the Gods,
 In whose face was no joy, though all the Gods 390
 Gave from their hollow throats the name of ' Saturn !'

BOOK III

Thus in alternate uproar and sad peace,
 Amazed were those Titans utterly.
 O leave them, Muse ! O leave them to their woes ;
 For thou art weak to sing such tumults dire :
 A solitary sorrow best befits
 Thy lips, and antheming a lonely grief.
 Leave them, O Muse ! for thou anon wilt find
 Many a fallen old Divinity
 Wandering in vain about bewildered shores.

Meantime touch piously the Delphic harp, 10
And not a wind of heaven but will breathe
In aid soft warble from the Dorian flute ;
For lo ! 't is for the Father of all verse.
Flush everything that hath a vermeil hue,
Let the rose glow intense and warm the air,
And let the clouds of even and of morn
Float in voluptuous fleeces o'er the hills ;
Let the red wine within the goblet boil,
Cold as a bubbling well ; let faint-lipp'd shells, 20
On sands or in great deeps, vermilion turn
Through all their labyrinths ; and let the maid
Blush keenly, as with some warm kiss surprised.
Chief isle of the embowered Cyclades,
Rejoice, O Delos, with thine olives green,
And poplars, and lawn-shading palms, and beech,
In which the Zephyr breathes the loudest song,
And hazels thick, dark-stemm'd beneath the shade :
Apollo is once more the golden theme !
Where was he, when the Giant of the Sun
Stood bright, amid the sorrow of his peers ? 30
Together had he left his mother fair
And his twin-sister sleeping in their bower,
And in the morning twilight wandered forth
Beside the osiers of a rivulet,
Full ankle-deep in lilies of the vale.
The nightingale had ceased, and a few stars
Were lingering in the heavens, while the thrush
Began calm-throated. Throughout all the isle
There was no covert, no retired cave
Unhaunted by the murmurous noise of waves, 40
Though scarcely heard in many a green recess.
He listen'd, and he wept, and his bright tears
Went trickling down the golden bow he held.
Thus with half-shut suffused eyes he stood,
While from beneath some cumbrous boughs hard by
With solemn step an awful Goddess came,
And there was purport in her looks for him,

Which he with eager guess began to read
 Perplex'd, the while melodiously he said :
 ' How cam'st thou over the unfooted sea ? 50
 Or hath that antique mien and robed form
 Moved in these vales invisible till now ?
 Sure I have heard those vestments sweeping o'er
 The fallen leaves, when I have sat alone
 In cool mid-forest. Surely I have traced
 The rustle of those ample skirts about
 These grassy solitudes, and seen the flowers
 Lift up their heads, and still the whisper pass'd.
 Goddess ! I have beheld those eyes before,
 And their eternal calm, and all that face, 60
 Or I have dream'd.' — ' Yes,' said the supreme shape,
 ' Thou hast dream'd of me ; and awaking up
 Didst find a lyre all golden by thy side,
 Whose strings touch'd by thy fingers, all the vast Unwearied ear of the whole universe
 Listen'd in pain and pleasure at the birth
 Of such new tuneful wonder. Is 't not strange
 That thou shouldst weep, so gifted ? Tell me, youth,
 What sorrow thou canst feel ; for I am sad
 When thou dost shed a tear : explain thy griefs 70
 To one who in this lonely isle hath been
 The watcher of thy sleep and hours of life,
 From the young day when first thy infant hand
 Pluck'd witless the weak flowers, till thine arm
 Could bend that bow heroic to all times.
 Show thy heart's secret to an ancient Power
 Who hath forsaken old and sacred thrones
 For prophecies of thee, and for the sake
 Of loveliness new-born.' — Apollo then,
 With sudden scrutiny and gloomless eyes, 80
 Thus answer'd, while his white melodious throat
 Throbb'd with the syllables : — ' Mnemosyne !
 Thy name is on my tongue, I know not how ;
 Why should I tell thee what thou so well seest ?

Why should I strive to show what from thy lips
 Would come no mystery? For me, dark, dark,
 And painful vile oblivion seals my eyes:
 I strive to search wherefore I am so sad,
 Until a melancholy numbs my limbs;
 And then upon the grass I sit, and moan, 90
 Like one who once had wings. — O why should I
 Feel cursed and thwarted, when the liegeless air
 Yields to my step aspirant? why should I
 Spurn the green turf as hateful to my feet?
 Goddess benign, point forth some unknown thing:
 Are there not other regions than this isle?
 What are the stars? There is the sun, the sun!
 And the most patient brilliance of the moon!
 And stars by thousands! Point me out the way
 To any one particular beauteous star, 100
 And I will flit into it with my lyre,
 And make its silvery splendour pant with bliss.
 I have heard the cloudy thunder: Where is power?
 Whose hand, whose essence, what divinity
 Makes this alarum in the elements,
 While I here idle listen on the shores
 In fearless yet in aching ignorance?
 O tell me, lonely Goddess, by thy harp,
 That waileth every morn and eventide,
 Tell me why thus I rave, about these groves! 110
 Mute thou remainest — Mute! yet I can read
 A wondrous lesson in thy silent face:
 Knowledge enormous makes a God of me.
 Names, deeds, gray legends, dire events, rebellions,
 Majesties, sovran voices, agonies,
 Creations and destroyings, all at once
 Pour into the wide hollows of my brain,
 And deify me, as if some blithe wine
 Or bright elixir peerless I had drunk,
 And so become immortal.' — Thus the God, 120
 While his enkindled eyes, with level glance
 Beneath his white soft temples, steadfast kept

Trembling with light upon Mnemosyne.
 Soon wild commotions shook him, and made flush
 All the immortal fairness of his limbs :
 Most like the struggle at the gate of death ;
 Or liker still to one who should take leave
 Of pale immortal death, and with a pang
 As hot as death's is chill, with fierce convulse
 Die into life : so young Apollo anguish'd : 130
 His very hair, his golden tresses famed
 Kept undulation round his eager neck.
 During the pain Mnemosyne upheld
 Her arms as one who prophesied. — At length
 Apollo shriek'd ; — and lo ! from all his limbs Celestial . . . . .
 . . . . .

TO AUTUMN

I

SEASON of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun ;
Conspiring with him how to load and bless
With fruit the vines that round the thatch-eaves run ;
To bend with apples the moss'd cottage-trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core ;
To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells
With a sweet kernel ; to set budding more,
And still more, later flowers for the bees,
Until they think warm days will never cease,
For Summer has o'er-brimm'd their clammy cells.

II

Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store ?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find
Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,
Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind ;
Or on a half-reap'd furrow sound asleep,
Drowsed with the fume of poppies, while thy hook
Spares the next swath and all its twined flowers :
And sometimes like a gleaner thou dost keep
Steady thy laden head across a brook ;
Or by a cider-press, with patient look,
Thou watchest the last oozings, hours by hours.

III

Where are the songs of Spring ? Ay, where are they ?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too, —
While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day,
And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue ;
Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn

Among the river-sallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies;
And full-grown lambs loud bleat from hilly bourn;
Hedge-cricket sing; and now with treble soft
The redbreast whistles from a garden-croft,
And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.

VERSES TO FANNY BRAWNE

SONNET

THE day is gone, and all its sweets are gone!
 Sweet voice, sweet lips, soft hand, and softer
 breast,
 Warm breath, light whisper, tender semi-tone,
 Bright eyes, accomplish'd shape, and lang'rous waist!
 Faded the flower and all its budded charms,
 Faded the sight of beauty from my eyes,
 Faded the shape of beauty from my arms,
 Faded the voice, warmth, whiteness, paradise!
 Vanish'd unseasonably at shut of eve,
 When the dusk holiday — or holineight —
 Of fragrant-curtain'd love begins to weave
 The woof of darkness thick, for hid delight:
 But, as I've read love's missal through to-day,
 He'll let me sleep, seeing I fast and pray.

LINES TO FANNY

WHAT can I do to drive away
 Remembrance from my eyes? for they have seen,
 Aye, an hour ago, my brilliant Queen!
 Touch has a memory. O say, love, say,
 What can I do to kill it and be free
 In my old liberty?
 When every fair one that I saw was fair,
 Enough to catch me in but half a snare,
 Not keep me there:
 When, howe'er poor or particolour'd things,
 My muse had wings,
 And ever ready was to take her course
 Whither I bent her force,

Unintellectual, yet divine to me; —
 Divine, I say ! — What sea-bird o'er the sea
 Is a philosopher the while he goes
 Winging along where the great water throes ?

How shall I do
 To get anew
 Those moulted feathers, and so mount once more
 Above, above
 The reach of fluttering Love,
 And make him cower lowly while I soar ?
 Shall I gulp wine ? No, that is vulgarism,
 A heresy and schism,
 Foisted into the canon law of love ; —
 No, — wine is only sweet to happy men ;
 More dismal cares
 Seize on me unawares, —
 Where shall I learn to get my piece again ?-
 To banish thoughts of that most hateful land,
 Dungeoner of my friends, that wicked strand
 Where they were wreck'd and live a wrecked life ;
 That monstrous region, whose dull rivers pour,
 Ever from their sordid urns unto the shore,
 Unown'd of any weedy-haired gods ;
 Whose winds, all zephyrless, hold scourging rods,
 Iced in the great lakes, to afflict mankind ;
 Whose rank-grown forests, frosted, black, and blind,
 Would fright a Dryad ; whose harsh herbage meads
 Make lean and lank the starved ox while he feeds ;
 There bad flowers have no scent, birds no sweet
 song,
 And great unerring Nature once seems wrong.

O, for some sunny spell
 To dissipate the shadows of this hell !
 Say they are gone, — with the new dawning light
 Steps forth my lady bright !

O, let me once more rest
 My soul upon that dazzling breast !
 Let once again these aching arms be placed,
 The tender gaolers of thy waist !
 And let me feel that warm breath here and there
 To spread a rapture in my very hair, —
 O, the sweetness of the pain !
 Give me those lips again !
 Enough ! Enough ! it is enough for me
 To dream of thee !

TO FANNY

I CRY your mercy — pity — love — aye, love !
 Merciful love that tantalizes not,
 One-thoughted, never-wandering, guileless love,
 Unmask'd, and being seen — without a blot !
 O ! let me have thee whole, — all — all — be mine !
 That shape, that fairness, that sweet minor zest
 Of love, your kiss, — those hands, those eyes divine,
 That warm, white, lucent, million - pleased
 breast, —
 Yourself — your soul — in pity give me all,
 Withhold no atom's atom, or I die,
 Or living on perhaps, your wretched thrall,
 Forget, in the mist of idle misery,
 Life's purposes — the palate of my mind
 Losing its gust, and my ambition blind !

THE CAP AND BELLS

OR, THE JEALOUSIES

A Faery Tale. Unfinished

I

IN midmost Ind, beside Hydaspes cool,
 There stood, or hover'd, tremulous in the air,
 A faery city, 'neath the potent rule
 Of Emperor Elfinan; fam'd ev'rywhere
 For love of mortal women, maidens fair,
 Whose lips were solid, whose soft hands were made
 Of a fit mould and beauty, ripe and rare,
 To pamper his slight wooing, warm yet staid:
 He loved girls smooth as shades, but hated a mere shade.

II

This was a crime forbidden by the law;
 And all the priesthood of his city wept,
 For ruin and dismay they well foresaw,
 If impious prince no bound or limit kept,
 And faery Zendervester overstept;
 They wept, he sinn'd, and still he would sin on,
 They dreamt of sin, and he sinn'd while they slept;
 In vain the pulpit thunder'd at the throne,
 Caricature was vain, and vain the tart lampoon.

III

Which seeing, his high court of parliament
 Laid a remonstrance at his Highness' feet,
 Praying his royal senses to content
 Themselves with what in faery land was sweet,
 Befitting best that shade with shade should meet:
 Whereat, to calm their fears, he promised soon

From mortal tempters all to make retreat —
 Ay, even on the first of the new moon,
 An immaterial wife to espouse as heaven's boon.

IV

Meantime he sent a fluttering embassy
 To Pigmio, of Imaus sovereign,
 To half beg, and half demand, respectfully,
 The hand of his fair daughter Bellanaine ;
 An audience had, and speeching done, they gain
 Their point, and bring the weeping bride away ;
 Whom, with but one attendant, safely lain
 Upon their wings, they bore in bright array,
 While little harps were touch'd by many a lyric fay.

V

As in old pictures tender cherubim
 A child's soul thro' the sapphired canvas bear,
 So, thro' a real heaven, on they swim
 With the sweet princess on her plumaged lair,
 Speed giving to the winds her lustrous hair ;
 And so she journey'd, sleeping or awake,
 Save when, for healthful exercise and air,
 She chose to ' promener à l'aile,' or take
 A pigeon's somerset, for sport or change's sake.

VI

' Dear Princess, do not whisper me so loud,'
 Quoth Corallina, nurse and confidant,
 ' Do not you see there, lurking in a cloud,
 Close at your back, that sly old Crafticant ?
 He hears a whisper plainer than a rant :
 Dry up your tears, and do not look so blue ;
 He's Elfinan's great state-spy militant,
 He's running, lying, flying footman, too —
 Dear mistress, let him have no handle against you !

VII

‘ Show him a mouse’s tail, and he will guess,
 With metaphysic swiftness, at the mouse ;
 Show him a garden, and with speed no less,
 He’ll surmise sagely of a dwelling-house,
 And plot, in the same minute, how to chouse
 The owner out of it ; show him a — ’ ‘ Peace !
 Peace ! nor contrive thy mistress’ ire to rouse ! ’
 Return’d the princess, ‘ my tongue shall not cease
 Till from this hated match I get a free release.

VIII

‘ Ah, beauteous mortal ! ’ ‘ Hush ! ’ quoth Coralline,
 ‘ Really you must not talk of him indeed.’
 ‘ You hush ! ’ replied the mistress, with a shine
 Of anger in her eyes, enough to breed
 In stouter hearts than nurse’s fear and dread :
 ’T was not the glance itself made nursey flinch,
 But of its threat she took the utmost heed ;
 Not liking in her heart an hour-long pinch,
 Or a sharp needle run into her back an inch.

IX

So she was silenced, and fair Bellanaine,
 Writhing her little body with ennui,
 Continued to lament and to complain,
 That Fate, cross-purposing, should let her be
 Ravish’d away, far from her dear countree ;
 That all her feelings should be set at nought,
 In trumping up this match so hastily,
 With lowland blood ; and lowland blood she thought
 Poison, as every stanch true-born Imaian ought.

X

Sorely she grieved, and wetted three or four
 White Provence rose-leaves with her faery tears,

But not for this cause ; — alas ! she had more
 Bad reasons for her sorrow, as appears
 In the famed memoirs of a thousand years,
 Written by Crafticant, and published
 By Parpaglion and Co., (those sly compeers
 Who raked up ev'ry fact against the dead,)
 In Scarab Street, Panthea, at the Jubal's Head.

XI

Where, after a long hypercritic howl
 Against the vicious manners of the age,
 He goes on to expose, with heart and soul,
 What vice in this or that year was the rage,
 Backbiting all the world in every page ;
 With special strictures on the horrid crime,
 (Section'd and subsection'd with learning sage,)
 Of faeries stooping on their wings sublime
 To kiss a mortal's lips, when such were in their prime.

XII

Turn to the copious index, you will find
 Somewhere in the column, headed letter B,
 The name of Bellanaine, if you're not blind ;
 Then pray refer to the text, and you will see
 An article made up of calumny
 Against this highland princess, rating her
 For giving way, so over fashionably,
 To this new-fangled vice, which seems a burr
 Stuck in his moral throat, no coughing e'er could stir.

XIII

There he says plainly that she loved a man !
 That she around him flutter'd, flirted, toy'd,
 Before her marriage with great Elfinan ;
 That after marriage too, she never joy'd
 In husband's company, but still employ'd
 Her wits to 'scape away to Angle-land ;

Where lived the youth, who worried and annoy'd
 Her tender heart, and its warm ardours fann'd
 To such a dreadful blaze, her side would scorch her hand.

XIV

But let us leave this idle tittle-tattle
 To waiting-maids, and bed-room coteries,
 Nor till fit time against her fame wage battle.
 Poor Elfinan is very ill at ease,
 Let us resume his subject if you please :
 For it may comfort and console him much,
 To rhyme and syllable his miseries ;
 Poor Elfinan ! whose cruel fate was such,
 He sat and cursed a bride he knew he could not touch.

XV

Soon as (according to his promises)
 The bridal embassy had taken wing,
 And vanish'd, bird-like, o'er the suburb trees,
 The emperor, empierced with the sharp sting
 Of love, retired, vex'd and murmuring
 Like any drone shut from the fair bee-queen,
 Into his cabinet, and there did fling
 His limbs upon the sofa, full of spleen,
 And damn'd his House of Commons, in complete chagrin.

XVI

'I'll trounce some of the members,' cried the Prince,
 'I'll put a mark against some rebel names,
 I'll make the Opposition-benches wince,
 I'll show them very soon, to all their shames,
 What 't is to smother up a Prince's flames ;
 That ministers should join in it, I own,
 Surprises me ! — they too at these high games !
 Am I an Emperor ? Do I wear a crown ?
 Imperial Elfinan, go hang thyself or drown !

XVII

‘I’ll trounce ’em! — there’s the square-cut chancellor,
 His son shall never touch that bishopric;
 And for the nephew of old Palfior,
 I’ll show him that his speeches made me sick,
 And give the colonelcy to Phalaric;
 The tiptoe marquis, moral and gallant,
 Shall lodge in shabby taverns upon tick;
 And for the Speaker’s second cousin’s aunt,
 She sha’n’t be maid of honour, — by heaven that she sha’n’t!

XVIII

‘I’ll shirk the Duke of A.; I’ll cut his brother;
 I’ll give no garter to his eldest son;
 I won’t speak to his sister or his mother!
 The Viscount B. shall live at cut-and-run;
 But how in the world can I contrive to stun
 That fellow’s voice, which plagues me worse than any,
 That stubborn fool, that impudent state-dun,
 Who sets down ev’ry sovereign as a zany, —
 That vulgar commoner, Esquire Biancopyany?’

XIX

‘Monstrous affair! Pshaw! pah! what ugly
 minx
 Will they fetch from Imaus for my bride?
 Alas! my wearied heart within me sinks,
 To think that I must be so near allied
 To a cold dullard fay, — ah, woe betide!
 Ah, fairest of all human loveliness!
 Sweet Bertha! what crime can it be to glide
 About the fragrant plaitings of thy dress,
 Or kiss thine eye, or count thy locks, tress after tress?’

XX

So said, one minute's while his eyes remain'd
 Half lidded, piteous, languid, innocent ;
 But, in a wink, their splendour they regain'd,
 Sparkling revenge with amorous fury blent.
 Love thwarted in bad temper oft has vent :
 He rose, he stamp'd his foot, he rang the bell,
 And order'd some death-warrants to be sent
 For signature : — somewhere the tempest fell,
 As many a poor fellow does not live to tell.

XXI

'At the same time, Eban,' — (this was his page,
 A fay of colour, slave from top to toe,
 Sent as a present, while yet under age,
 From the Viceroy of Zanguebar, — wise, slow,
 His speech, his only words were 'yes' and 'no,'
 But swift of look, and foot, and wing was he,) —
 'At the same time, Eban, this instant go
 To Hum the soothsayer, whose name I see
 Among the fresh arrivals in our empery.

XXII

'Bring Hum to me! But stay — here take my ring,
 The pledge of favour, that he not suspect
 Any foul play, or awkward murdering
 Tho' I have bowstrung many of his sect ;
 Throw in a hint, that if he should neglect
 One hour the next shall see him in my grasp,
 And the next after that shall see him neck'd,
 Or swallow'd by my hunger-starv'd asp, —
 And mention ('t is as well) the torture of the wasp.'

XXIII

These orders given, the Prince, in half a pet,
 Let o'er the silk his propping elbow slide,

Caught up his little legs, and, in a fret,
Fell on the sofa on his royal side,
The slave retreated backwards, humble-eyed,
And with a slave-like silence closed the door,
And to old Hum thro' street and alley hied ;
He 'knew the city,' as we say, of yore,
And for short cuts and turns, was nobody knew more.

XXIV

It was the time when wholesale dealers close
Their shutters with a moody sense of wealth,
But retail dealers, diligent, let loose
The gas (objected to on score of health),
Convey'd in little solder'd pipes by stealth,
And make it flare in many a brilliant form,
That all the powers of darkness it repell'th,
Which to the oil-trade doth great scaith and harm,
And supersedeth quite the use of the glow-worm.

XXV

Eban, untempted by the pastry-cooks,
(Of pastry he got store within the palace,)
With hasty steps, wrapp'd cloak, and solemn looks,
Incognito upon his errand sallies,
His smelling-bottle ready for the allies ;
He pass'd the hurdy-gurdies with disdain,
Vowing he'd have them sent on board the gal-
leys ;
Just as he made his vow, it 'gan to rain,
Therefore he call'd a coach, and bade it drive amain.

XXVI

'I'll pull the string,' said he, and further said,
'Polluted Jarvey ! Ah, thou filthy hack !
Whose springs of life are all dried up and dead,
Whose linsey-woolsey lining hangs all slack,
Whose rug is straw, whose wholeness is a crack ;

And evermore thy steps go clatter-clitter ;
 Whose glass once up can never be got back,
 Who prov'st, with jolting arguments and bitter,
 That 't is of modern use to travel in a litter.

XXVII

'Thou inconvenience ! thou hungry crop
 For all corn ! thou snail-creeper to and fro,
 Who while thou goest ever seem'st to stop,
 And fiddle-faddle standest while you go ;
 I' the morning, freighted with a weight of woe,
 Unto some lazar-house thou journeyest,
 And in the evening tak'st a double row
 Of dowdies for some dance or party drest,
 Besides the goods meanwhile thou movest east and west.

XXVIII

'By thy ungallant bearing and sad mien,
 An inch appears the utmost thou couldst budge :
 Yet at the slightest nod, or hint, or sign,
 Round to the curb-stone patient dost thou trudge,
 School'd in a beckon, learned in a nudge,
 A dull-eyed Argus watching for a fare ;
 Quiet and plodding thou dost bear no grudge
 To whisking tilburies, or phaetons rare,
 Curricles, or mail-coaches, swift beyond compare.'

XXIX

Philosophizing thus, he pull'd the check,
 And bade the coachman wheel to such a street,
 Who turning much his body, more his neck,
 Louted full low, and hoarsely did him greet :
 'Certes, Monsieur were best take to his feet,
 Seeing his servant can no farther drive
 For press of coaches, that to-night here meet,
 Many as bees about a straw-capp'd hive,
 When first for April honey into faint flowers they dive.'

XXX

Eban then paid his fare, and tiptoe went
To Hum's hotel ; and, as he on did pass
With head inclined, each dusky lineament
Show'd in the pearl-paved street as in a glass ;
His purple vest, that ever peeping was
Rich from the fluttering crimson of his cloak,
His silvery trowsers, and his silken sash
Tied in a burnish'd knot, their semblance took Upon the mirror'd walls, wherever he might look.

XXXI

He smiled at self, and, smiling, show'd his teeth,
And seeing his white teeth, he smiled the more ;
Lifted his eyebrows, spurn'd the path beneath,
Show'd teeth again, and smiled as heretofore,
Until he knock'd at the magician's door ;
Where, till the porter answer'd, might be seen,
In the clear panel more he could adore, —
His turban wreathed of gold, and white, and
green,
Mustachios, ear-ring, nose-ring, and his sabre keen.

XXXII

' Does not your master give a rout to-night ?'
Quoth the dark page ; ' Oh, no !' return'd the Swiss,
' Next door but one to us, upon the right,
The Magazin des Modes now open is Against the Emperor's wedding ; — and, sir, this
My master finds a monstrous horrid bore ;
As he retired, an hour ago iwis,
With his best beard and brimstone, to explore
And cast a quiet figure in his second floor.

XXXIII

' Gad ! he's obliged to stick to business !
For chalk, I hear, stands at a pretty price ;

And as for aqua vitæ — there's a mess !
 The dentes sapientiæ of mice
 Our barber tells me too are on the rise, —
 Tinder's a lighter article, — nitre pure
 Goes off like lightning, — grains of Paradise
 At an enormous figure ! — stars not sure ! —
 Zodiac will not move without a slight douceur !

XXXIV

'Venus won't stir a peg without a fee,
 And master is too partial entre nous
 To — ' 'Hush — hush !' cried Eban, 'sure that is he
 Coming downstairs, — by St. Bartholomew !
 As backwards as he can, — is't something new ?
 Or is 't his custom, in the name of fun ?'
 'He always comes down backward, with one shoe' —
 Return'd the porter — 'off, and one shoe on,
 Like, saving shoe for sock or stocking, my mad
     John !'

XXXV

It was indeed the great Magician,
 Feeling, with careful toe, for every stair,
 And retrograding careful as he can,
 Backwards and downwards from his own two pair:
 'Salpietro !' exclaimed Hum, 'is the dog there ?
 He's always in my way upon the mat !'
 'He's in the kitchen, or the Lord knows
     where,' —
 Replied the Swiss, — 'the nasty, yelping brat !'
 'Don't beat him !' return'd Hum, and on the floor came pat.

XXXVI

Then facing right about, he saw the Page,
 And said ; 'Don't tell me what you want, Eban ;

The Emperor is now in a huge rage, —
 'Tis nine to one he'll give you the rattan !
 Let us away !' Away together ran
 The plain-dress'd sage and spangled blackamoor,
 Nor rested till they stood to cool, and fan,
 And breathe themselves at th' Emperor's chamber door,
 When Eban thought he heard a soft imperial snore.

XXXVII

'I thought you guess'd, foretold, or prophesied,
 That's Majesty was in a raving fit ?'
 'He dreams,' said Hum, 'or I have ever lied,
 That he is tearing you, sir, bit by bit.'
 'He's not asleep, and you have little wit,'
 Replied the Page, 'that little buzzing noise,
 Whate'er your palmistry may make of it,
 Comes from a plaything of the Emperor's choice,
 From a Man-Tiger-Organ, prettiest of his toys.'

XXXVIII

Eban then usher'd in the learned Seer :
 Elfinan's back was turn'd, but, ne'ertheless,
 Both, prostrate on the carpet, ear by ear,
 Crept silently, and waited in distress,
 Knowing the Emperor's moody bitterness ;
 Eban especially, who on the floor 'gan
 Tremble and quake to death, — he feared less
 A dose of senna-tea, or nightmare Gorgon,
 Than the Emperor when he play'd on his Man-Tiger-Organ.

XXXIX

They kiss'd nine times the carpet's velvet face
 Of glossy silk, soft, smooth, and meadow-green,
 Where the close eye in deep rich fur might trace
 A silver tissue, scanty to be seen,
 As daisies lurk'd in June-grass, buds in green ;

Sudden the music ceased, sudden the hand
 Of majesty, by dint of passion keen,
 Doubled into a common fist, went grand,
 And knock'd down three cut glasses, and his best ink-stand.

XL

Then turning round, he saw those trembling two :
 'Eban,' said he, 'as slaves should taste the fruits
 Of diligence, I shall remember you
 To-morrow, or next day, as time suits,
 In a finger conversation with my mutes, —
 Begone! — for you, Chaldean ! here remain !
 Fear not, quake not, and as good wine recruits
 A conjurer's spirits, what cup will you drain ?
 Sherry in silver, hock in gold, or glass'd champagne ?'

XLI

'Commander of the Faithful !' answer'd Hum,
 In preference to these, I'll merely taste
 A thimble-full of old Jamaica rum.'
 'A simple boon !' said Elfinan, 'thou may'st
 Have Nantz, with which my morning-coffee's laced.'<sup>1</sup>
 'I'll have a glass of Nantz, then, — said the Seer, —
 'Made racy — (sure my boldness is misplaced!) —
 With the third part — (yet that is drinking dear!) —
 Of the least drop of crème de citron crystal clear.'

XLII

'I pledge you, Hum ! and pledge my dearest love,
 My Bertha !' 'Bertha ! Bertha !' cried the sage,

<sup>1</sup> 'Mr. Nisby is of opinion that laced coffee is bad for the head.'
 — Spectator.

‘I know a many Berthas !’ ‘Mine’s above
 All Berthas !’ sighed the Emperor. ‘I engage,’
 Said Hum, ‘in duty, and in vassalage,
 To mention all the Berthas in the earth ;—
 There’s Bertha Watson, — and Miss Bertha Page, —
 This famed for languid eyes, and that for mirth, —
 There’s Bertha Blount of York, — and Bertha Knox of Perth.’

XLIII

‘You seem to know’ — ‘I do know,’ answer’d
 Hum,
 ‘Your Majesty’s in love with some fine girl
 Named Bertha ; but her surname will not come,
 Without a little conjuring.’ ‘’T is Pearl,
 ’T is Bertha Pearl ! What makes my brain so whirl ?
 And she is softer, fairer than her name !’
 ‘Where does she live ?’ ask’d Hum. ‘Her fair locks curl
 So brightly, they put all our fays to shame ! —
 Live ? — O ! at Canterbury, with her old grand dame.’

XLIV

‘Good ! good !’ cried Hum, ‘I’ve known her from a child !
 She is a changeling of my management ;
 She was born at midnight in an Indian wild ;
 Her mother’s screams with the striped tiger’s
 blent,
 While the torch-bearing slaves a halloo sent
 Into the jungles ; and her palanquin,
 Rested amid the desert’s dreariment,
 Shook with her agony, till fair were seen
 The little Bertha’s eyes ope on the stars serene.’

XLV

‘I can’t say,’ said the monarch, ‘that may be
 Just as it happen’d, true or else a bam !
 Drink up your brandy, and sit down by me,
 Feel, feel my pulse, how much in love I am ;
 And if your science is not all a sham,
 Tell me some means to get the lady here.’
 ‘Upon my honour !’ said the son of Cham,<sup>1</sup>
 ‘She is my dainty changeling, near and dear,
 Although her story sounds at first a little queer.’

XLVI

‘Convey her to me, Hum, or by my crown,
 My sceptre, and my cross-surmounted globe,
 I’ll knock you —’ ‘Does your majesty mean —
down ?
 No, no, you never could my feelings probe
 To such a depth !’ The Emperor took his robe,
 And wept upon its purple palatine,
 While Hum continued, shamming half a sob, —
 ‘In Canterbury doth your lady shine ?
 But let me cool your brandy with a little wine.’

XLVII

Whereat a narrow Flemish glass he took,
 That since belong’d to Admiral De Witt,
 Admired it with a connoisseuring look,
 And with the ripest claret crowned it,
 And, ere the lively head could burst and flit,
 He turn’d it quickly, nimbly upside down,
 His mouth being held conveniently fit
 To catch the treasure : ‘Best in all the town !’
 He said, smack’d his moist lips, and gave a pleasant frown.

<sup>1</sup> Cham is said to have been the inventor of magic. Lucy learnt this from Bayle’s Dictionary, and had copied a long Latin note from that work.

XLVIII

‘Ah! good my Prince, weep not!’ And then again
 He fill’d a bumper. ‘Great Sire, do not weep!
 Your pulse is shocking, but I’ll ease your pain.’
 ‘Fetch me that Ottoman, and prithee keep
 Your voice low,’ said the Emperor, ‘and steep
 Some lady’s-fingers nice in Candy wine;
 And prithee, Hum, behind the screen do peep
 For the rose-water vase, magician mine!
 And sponge my forehead — so my love doth make me pine.’

XLIX

‘Ah, cursed Bellanaine!’ ‘Don’t think of her,’
 Rejoin’d the Mago, ‘but on Bertha muse;
 For, by my choicest best barometer,
 You shall not throttled be in marriage noose;
 I’ve said it, Sire; you only have to choose
 Bertha or Bellanaine.’ So saying, he drew
 From the left pocket of his threadbare hose,
 A sampler hoarded slyly, good as new;
 Holding it by his thumb and finger full in view.

L

‘Sire, this is Bertha Pearl’s neat handywork,
 Her name, see here, Midsummer, ninety-one’ —
 Elfinan snatch’d it with a sudden jerk,
 And wept as if he never would have done,
 Honouring with royal tears the poor homespun;
 Whereon were broider’d tigers with black eyes,
 And long-tailed pheasants, and a rising sun,
 Plenty of posies, great stags, butterflies
 Bigger than stags — a moon — with other mysteries.

LI

The monarch handled o’er and o’er again
 These day-school hieroglyphics with a sigh;

Somewhat in sadness, but pleased in the main,
 Till this oracular couplet met his eye
 Astounded — Cupid, I do thee defy!
 It was too much. He shrunk back in his chair,
 Grew pale as death and fainted — very nigh!
 ‘Pho! nonsense!’ exclaim’d Hum, ‘now don’t despair:
 She does not mean it really. Cheer up, hearty —
 there!

LII

‘And listen to my words. You say you won’t,
 On any terms, marry Miss Bellanaine;
 It goes against your conscience — good! well,
 don’t.
 You say, you love a mortal. I would fain
 Persuade your honour’s highness to refrain
 From peccadilloes. But, Sire, as I say,
 What good would that do? And, to be more plain,
 You would do me a mischief some odd day,
 Cut off my ears and hands, or head too, by my fay!

LIII

‘Besides, manners forbid that I should pass any Vile strictures on the conduct of a prince
 Who should indulge his genius, if he has any,
 Not, like a subject, foolish matter mince.
 Now I think on ’t, perhaps I could convince
 Your Majesty there is no crime at all
 In loving pretty little Bertha, since
 She’s very delicate — not over tall, —
 A fairy’s hand, and in the waist why — very small.’

LIV

‘Ring the repeater, gentle Hum!’ ‘’T is five,’
 Said gentle Hum; ‘the nights draw in apace;
 The little birds I hear are all alive;

I see the dawning touch'd upon your face ;
 Shall I put out the candles, please your Grace ?'
 ' Do put them out, and, without more ado,
 Tell me how I may that sweet girl embrace, —
 How you can bring her to me.' ' That's for you,
 Great Emperor ! to adventure, like a lover true.'

LV

' I fetch her !' — ' Yes, an't like your Majesty ;
 And as she would be frighten'd wide awake,
 To travel such a distance through the sky,
 Use of some soft manœuvre you must make,
 For your convenience, and her dear nerves' sake ;
 Nice way would be to bring her in a swoon,
 Anon, I'll tell you what course were best to take ;
 You must away this morning.' ' Hum ! so soon ?'
 ' Sire, you must be in Kent by twelve o'clock at noon.'

LVI

At this great Cæsar started on his feet,
 Lifted his wings, and stood attentivewise.
 Those wings to Canterbury you must beat,
 If you hold Bertha as a worthy prize,
 Look in the Almanack — Moore never lies —
 April the twenty-fourth — this coming day,
 Now breathing its new bloom upon the skies,
 Will end in St. Mark's Eve ; — you must away,
 For on that eve alone can you the maid convey.'

LVII

Then the magician solemnly 'gan to frown,
 So that his frost-white eye-brows, beetling low,
 Shaded his deep green eyes, and wrinkles brown
 Plaited upon his furnace-scorched brow :
 Forth from his hood that hung his neck below
 He lifted a bright casket of pure gold,
 Touch'd a spring-lock, and there in wool or snow,

Charm'd into ever freezing, lay an old
And legend-leaved book, mysterious to behold.

LVIII

'Take this same book — it will not bite you, Sire ;
There, put it underneath your royal arm ;
Though it's a pretty weight, it will not tire,
But rather on your journey keep you warm :
This is the magic, this the potent charm,
That shall drive Bertha to a fainting fit !
When the time comes, don't feel the least alarm
But lift her from the ground, and swiftly flit
Back to your palace. . . . .

LIX

'What shall I do with that same book?' 'Why merely
Lay it on Bertha's table, close beside Her work-box, and 't will help your purpose dearly ;
I say no more.' 'Or good or ill betide,
Through the wide air to Kent this morn I glide !'
Exclaim'd the Emperor, 'When I return,
Ask what you will, — I'll give you my new bride !
And take some more wine, Hum ; — O, Heavens!
I burn
To be upon the wing ! Now, now, that minx I spurn !'

LX

'Leave her to me,' rejoin'd the magian :
'But how shall I account, illustrious fay !
For thine imperial absence ? Pho ! I can Say you are very sick, and bar the way
To your so loving courtiers for one day ;
If either of their two Archbishops' graces

Should talk of extreme unction, I shall say
 You do not like cold pig with Latin phrases,
 Which never should be used but in alarming cases.'

LXI

'Open the window, Hum; I'm ready now!
 'Zooks!' exclaim'd Hum, as up the sash he drew,
 'Behold, your Majesty, upon the brow
 Of yonder hill, what crowds of people!' 'Whew!
 The monster's always after something new,'
 Return'd his Highness, 'they are piping hot
 To see my pigsney Bellanaine. Hum! do
 Tighten my belt a little, — so, so, — not Too tight, — the book! — my wand! — so, nothing is forgot.'

LXII

'Wounds! how they shout!' said Hum, 'and there, — see, see,
 Th' ambassador's return'd from Pigmio!
 The morning's very fine, — uncommonly!
 See, past the skirts of yon white cloud they go,
 Tinging it with soft crimsons! Now below
 The sable-pointed heads of firs and pines
 They dip, move on, and with them moves a glow
 Along the forest side! Now amber lines
 Reach the hill top, and now throughout the valley shines.'

LXIII

'Why, Hum, you're getting quite poetical!
 Those novs you managed in a special style.'
 'If ever you have leisure, Sire, you shall See scraps of mine will make it worth your while,
 Tit-bits for Phœbus! — yes, you well may smile.
 Hark! hark! the bells!' 'A little further yet,
 Good Hum, and let me view this mighty coil.'

Then the great Emperor full graceful set
His elbow for a prop, and snuff'd his mignonette.

LXIV

The morn is full of holiday : loud bells
With rival clamors ring from every spire ;
Cunningly-station'd music dies and swells
In echoing places ; when the winds respire,
Light flags stream out like gauzy tongues of fire ;
A metropolitan murmur, lifeful, warm,
Comes from the northern suburbs ; rich attire
Freckles with red and gold the moving swarm ;
While here and there clear trumpets blow a keen alarm.

LXV

And now the fairy escort was seen clear,
Like the old pageant of Aurora's train,
Above a pearl-built minster, hovering near ;
First wily Crafticant, the chamberlain,
Balanced upon his gray-grown pinions twain,
His slender wand officially reveal'd ;
Then black gnomes scattering sixpences like rain ;
Then pages three and three ; and next, slave-held
The Imaian 'scutcheon bright, — one mouse in ar-gent field.

LXVI

Gentlemen pensioners next ; and after them,
A troop of winged Janizaries flew ;
Then slaves, as presents bearing many a gem ;
Then twelve physicians fluttering two and two ;
And next a chaplain in a cassock new ;
Then Lords in waiting ; then (what head not reels
For pleasure ?) — the fair Princess in full view,
Borne upon wings, — and very pleased she feels
To have such splendour dance attendance at her heels.

LXVII

For there was more magnificence behind :
 She waved her handkerchief. 'Ah, very grand !'
 Cried Elfinan, and closed the window-blind ;
 ' And, Hum, we must not shilly-shally stand, —
 Adieu ! adieu ! I'm off for Angle-land !
 I say, old Hocus, have you such a thing
 About you, — feel your pockets, I command, —
 I want, this instant, an invisible ring, —
 Thank you, old mummy ! — now securely I take wing.'

LXVIII

Then Elfinan swift vaulted from the floor,
 And lighted graceful on the window-sill ;
 Under one arm the magic book he bore,
 The other he could wave about at will ;
 Pale was his face, he still look'd very ill :
 He bow'd at Bellanaine, and said — ' Poor Bell !
 Farewell ! farewell ! and if for ever ! still
 For ever fare thee well !' — and then he fell
 A laughing ! — snapp'd his fingers ! — shame it is to tell !

LXIX

' By 'r Lady ! he is gone !' cries Hum, ' and I, —
 (I own it), — have made too free with his wine ;
 Old Crafticant will smoke me. By-the-bye !
 This room is full of jewels as a mine, —
 Dear valuable creatures, how ye shine !
 Sometime to-day I must contrive a minute,
 If Mercury propitiously incline,
 To examine his scrutoire, and see what 's in it,
 For of superfluous diamonds I as well may thin it.

LXX

' The Emperor's horrid bad ; yes, that 's my cue !'
 Some histories say that this was Hum's last speech ;

That, being fuddled, he went reeling through
 The corridor, and scarce upright could reach
 The stair-head ; that being glutted as a leech,
 And used, as we ourselves have just now said,
 To manage stairs reversely, like a peach
 Too ripe, he fell, being puzzled in his head
 With liquor and the staircase : verdict — found stone dead.

LXXI

This, as a falsehood, Crafticanto treats ;
 And as his style is of strange elegance,
 Gentle and tender, full of soft conceits,
 (Much like our Boswell's,) we will take a glance
 At his sweet prose, and, if we can, make dance
 His woven periods into careless rhyme ;
 O, little faery Pegasus ! rear — prance —
 Trot round the quarto — ordinary time !
 March, little Pegasus, with pawing hoof sublime !

LXXII

' Well, let us see, — tenth book and chapter nine,' —
 Thus Crafticant pursues his diary : —
 'Twas twelve o'clock at night, the weather fine,
 Latitude thirty-six ; our scouts descry
 A flight of starlings making rapidly
 Towards Thibet. Mem. : — birds fly in the night ;
 From twelve to half-past — wings not fit to fly
 For a thick fog — the Princess sulky quite :
 Call'd for an extra shawl, and gave her nurse a bite.

LXXIII

' Five minutes before one — brought down a moth
 With my new double-barrel — stew'd the thighs,
 And made a very tolerable broth —
 Princess turn'd dainty, to our great surprise,
 Alter'd her mind, and thought it very nice :
 Seeing her pleasant, tried her with a pun,

She frown'd ; a monstrous owl across us flies
 About this time, — a sad old figure of fun ;
 Bad omen — this new match can't be a happy one.

LXXIV

'From two to half-past, dusky way we made,
 Above the plains of Gobi, — desert, bleak ;
 Beheld afar off, in the hooded shade
 Of darkness, a great mountain (strange to speak),
 Spitting, from forth its sulphur-baken peak,
 A fan-shaped burst of blood-red, arrowy fire,
 Turban'd with smoke, which still away did reek.
 Solid and black from that eternal pyre,
 Upon the laden winds that scanty could respire.

LXXV

'Just upon three o'clock, a falling star
 Created an alarm among our troop,
 Kill'd a man-cook, a page, and broke a jar,
 A tureen, and three dishes, at one swoop,
 Then passing by the Princess, singed her hoop :
 Could not conceive what Coralline was at,
 She clapp'd her hands three times, and cried out
 "Whoop !"
 Some strange Imaian custom. A large bat
 Came sudden 'fore my face, and brush'd against my hat.

LXXVI

'Five minutes thirteen seconds after three,
 Far in the west a mighty fire broke out,
 Conjectured, on the instant, it might be
 The city of Balk — 't was Balk beyond all doubt :
 A griffin, wheeling here and there about,
 Kept reconnoitering us — doubled our guard —
 Lighted our torches, and kept up a shout,
 Till he sheer'd off — the Princess very scared —
 And many on their marrow-bones for death prepared.

LXXVII

‘ At half-past three arose the cheerful moon —
 Bivouack’d for four minutes on a cloud —
 Where from the earth we heard a lively tune
 Of tambourines and pipes, severe and loud,
 While on a flowery lawn a brilliant crowd
 Cinque-parted danced, some half asleep reposed
 Beneath the green-faned cedars, some did shroud
 In silken tents, and ’mid light fragrance dozed,
 Or on the open turf their soothed eyelids closed.

LXXVIII

‘ Dropp’d my gold watch, and kill’d a kettle-drum —
 It went for apoplexy — foolish folks ! —
 Left it to pay the piper — a good sum —
 (I ’ve got a conscience, maugre people’s jokes,)
 To scrape a little favour ; ’gan to coax
 Her Highness’ pug-dog — got a sharp rebuff —
 She wish’d a game at whist — made three re-vokes —
 Turn’d from myself, her partner, in a huff ;
 His Majesty will know her temper time enough.

LXXIX

‘ She cried for chess — I play’d a game with her —
 Castled her king with such a vixen look,
 It bodes ill to his Majesty — (refer
 To the second chapter of my fortieth book,
 And see what hoity-toity airs she took).
 At half-past four the morn essay’d to beam —
 Saluted, as we pass’d, an early rook, —
 The Princess fell asleep, and, in her dream,
 Talk’d of one Master Hubert, deep in her esteem.

LXXX

‘ About this time — making delightful way —
 Shed a quill-feather from my larboard wing —

Wish'd, trusted, hoped 't was no sign of decay —
 Thank Heaven, I'm hearty yet! — 't was no such thing: —

At five the golden light began to spring,
 With fiery shudder through the bloomed east;
 At six we heard Panthea's churches ring —
 The city all his unhived swarms had cast,
 To watch our grand approach, and hail us as we pass'd.

LXXXI

' As flowers turn their faces to the sun,
 So on our flight with hungry eyes they gaze,
 And, as we shaped our course, this, that way run,
 With mad-cap pleasure, or hand-clasp'd amaze:
 Sweet in the air a mild-toned music plays,
 And progresses through its own labyrinth;
 Buds gather'd from the green spring's middle-days,
 They scatter'd — daisy, primrose, hyacinth —
 Or round white columns wreathed from capital to plinth.

LXXXII

' Onward we floated o'er the panting streets,
 That seem'd throughout with upheld faces paved;
 Look where we will, our bird's-eye vision meets
 Legions of holiday; bright standards waved,
 And fluttering ensigns emulously craved
 Our minute's glance; a busy thunderous roar,
 From square to square, among the buildings
 raved,
 As when the sea, at flow, gluts up once more
 The craggy hollowness of a wild-reefed shore.

LXXXIII

' And "Bellanaine for ever!" shouted they!
 While that fair Princess, from her winged chair,

Bow'd low with high demeanour, and, to pay
 Their new-blown loyalty with guerdon fair,
 Still emptied, at meet distance, here and there,
 A plenty horn of jewels. And here I
 (Who wish to give the devil her due) declare
 Against that ugly piece of calumny,
 Which calls them Highland pebble-stones not worth a fly.

LXXXIV

' Still "Bellanaine !" they shouted, while we glide
 'Slant to a light Ionic portico,
 The city's delicacy, and the pride
 Of our Imperial Basilic ; a row
 Of lords and ladies, on each hand, make show
 Submissive of knee-bent obeisance,
 All down the steps ; and, as we enter'd, lo !
 The strangest sight—the most unlook'd-for chance —
 All things turn'd topsy-turvy in a devil's dance.

LXXXV

' Stead of his anxious Majesty and court
 At the open doors, with wide saluting eyes,
Congées and scrape-graces of every sort,
 And all the smooth routine of gallantries,
 Was seen, to our immoderate surprise,
 A motley crowd thick gather'd in the hall,
 Lords, scullions, deputy-sculions, with wild cries
 Stunning the vestibule from wall to wall,
 Where the Chief Justice on his knees and hands doth crawl.

LXXXVI

' Counts of the palace, and the state purveyor
 Of moth's-down, to make soft the royal beds,
 The Common Council and my fool Lord Mayor
 Marching a-row, each other slipshod treads ;

Powder'd bag-wigs and ruffy-tuffy heads
 Of cinder wenches meet and soil each other ;
 Toe crush'd with heel ill-natured fighting breeds,
 Frill-rumpling elbows brew up many a bother,
 And fists in the short ribs keep up the yell and pother.

LXXXVII

' A Poet, mounted on the Court-Clown's back,
 Rode to the Princess swift with spurring heels,
 And close into her face, with rhyming clack,
 Began a Prothalamion ; — she reels,
 She falls, she faints ! — while laughter peals
 Over her woman's weakness. " Where ! " cried I,
 " Where is his Majesty ? " No person feels Inclined to answer ; wherefore instantly
 I plunged into the crowd to find him or to die.

LXXXVIII

' Jostling my way I gain'd the stairs, and ran
 To the first landing, where, incredible !
 I met, far gone in liquor, that old man,
 That vile impostor Hum, —— '
So far so well, —
 For we have proved the Mago never fell
 Down stairs on Crafticanto's evidence ;
 And therefore duly shall proceed to tell,
 Plain in our own original mood and tense,
 The sequel of this day, though labour 't is immense !

THE LAST SONNET

BRIGHT star, would I were steadfast as thou art !
Not in lone splendour hung aloft the night,
And watching, with eternal lids apart,
Like Nature's patient sleepless Eremite,
The moving waters at their priestlike task
Of pure ablution round earth's human shores
Or gazing on the new soft fallen mask
Of snow upon the mountains and the moors :
No — yet still steadfast, still unchangeable,
Pillow'd upon my fair love's ripening breast,
To feel for ever its soft fall and swell,
Awake for ever in a sweet unrest,
Still, still to hear her tender-taken breath,
And so live ever — or else swoon to death.

SUPPLEMENTARY VERSE

The collection which follows is not intended to be taken exactly as containing the leavings of Keats's genius ; there are verses in the previous groups which might be placed here, if the intention was to make a marked division between his well-defined poetry and his experiments and mere scintillations ; doubtless, too, on any such principle it would be just to take back into the respectability of larger type some of the lines here included. But it seemed wise to put into a subordinate group the poet's fragmentary and posthumous poems, and those which were plainly the mere playthings of his muse.

I. HYPERION: A VISION

['An attempt at remodelling the fragment of Hyperion into the form of a vision.']

CANTO I

FANATICS have their dreams, wherewith they weave
A paradise for a sect ; the savage, too,
From forth the loftiest fashion of his sleep
Guesses at heaven ; pity these have not
Trac'd upon vellum or wild Indian leaf
The shadows of melodious utterance,
But bare of laurel they live, dream, and die ;
For Poesy alone can tell her dreams, —
With the fine spell of words alone can save
Imagination from the sable chain 10
And dumb enchantment. Who alive can say,
'Thou art no Poet — may'st not tell thy dreams' ?
Since every man whose soul is not a clod
Hath visions and would speak, if he had loved,

And been well nurtured in his mother tongue.
 Whether the dream now purpos'd to rehearse
 Be poet's or fanatic's will be known
 When this warm scribe, my hand, is in the grave.

Methought I stood where trees of every clime,
 Palm, myrtle, oak, and sycamore, and beech, 2c
 With plantane and spice-blossoms, made a screen,
 In neighbourhood of fountains (by the noise
 Soft-showering in mine ears), and (by the touch
 Of scent) not far from roses. Twining round
 I saw an arbour with a drooping roof
 Of trellis vines, and bells, and larger blooms,
 Like floral censers, swinging light in air ;
 Before its wreathed doorway, on a mound
 Of moss, was spread a feast of summer fruits,
 Which, nearer seen, seem'd refuse of a meal. 3o
 By angel tasted or our Mother Eve ;
 For empty shells were scatter'd on the grass,
 And grapestalks but half-bare, and remnants more
 Sweet-smelling, whose pure kinds I could not know.
 Still was more plenty than the fabled horn
 Thrice emptied could pour forth at banqueting,
 For Proserpine return'd to her own fields,
 Where the white heifers low. And appetite,
 More yearning than on earth I ever felt,
 Growing within, I ate deliciously, — 4o
 And, after not long, thirsted ; for thereby
 Stood a cool vessel of transparent juice
 Sipp'd by the wander'd bee, the which I took,
 And pledging all the mortals of the world,
 And all the dead whose names are in our lips,
 Drank. That full draught is parent of my theme.
 No Asian poppy nor elixir fine
 Of the soon fading, jealous Caliphat,
 No poison gender'd in close monkish cell,
 To thin the scarlet conclave of old men, 5o
 Could so have rapt unwilling life away.

Among the fragrant husks and berries crush'd
 Upon the grass, I struggled hard against
 The domineering potion, but in vain.
 The cloudy swoon came on, and down I sank,
 Like a Silenus on an antique vase.
 How long I slumber'd 't is a chance to guess.
 When sense of life return'd, I started up
 As if with wings, but the fair trees were gone,
 The mossy mound and arbour were no more : 60
 I look'd around upon the curved sides
 Of an old sanctuary, with roof august,
 Buildd so high, it seem'd that filmed clouds
 Might spread beneath as o'er the stars of heaven.
 So old the place was, I remember'd none
 The like upon the earth : what I had seen
 Of grey cathedrals, buttress'd walls, rent towers,
 The superannuations of sunk realms,
 Or Nature's rocks toil'd hard in waves and winds,
 Seem'd but the faulture of decrepit things 70
 To that eternal domed monument.
 Upon the marble at my feet there lay
 Store of strange vessels and large draperies,
 Which needs had been of dyed asbestos wove,
 Or in that place the moth could not corrupt,
 So white the linen, so, in some, distinct
 Ran imageries from a sombre loom.
 All in a mingled heap confus'd there lay
 Robes, golden tongs, censer and chafing-dish,
 Girdles, and chains, and holy jewelries. 80

Turning from these with awe, once more I raised
 My eyes to fathom the space every way :
 The embossed roof, the silent massy range
 Of columns north and south, ending in mist
 Of nothing ; then to eastward, where black gates
 Were shut against the sunrise evermore ;
 Then to the west I look'd, and saw far off
 An image, huge of feature as a cloud,

At level of whose feet an altar slept,
 To be approach'd on either side by steps 90
 And marble balustrade, and patient travail
 To count with toil the innumerable degrees.
 Toward the altar sober-pac'd I went,
 Repressing haste as too unholy there ;
 And, coming nearer, saw beside the shrine
 One ministering ; and there arose a flame
 When in mid-day the sickening east-wind
 Shifts sudden to the south, the small warm rain
 Melts out the frozen incense from all flowers,
 And fills the air with so much pleasant health 100
 That even the dying man forgets his shroud ; —
 Even so that lofty sacrificial fire,
 Sending forth Maian incense, spread around
 Forgetfulness of everything but bliss,
 And clouded all the altar with soft smoke ;
 From whose white fragrant curtains thus I heard
 Language pronounc'd : ' If thou canst not ascend
 These steps, die on that marble where thou art.
 Thy flesh, near cousin to the common dust,
 Will parch for lack of nutriment ; thy bones 110
 Will wither in few years, and vanish so
 That not the quickest eye could find a grain
 Of what thou now art on that pavement cold.
 The sands of thy short life are spent this hour,
 And no hand in the universe can turn
 Thy hourglass, if these gummed leaves be burnt
 Ere thou canst mount up these immortal steps.'
 I heard, I look'd : two senses both at once,
 So fine, so subtle, felt the tyranny
 Of that fierce threat and the hard task proposed. 120
 Prodigious seem'd the toil ; the leaves were yet
 Burning, when suddenly a palsied chill
 Struck from the paved level up my limbs,
 And was ascending quick to put cold grasp
 Upon those streams that pulse beside the throat.
 I shriek'd, and the sharp anguish of my shriek

Stung my own ears; I strove hard to escape
 The numbness, strove to gain the lowest step.
 Slow, heavy, deadly was my pace: the cold
 Grew stifling, suffocating at the heart; 130
 And when I clasp'd my hands I felt them not.
 One minute before death my ic'd foot touch'd
 The lowest stair; and, as it touch'd, life seem'd
 To pour in at the toes, I mounted up
 As once fair angels on a ladder flew
 From the green turf to heaven. 'Holy Power,'
 Cried I, approaching near the horned shrine,
 'What am I that should so be saved from death?
 What am I that another death come not
 To choke my utterance, sacrilegious, here?' 140
 Then said the veiled shadow: 'Thou hast felt
 What 't is to die and live again before
 Thy fated hour; that thou hadst power to do so
 Is thine own safety; thou hast dated on
 Thy doom.' 'High Prophetess,' said I, 'purge off
 Benign, if so it please thee, my mind's film.'
 'None can usurp this height,' return'd that shade,
 'But those to whom the miseries of the world
 Are misery, and will not let them rest.
 All else who find a haven in the world, 150
 Where they may thoughtless sleep away their days,
 If by a chance into this fane they come,
 Rot on the pavement where thou rottedst half.
 'Are there not thousands in the world,' said I,
 Encourag'd by the sooth voice of the shade,
 'Who love their fellows even to the death,
 Who feel the giant agony of the world,
 And more, like slaves to poor humanity,
 Labour for mortal good? I sure should see
 Other men here, but I am here alone.' 160
 'Those whom thou spakest of are no visionaries,' Rejoin'd that voice; 'they are no dreamers weak;
 They seek no wonder but the human face,
 No music but a happy-noted voice:

They come not here, they have no thought to come ;
 And thou art here, for thou art less than they.
 What benefit canst thou do, or all thy tribe,
 To the great world ? Thou art a dreaming thing,
 A fever of thyself : think of the earth ;
 What bliss, even in hope, is there for thee ? 170
 What haven ? every creature hath its home,
 Every sole man hath days of joy and pain,
 Whether his labours be sublime or low —
 The pain alone, the joy alone, distinct :
 Only the dreamer venoms all his days,
 Bearing more woe than all his sins deserve.
 Therefore, that happiness be somewhat shared,
 Such things as thou art are admitted oft
 Into like gardens thou didst pass erewhile,
 And suffer'd in these temples : for that cause 180
 Thou standest safe beneath this statue's knees.'

'That I am favour'd for unworthiness,
 By such propitious parley medicined
 In sickness not ignoble, I rejoice,
 Aye, and could weep for love of such award.'
 So answer'd I, continuing, ' If it please,
 Majestic shadow, tell me where I am,
 Whose altar this, for whom this incense curls ;
 What image this whose face I cannot see
 For the broad marble knees ; and who thou art, 190
 Of accent feminine so courteous ?'

Then the tall shade, in drooping linen veil'd,
 Spoke out, so much more earnest, that her breath
 Stirr'd the thin folds of gauze that drooping hung
 About a golden censer from her hand
 Pendent ; and by her voice I knew she shed
 Long-treasured tears. 'This temple, sad and lone,
 Is all spar'd from the thunder of a war
 Foughten long since by giant hierarchy
 Against rebellion : this old image here, 200

Whose carved features wrinkled as he fell,
 Is Saturn's ; I, Moneta, left supreme,
 Sole goddess of this desolation.'
 I had no words to answer, for my tongue,
 Useless, could find about its roofed home
 No syllable of a fit majesty
 To make rejoinder to Moneta's mourn :
 There was a silence, while the altar's blaze
 Was fainting for sweet food. I look'd thereon,
 And on the paved floor, where nigh were piled 210
 Faggots of cinnamon, and many heaps
 Of other crisped spicewood : then again
 I look'd upon the altar, and its horns
 Whiten'd with ashes, and its languorous flame,
 And then upon the offerings again ;
 And so, by turns, till sad Moneta cried :
 'The sacrifice is done, but not the less
 Will I be kind to thee for thy good will.
 My power, which to me is still a curse,
 Shall be to thee a wonder ; for the scenes 220
 Still swooning vivid through my globed brain,
 With an electral changing misery,
 Thou shalt with these dull mortal eyes behold
 Free from all pain, if wonder pain thee not.'
 As near as an immortal's sphered words
 Could to a mother's soften were these last :
 And yet I had a terror of her robes,
 And chiefly of the veils that from her brow
 Hung pale, and curtain'd her in mysteries,
 That made my heart too small to hold its blood. 230
 This saw that Goddess, and with sacred hand
 Parted the veils. Then saw I a wan face,
 Not pin'd by human sorrows, but bright-blanch'd
 By an immortal sickness which kills not ;
 It works a constant change, which happy death
 Can put no end to ; deathwards progressing
 To no death was that visage ; it had past
 The lily and the snow ; and beyond these

I must not think now, though I saw that face.
 But for her eyes I should have fled away ; 240
 They held me back with a benignant light,
 Soft, mitigated by divinest lids
 Half-clos'd, and visionless entire they seem'd
 Of all external things ; they saw me not,
 But in blank splendour beam'd, like the mild moon,
 Who comforts those she sees not, who knows not
 What eyes are upward cast. As I had found
 A grain of gold upon a mountain's side,
 And, twing'd with avarice, strain'd out my eyes
 To search its sullen entrails rich with ore, 250
 So, at the view of sad Moneta's brow,
 I ask'd to see what things the hollow brow
 Behind environ'd : what high tragedy
 In the dark secret chambers of her skull
 Was acting, that could give so dread a stress
 To her cold lips, and fill with such a light
 Her planetary eyes, and touch her voice
 With such a sorrow ? ' Shade of Memory ! '
 Cried I, with act adorant at her feet,
 ' By all the gloom hung round thy fallen house, 260
 By this last temple, by the golden age,
 By great Apollo, thy dear foster-child,
 And by thyself, forlorn divinity,
 The pale Omega of a wither'd race,
 Let me behold, according as thou saidst,
 What in thy brain so ferments to and fro ! '
 No sooner had this conjuration past
 My devout lips, than side by side we stood
 (Like a stunt bramble by a solemn pine)
 Deep in the shady sadness of a vale 270
 Far sunken from the healthy breath of morn,
 Far from the fiery noon and eve's one star.
 Onward I look'd beneath the gloomy boughs,
 And saw what first I thought an image huge,
 Like to the image pedestall'd so high
 In Saturn's temple ; then Moneta's voice

Came brief upon mine ear. ' So Saturn sat
 When he had lost his realms ; ' whereon there grew
 A power within me of enormous ken
 To see as a god sees, and take the depth 280
 Of things as nimbly as the outward eye
 Can size and shape pervade. The lofty theme
 Of those few words hung vast before my mind
 With half-unravell'd web. I sat myself
 Upon an eagle's watch, that I might see,
 And seeing ne'er forget. No stir of life
 Was in this shrouded vale, — not so much air
 As in the zoning of a summer's day
 Robs not one light seed from the feather'd grass
 But where the dead leaf fell there did it rest. 290
 A stream went noiseless by, still deaden'd more
 By reason of the fallen divinity
 Spreading more shade; the Naiad 'mid her reeds
 Prest her cold finger closer to her lips.

Along the margin-sand large foot-marks went
 No further than to where old Saturn's feet
 Had rested, and there slept how long a sleep !
 Degraded, cold, upon the sodden ground
 His old right hand lay nerveless, listless, dead,
 Unceptred, and his realmless eyes were closed ; 300
 While his bowed head seem'd listening to the Earth,
 His ancient mother, for some comfort yet.

It seem'd no force could wake him from his place;
 But there came one who, with a kindred hand,
 Touch'd his wide shoulders, after bending low
 With reverence, though to one who knew it not.
 Then came the grieved voice Mnemosyne,
 And griev'd I hearken'd. ' That divinity
 Whom thou saw'st step from yon forlornest wood,
 And with slow pace approach our fallen king, 310
 Is Thea, softest-natured of our brood.'
 I mark'd the Goddess, in fair statuary

Surpassing wan Moneta by the head,
 And in her sorrow nearer woman's tears.
 There was a list'ning fear in her regard,
 As if calamity had but begun ;
 As if the venom'd cloud of evil days
 Had spent their malice, and the sullen rear
 Was with its stored thunder labouring up,
 One hand she press'd upon that aching spot 320
 Where beats the human heart, as if just there,
 Though an immortal, she felt cruel pain ;
 The other upon Saturn's bended neck
 She laid, and to the level of his ear
 Leaning, with parted lips some words she spoke
 In solemn tenour and deep organ-tone ;
 Some mourning words, which in our feeble tongue
 Would come in this like accenting ; how frail
 To that large utterance of the early gods !

' Saturn, look up ! and for what, poor lost king ?
 I have no comfort for thee ; no, not one ; 331
 I cannot say, wherefore thus sleepest thou ?
 For Heaven is parted from thee, and the Earth
 Knows thee not, so afflicted, for a god.
 The Ocean, too, with all its solemn noise,
 Has from thy sceptre pass'd ; and all the air
 Is emptied of thy hoary majesty.
 Thy thunder, captious at the new command,
 Rumbles reluctant o'er our fallen house ;
 And thy sharp lightning, in unpractis'd hands, 340
 Scourges and burns our once serene domain.

' With such remorseless speed still come new woes,
 That unbelief has not a space to breathe.
 Saturn ! sleep on : me thoughtless, why should I
 Thus violate thy slumbrous solitude ?
 Why should I ope thy melancholy eyes ?
 Saturn ! sleep on, while at thy feet I weep.'

As when upon a tranced summer-night
 Forests, branch-charmed by the earnest stars,
 Dream, and so dream all night without a noise, 350
 Save from one gradual solitary gust
 Swelling upon the silence, dying off,
 As if the ebbing air had but one wave,
 So came these words and went; the while in tears
 She prest her fair large forehead to the earth,
 Just where her fallen hair might spread in curls,
 A soft and silken net for Saturn's feet.
 Long, long these two were postured motionless,
 Like sculpture builded-up upon the grave
 Of their own power. A long awful time 360
 I look'd upon them: still they were the same;
 The frozen God still bending to the earth,
 And the sad Goddess weeping at his feet;
 Moneta silent. Without stay or prop
 But my own weak mortality, I bore
 The load of this eternal quietude,
 The unchanging gloom and the three fixed shapes
 Ponderous upon my senses, a whole moon;
 For by my burning brain I measured sure
 Her silver seasons shedded on the night, 370
 And every day by day methought I grew
 More gaunt and ghostly. Oftentimes I pray'd
 Intense, that death would take me from the vale
 And all its burthens; gasping with despair
 Of change, hour after hour I curs'd myself,
 Until old Saturn rais'd his faded eyes,
 And look'd around and saw his kingdom gone,
 And all the gloom and sorrow of the place,
 And that fair kneeling Goddess at his feet.

As the moist scent of flowers, and grass, and leaves 380
 Fills forest-dells with a pervading air,
 Known to the woodland nostril, so the words
 Of Saturn fill'd the mossy glooms around,

Even to the hollows of time-eaten oaks,
 And to the windings of the foxes' hole,
 With sad, low tones, while thus he spoke, and sent Strange moanings to the solitary Pan.
 ' Moan, brethren, moan, for we are swallow'd up
 And buried from all godlike exercise
 Of influence benign on planets pale, 390
 And peaceful sway upon man's harvesting,
 And all those acts which Deity supreme
 Doth ease its heart of love in. Moan and wail ;
 Moan, brethren, moan ; for lo, the rebel spheres
 Spin round ; the stars their ancient courses keep ;
 Clouds still with shadowy moisture haunt the earth,
 Still suck their fill of light from sun and moon ;
 Still buds the tree, and still the seashores murmur ;
 There is no death in all the universe,
 No smell of death. — There shall be death. Moan,
                   moan ; 400
 Moan, Cybele, moan ; for thy pernicious babes
 Have chang'd a god into an aching palsy.
 Moan, brethren, moan, for I have no strength left ;
 Weak as the reed, weak, feeble as my voice.
 Oh ! Oh ! the pain, the pain of feebleness ;
 Moan, moan, for still I thaw ; or give me help,
 Throw down those imps, and give me victory.
 Let me hear other groans, and trumpets blown
 Of triumph calm, and hymns of festival,
 From the gold peaks of heaven's high-piled clouds ;
 Voices of soft proclaim, and silver stir 411
 Of strings in hollow shells ; and there shall be
 Beautiful things made new, for the surprise
 Of the sky-children.' So he feebly ceased,
 With such a poor and sickly-sounding pause,
 Methought I heard some old man of the earth
 Bewailing earthly loss ; nor could my eyes
 And ears act with that unison of sense
 Which marries sweet sound with the grace of form,
 And dolorous accent from a tragic harp 420

With large limb'd visions. More I scrutinized.
 Still fixt he sat beneath the sable trees,
 Whose arms spread straggling in wild serpent forms,
 With leaves all hush'd ; his awful presence there
 (Now all was silent) gave a deadly lie
 To what I erewhile heard : only his lips
 Trembled amid the white curls of his beard ;
 They told the truth, though round the snowy locks
 Hung nobly, as upon the face of heaven
 A mid-day fleece of clouds. Thea arose 430
 And stretcht her white arm through the hollow dark,
 Pointing somewhither : whereat he too rose,
 Like a vast giant, seen by men at sea
 To grow pale from the waves at dull midnight.
 They melted from my sight into the woods ;
 Ere I could turn, Moneta cried, 'These twain
 Are speeding to the families of grief,
 Where, rooft in by black rocks, they waste in pain
 And darkness, for no hope.' And she spake on,
 As ye may read who can unwearied pass 440
 Onward from the antechamber of this dream,
 Where, even at the open doors, awhile
 I must delay, and glean my memory
 Of her high phrase — perhaps no further dare.

CANTO II

'MORTAL, that thou may'st understand aright,
 I humanize my sayings to thine ear,
 Making comparisons of earthly things ;
 Or thou might'st better listen to the wind,
 Whose language is to thee a barren noise,
 Though it blows legend-laden thro' the trees.
 In melancholy realms big tears are shed,
 More sorrow like to this, and such like woe,
 Too huge for mortal tongue or pen of scribe.
 The Titans fierce, self-hid or prison-bound, 10
 Groan for the old allegiance once more,

Listening in their doom for Saturn's voice.
 But one of the whole eagle-brood still keeps
 His sovereignty, and rule, and majesty :
 Blazing Hyperion on his orb'd fire
 Still sits, still snuffs the incense teeming up
 From Man to the Sun's God — yet insecure.
 For as upon the earth dire prodigies
 Fright and perplex, so also shudders he ;
 Not at dog's howl or gloom-bird's hated screech, 20
 Or the familiar visiting of one
 Upon the first toll of his passing bell,
 Or prophesyings of the midnight lamp ;
 But horrors, portioned to a giant nerve,
 Make great Hyperion ache. His palace bright,
 Bastion'd with pyramids of shining gold,
 And touch'd with shade of bronzed obelisks,
 Glares a blood-red thro' all the thousand courts,
 Arches, and domes, and fiery galleries ;
 And all its curtains of Aurorian clouds 30
 Flash angerly ; when he would taste the wreaths
 Of incense breath'd aloft from sacred hills,
 Instead of sweets, his ample palate takes
 Savour of poisonous brass and metals sick ;
 Wherefore when harbour'd in the sleepy West,
 After the full completion of fair day.
 For rest divine upon exalted couch,
 And slumber in the arms of melody,
 He paces through the pleasant hours of ease,
 With strides colossal, on from hall to hall, 40
 While far within each aisle and deep recess
 His winged minions in close clusters stand
 Amaz'd, and full of fear ; like anxious men,
 Who on a wide plain gather in sad troops,
 When earthquakes jar their battlements and towers.
 Even now where Saturn, rous'd from icy trance,
 Goes step for step with Thea from yon woods,
 Hyperion, leaving twilight in the rear,
 Is sloping to the threshold of the West.

Thither we tend.' Now in clear light I stood, 50
 Reliev'd from the dusk vale. Mnemosyne
 Was sitting on a square-edg'd polish'd stone,
 That in its lucid depths reflected pure
 Her priestess' garments. My quick eyes ran on
 From stately nave to nave, from vault to vault,
 Through bow'rs of fragrant and enwreathed light,
 And diamond-paved lustrous long arcades.
 Anon rush'd by the bright Hyperion ;
 His flaming robes stream'd out beyond his heels,
 And gave a roar as if of earthly fire, 60
 That scar'd away the meek ethereal hours,
 And made their dove-wings tremble. On he flared.

II. FRAGMENTS

I

WHERE'S the Poet ? Show him ! show him,
 Muses nine ! that I may know him !
 'T is the man who with a man
 Is an equal, be he King,
 Or poorest of the beggar-clan,
 Or any other wondrous thing
 A man may be 'twixt ape and Plato ;
 'T is the man who with a bird,
 Wren, or Eagle, finds his way to
 All its instincts ; he hath heard
 The Lion's roaring, and can tell
 What his horny throat expresseth,
 And to him the Tiger's yell
 Comes articulate and presseth
 On his ear like mother-tongue.

MODERN LOVE

AND what is love ? It is a doll dress'd up
 For idleness to cosset, nurse, and dandle ;

A thing of soft misnomers, so divine
 That silly youth doth think to make itself
 Divine by loving, and so goes on
 Yawning and doting a whole summer long,
 Till Miss's comb is made a pearl tiara,
 And common Wellingtons turn Romeo boots ;
 Then Cleopatra lives at number seven,
 And Antony resides in Brunswick Square.
 Fools ! if some passions high have warm'd the world,
 If Queens and Soldiers have play'd deep for hearts,
 It is no reason why such agonies
 Should be more common than the growth of weeds.
 Fools ! make me whole again that weighty pearl
 The Queen of Egypt melted, and I'll say
 That ye may love in spite of beaver hats.

FRAGMENT OF 'THE CASTLE BUILDER'

TO-NIGHT I'll have my friar — let me think
 About my room — I'll have it in the pink ;
 It should be rich and sombre, and the moon,
 Just in its mid-life in the midst of June
 Should look thro' four large windows and display
 Clear, but for gold-fish vases in the way,
 Their glassy diamonding on Turkish floor ;
 The tapers keep aside, an hour and more,
 To see what else the moon alone can show ;
 While the night-breeze doth softly let us know
 My terrace is well bower'd with oranges.
 Upon the floor the dullest spirit sees
 A guitar-ribband and a lady's glove
 Beside a crumple-leaved tale of love ;
 A tambour-frame, with Venus sleeping there,
 All finish'd but some ringlets of her hair ;
 A viol, bow-strings torn, cross-wise upon
 A glorious folio of Anacreon ;

A skull upon a mat of roses lying,
 Ink'd purple with a song concerning dying ;
 An hour-glass on the turn, amid the trails
 Of passion-flower ; — just in time there sails
 A cloud across the moon, — the lights bring in !
 And see what more my phantasy can win.
 It is a gorgeous room, but somewhat sad ;
 The draperies are so, as tho' they had
 Been made for Cleopatra's winding-sheet ;
 And opposite the stedfast eye doth meet
 A spacious looking-glass, upon whose face,
 In letters raven-sombre, you may trace
 Old 'Mene, Mene, Tekel Upharsin.'
 Greek busts and statuary have ever been Held, by the finest spirits, fitter far,
 Than vase grotesque and Siamesian jar ;
 Therefore 't is sure a want of Attic taste
 That I should rather love a Gothic waste
 Of eyesight on cinque-coloured potter's clay,
 Than on the marble fairness of old Greece.
 My table-coverlits of Jason's fleece
 And black Numidian sheep-wool should be wrought,
 Gold, black, and heavy, from the Lama brought.
 My ebon sofas should delicious be
 With down from Leda's cygnet progeny.
 My pictures all Salvator's, save a few
 Of Titian's portraiture, and one, though new,
 Of Haydon's in its fresh magnificence.
 My wine — O good ! 't is here at my desire,
 And I must sit to supper with my friar.

EXTRACTS FROM AN OPERA

O ! WERE I one of the Olympian twelve,
 Their godships should pass this into a law, —
 That when a man doth set himself in toil

After some beauty veiled far away,
 Each step he took should make his lady's hand
 More soft, more white, and her fair cheek more fair;
 And for each briar-berry he might eat,
 A kiss should bud upon the tree of love,
 And pulp and ripen richer every hour,
 To melt away upon the traveller's lips.

DAISY'S SONG

THE sun, with his great eye,
 Sees not so much as I;
 And the moon, all silver-proud,
 Might as well be in a cloud.

And O the spring — the spring !
 I lead the life of a King !
 Couch'd in the teeming grass,
 I spy each pretty lass.

I look where no one dares,
 And I stare where no one stares,
 And when the night is nigh,
 Lambs bleat my lullaby.

. . . . .

FOLLY'S SONG

WHEN wedding fiddles are a-playing,
   Huzza for folly O !
 And when maidens go a-Maying,
   Huzza, etc.
 When a milk-pail is upset,
   Huzza, etc.
 And the clothes left in the wet,
   Huzza, etc.
 When the barrel's set abroach,

Ay hand in hand into the bower,
Where my Lord's roses blow.

My lady's maid had a silken scarf,
And a golden ring had she,
And a kiss from the stranger, as off he went
Again on his palfrey.

. . . . .

ASLEEP! O sleep a little while, white pearl
And let me kneel, and let me pray to thee,
And let me call Heaven's blessing on thine eyes,
And let me breathe into the happy air,
That doth enfold and touch thee all about,
Vows or my slavery, my giving up,
My sudden adoration, my great love!

III. FAMILIAR VERSES

STANZAS TO MISS WYLIE

O COME, Georgiana! the rose is full blown,
The riches of Flora are lavishly strown,
The air is all softness, and crystal the streams;
The West is resplendently clothed in beams.

O come! let us haste to the freshening shades,
The quaintly carv'd seats, and the opening glades;
Where the faeries are chanting their evening hymns,
And the last sun-beam the sylph lightly swims.

And when thou art weary, I'll find thee a bed
Of mosses and flowers to pillow thy head:
And there Georgiana I'll sit at thy feet,
While my story of love I enraptur'd repeat.

So fondly I'll breathe, and so softly I'll sigh,
Thou wilt think that some amorous zephyr is nigh;

Yet no — as I breathe I will press thy fair knee,
 And then thou wilt know that the sigh comes from me.

Ah! why, dearest girl, should we lose all these blisses?
 That mortal's a fool who such happiness misses :
 So smile acquiescence, and give me thy hand,
 With love-looking eyes, and with voice sweetly bland.

EPISTLE TO JOHN HAMILTON REYNOLDS

DEAR Reynolds ! As last night I lay in bed,
 There came before my eyes that wonted thread
 Of shapes, and shadows, and remembrances,
 That every other minute vex and please :
 Things all disjointed come from north and south, —
 Two Witch's eyes above a Cherub's mouth,
 Voltaire with casque and shield and habergeon,
 And Alexander with his nightcap on ;
 Old Socrates a-tying his cravat,
 And Hazlitt playing with Miss Edgeworth's cat ; 10
 And Junius Brutus, pretty well so so,
 Making the best of 's way towards Soho.

Few are there who escape these visitings, —
 Perhaps one or two whose lives have patent wings,
 And thro' whose curtains peeps no hellish nose,
 No wild-boar tushes, and no Mermaid's toes ;
 But flowers bursting out with lusty pride,
 And young Æolian harps personify'd ;
 Some Titian colours touch'd into real life, —
 The sacrifice goes on ; the pontiff knife 20
 Gleams in the Sun, the milk-white heifer lows,
 The pipes go shrilly, the libation flows:
 A white sail shows above the green-head cliff,
 Moves round the point, and throws her anchor stiff ;
 The mariners join hymn with those on land.

You know the Enchanted Castle, — it doth stand
 Upon a rock, on the border of a Lake,
 Nested in trees, which all do seem to shake
 From some old magic-like Urganda's sword.
 O Phœbus ! that I had thy sacred word 30
 To show this Castle, in fair dreaming wise ;
 Unto my friend, while sick and ill he lies !

You know it well enough, where it doth seem
 A mossy place, a Merlin's Hall, a dream ;
 You know the clear Lake, and the little Isles,
 The mountains blue, and cold near neighbour rills,
 All which elsewhere are but half animate ;
 There do they look alive to love and hate,
 To smiles and frowns ; they seem a lifted mound
 Above some giant, pulsing underground. 40

Part of the building was a chosen See,
 Built by a banish'd Santon of Chaldee ;
 The other part, two thousand years from him,
 Was built by Cuthbert de Saint Aldebrim ;
 Then there 's a little wing, far from the Sun,
 Built by a Lapland Witch turn'd maudlin Nun ;
 And many other juts of aged stone
 Founded with many a mason-devil's groan.

The doors all look as if they op'd themselves :
 The windows as if latch'd by Fays and Elves, 50
 And from them comes a silver flash of light,
 As from the westward of a Summer's night ;
 Or like a beauteous woman's large blue eyes ;
 Gone mad through olden songs and poesies.

See ! what is coming from the distance dim !
 A golden Galley all in silken trim !
 Three rows of oars are lightning, moment whiles
 Into the verd'rous bosoms of those isles ;
 Towards the shade, under the Castle wall,
 It comes in silence, — now 't is hidden all. 60

The Clarion sounds, and from a Postern-gate
 An echo of sweet music doth create
 A fear in the poor Herdsman who doth bring
 His beasts to trouble the enchanted spring, —
 He tells of the sweet music, and the spot,
 To all his friends, and they believe him not.

O that our dreamings all, of sleep or wake,
 Would all their colours from the sunset take :
 From something of material sublime,
 Rather than shadow our own soul's day-time 70
 In the dark void of night. For in the world
 We jostle, — but my flag is not unfurl'd
 On the Admiral-staff, — and so philosophise
 I dare not yet ! O, never will the prize,
 High reason, and the love of good and ill,
 Be my award ! Things cannot to the will
 Be settled, but they tease us out of thought ;
 Or is it imagination brought
 Beyond its proper bound, yet still confin'd,
 Lost in a sort of Purgatory blind, 80
 Cannot refer to any standard law
 Of either earth or heaven ? It is a flaw
 In happiness, to see beyond our bourn. —
 It forces us in summer skies to mourn,
 It spoils the singing of the Nightingale.

Dear Reynolds ! I have a mysterious tale,
 And cannot speak it : the first page I read
 Upon a Lampit rock of green sea-weed
 Among the breakers ; 't was a quiet eve,
 The rocks were silent, the wide sea did weave 90
 An untumultuous fringe of silver foam
 Along the flat brown sand ; I was at home
 And should have been most happy, — but I saw
 Too far into the sea, where every maw
 The greater on the less feeds evermore. —
 But I saw too distinct into the core

Of an eternal fierce destruction,
 And so from happiness I far was gone.
 Still am I sick of it, and tho' to-day,
 I've gather'd young spring-leaves, and flowers gay
 Of periwinkle and wild strawberry, 101
 Still do I that most fierce destruction see,
 The Shark at savage prey, — the Hawk at pounce, —
 The gentle Robin, like a Pard or Ounce,
 Ravening a worm, — Away, ye horrid moods !
 Moods of one's mind ! You know I hate them well.
 You know I'd sooner be a clapping Bell
 To some Kamschatkan Missionary Church,
 Than with these horrid moods be left i' the lurch.

A DRAUGHT OF SUNSHINE

HENCE Burgundy, Claret, and Port,
 Away with old Hock and Madeira,
 Too earthly ye are for my sport ;
 There's a beverage brighter and clearer.
 Instead of a pitiful rummer,
 My wine overbrims a whole summer ;
 My bowl is the sky,
 And I drink at my eye,
 Till I feel in the brain
 A Delphian pain —
 Then follow, my Caius ! then follow :
 On the green of the hill
 We will drink our fill
 Of golden sunshine,
 Till our brains intertwine
 With the glory and grace of Apollo !
 God of the Meridian,
 And of the East and West,
 To thee my soul is flown,
 And my body is earthward press'd. —
 It is an awful mission,
 A terrible division ;

And leaves a gulf austere
To be fill'd with worldly fear.
Aye, when the soul is fled
To high above our head,
Affrighted do we gaze
After its airy maze,
As doth a mother wild,
When her young infant child
Is in an eagle's claws —
And is not this the cause
Of madness? — God of Song,
Thou bearest me along
Through sights I scarce can bear :
O let me, let me share
With the hot lyre and thee,
The staid Philosophy.
Temper my lonely hours,
And let me see thy bowers
More unalarm'd !

AT TEIGNMOUTH

HERE all the summer could I stay,
For there's Bishop's teign
And King's teign
And Coomb at the clear teign head —
Where close by the stream
You may have your cream
All spread upon barley bread.

There's arch Brook
And there's larch Brook
Both turning many a mill ;
And cooling the drouth
Of the salmon's mouth
And fattening his silver gill.

There is Wild wood,
A Mild hood

To the sheep on the lea o' the down,
 Where the golden furze
 With its green, thin spurs,
 Doth catch at the maiden's gown.

There is Newton marsh
 With its spear grass harsh —
 A pleasant summer level
 Where the maidens sweet
 Of the Market Street,
 Do meet in the dusk to revel.

There's the Barton rich
 With dyke and ditch
 And hedge for the thrush to live in ;
 And the hollow tree
 For the buzzing bee,
 And a bank for the wasp to hive in.

And O, and O
 The daisies blow
 And the primroses are waken'd,
 And the violets white
 Sit in silver plight,
 And the green bud's as long as the spike end.

Then who would go
 Into dark Soho,
 And chatter with dack'd hair'd critics,
 When he can stay
 For the new-mown hay,
 And startle the dappled Prickets ?

THE DEVON MAID

WHERE be ye going, you Devon Maid ?
 And what have ye there in the Basket ?
 Ye tight little fairy just fresh from the dairy,
 Will ye give me some cream if I ask it ?

I love your Meads, and I love your flowers,
 And I love your junkets mainly,
 But 'hind the door I love kissing more,
 O look not so disdainly.

I love your hills, and I love your dales,
 And I love your flocks a-bleating —
 But O, on the heather to lie together,
 With both our hearts a-beating !

I'll put your Basket all safe in a nook,
 Your shawl I hang up on the willow,
 And we will sigh in the daisy's eye
 And kiss on a grass green pillow.

ACROSTIC :

GEORGIANA AUGUSTA KEATS

GIVE me your patience, sister, while I frame
 Exact in capitals your golden name ;
 Or sue the fair Apollo and he will
 Rouse from his heavy slumber and instill
 Great love in me for thee and Poesy.
 Imagine not that greatest mastery
 And kingdom over all the Realms of verse,
 Nears more to heaven in aught, than when we nurse
 And surety give to love and Brotherhood.

Anthropophagi in Othello's mood ;
 Ulysses storm'd and his enchanted belt
 Glow with the Muse, but they are never felt
 Unbosom'd so and so eternal made,
 Such tender incense in their laurel shade
 To all the regent sisters of the Nine
 As this poor offering to you, sister mine.

Kind sister! ay, this third name says you are ;
 Enchanted has it been the Lord knows where ;

And may it taste to you like good old wine,
Take you to real happiness and give
Sons, daughters and a home like honied hive.

MEG MERRILIES

OLD Meg she was a Gipsy,
And liv'd upon the Moors:
Her bed it was the brown heath turf,
And her house was out of doors.

Her apples were swart blackberries,
Her currants pods o' broom;
Her wine was dew of the wild white rose,
Her book a churchyard tomb.

Her Brothers were the craggy hills,
Her Sisters larchen trees —
Alone with her great family
She liv'd as she did please.

No breakfast had she many a morn,
No dinner many a noon,
And 'stead of supper she would stare
Full hard against the Moon.

But every morn of woodbine fresh
She made her garlanding,
And every night the dark glen Yew
She wove, and she would sing.

And with her fingers old and brown
She plaited Mats o' Rushes,
And gave them to the Cottagers
She met among the Bushes,

Old Meg was brave as Margaret Queen
And tall as Amazon :

An old red blanket coat she wore ;
 A chip hat had she on.
 God rest her aged bones somewhere —
 She died full long ago !

A SONG ABOUT MYSELF

THERE was a naughty Boy,
 A naughty boy was he,
 He would not stop at home,
 He could not quiet be —
 He took
 In his Knapsack
 A Book
 Full of vowels ;
 And a shirt
 With some towels —
 A slight cap
 For night cap —
 A hair brush,
 Comb ditto,
 New Stockings,
 For old ones
 Would split O !
 This Knapsack,
 Tight at 's back,
 He rivetted close
 And follow'd his Nose
 To the North,
 To the North,
 And follow'd his nose
 To the North.

There was a naughty boy
 And a naughty boy was he,
 For nothing would he do
 But scribble poetry —
 He took
 An inkstand

In his hand,
 And a Pen
 Big as ten
 In the other,
 And away
 In a Pother
 He ran
 To the mountains,
 And fountains
 And ghostes,
 And Postes,
 And witches,
 And ditches,
 And wrote
 In his coat,
 When the weather
 Was cool,
 Fear of gout,
 And without
 When the weather
 Was warm —
 Och the charm
 When we choose
 To follow one's nose
 To the north,
 To the north,
 To follow one's nose
 To the north.

There was a naughty boy
 And a naughty boy was he,
 He kept little fishes
 In washing tubs three
 In spite
 Of the might
 Of the Maid,
 Nor afraid
 Of his Granny — good —
 He often would,

Hurly burly,
Get up early,
And go
By hook or crook
To the brook,
And bring home
Miller's thumb,
Tittlebat
Not over fat,
Minnows small
As the stall
Of a glove,
Not above
The size
Of a nice
Little Baby's
Little fingers —
O, he made,
'T was his trade,
Of Fish a pretty Kettle
A Kettle —
A Kettle
Of Fish, a pretty Kettle,
A Kettle !

There was a naughty Boy,
And a naughty Boy was he,
He ran away to Scotland
The people for to see —
Then he found
That the ground
Was as hard,
That a yard
Was as long,
That a song
Was as merry,
That a cherry
Was as red —
That lead

Was as weighty,
 That fourscore
 Was as eighty,
 That a door
 Was as wooden
 As in England —
 So he stood in his shoes
 And he wonder'd,
 He wonder'd,
 He stood in his shoes
 And he wonder'd.

TO THOMAS KEATS

BELANTREE (for Ballantree) July 10 [1818.]

AH! ken ye what I met the day
 Out oore the Mountains
 A coming down by craggies gray
 An mossie fountains —
 Ah goud-hair'd Marie yeve I pray
 Ane minute's guessing —
 For that I met upon the way
 Is past expressing.
 As I stood where a rocky brig
 A torrent crosses
 I spied upon a misty rig
 A troupe o' Horses —
 And as they trotted down the glen
 I sped to meet them
 To see if I might know the Men
 To stop and greet them.
 First Willie on his sleek mare came
 At canting gallop,
 His long hair rustled like a flame
 On board a shallop,
 Then came his brother Rab and then
 Young Peggy's Mither

And Peggy too — adown the glen
 They went together —
 I saw her wrappit in her hood
 Frae wind and raining —
 Her cheek was flush wi' timid blood
 Twixt growth and waning —
 She turn'd her dazed eyes full oft
 For there her Brithers
 Came riding with her Bridegroom soft
 And mony ithers.
 Young Tam came up and eyed me quick
 With reddened cheek —
 Braw Tom was daffed like a chick —
 He couldna speak —
 Ah, Marie, they are all gane hame
 Through blustering weather
 An' every heart is full on flame
 An' light as feather.
 Ah ! Marie, they are all gone hame
 Frae happy wadding,
 Whilst I — Ah is it not a shame ?
 Sad tears am shedding.

THE GADFLY

ALL gentle folks who owe a grudge
 To any living thing
 Open your ears and stay your t(r)udge
 Whilst I in dudgeon sing.

The Gadfly he hath stung me sore —
 O may he ne'er sting you !
 But we have many a horrid bore, —
 He may sting black and blue.

Has any here an old gray Mare
 With three legs all her store,

O put it to her Buttocks bare
And straight she'll run on four.

Has any here a Lawyer suit
Of 1743,
Take Lawyer's nose and put it to 't
And you the end will see.

Is there a Man in Parliament
Dum(b)founder'd in his speech,
O let his neighbour make a rent
And put one in his breech.

O Lowther how much better thou
Hadst figur'd t' other day
When to the folks thou mad'st a bow
And hadst no more to say.

If lucky Gadfly had but ta'en
His seat . . .
And put thee to a little pain
To save thee from a worse.

Better than Southey it had been,
Better than Mr. D —
Better than Wordsworth, too, I ween,
Better than Mr. V —.

Forgive me, pray, good people all,
For deviating so —
In spirit sure I had a call —
And now I on will go.

Has any here a daughter fair
Too fond of reading novels,
Too apt to fall in love with care
And charming Mister Lovels,

O put a Gadfly to that thing
 She keeps so white and pert—
 I mean the finger for the ring,
 And it will breed a wort.

Has any here a pious spouse
 Who seven times a day
 Scolds as King David pray'd, to chouse
 And have her holy way—

O let a Gadfly's little sting
 Persuade her sacred tongue
 That noises are a common thing,
 But that her bell has rung.

And as this is the summum bo-
 num of all conquering,
 I leave ' withouten wordes mo'
 The Gadfly's little sting.

ON HEARING THE BAG-PIPE AND SEEING 'THE STRANGER' PLAYED AT INVERARY

OF late two dainties were before me plac'd
 Sweet, holy, pure, sacred and innocent,
 From the ninth sphere to me benignly sent
 That Gods might know my own particular taste :
 First the soft Bag-pipe mourn'd with zealous haste,
 The Stranger next with head on bosom bent
 Sigh'd ; rueful again the piteous Bag-pipe went,
 Again the Stranger sighings fresh did waste.
 O Bag-pipe, thou didst steal my heart away—
 O Stranger, thou my nerves from Pipe didst charm—
 O Bag-pipe thou didst re-assert thy sway—
 Again thou, Stranger, gav'st me fresh alarm—
 Alas ! I could not choose. Ah ! my poor heart
 Mum chance art thou with both oblig'd to part.

LINES WRITTEN IN THE HIGHLANDS AFTER A VISIT TO BURNS'S COUNTRY

THERE is a charm in footing slow across a silent
plain,
Where patriot battle has been fought, where glory
had the gain ;
There is a pleasure on the heath where Druids old have been,
Where mantles gray have rustled by and swept the nettles green ;
There is Joy in every spot made known by times of old,
New to the feet, although each tale a hundred times
be told ;
There is a deeper Joy than all, more solemn in the heart,
More parching to the tongue than all, of more divine
a smart,
When weary steps forget themselves upon a pleasant
turf,
Upon hot sand, or flinty road, or sea-shore iron scurf,
Toward the Castle or the Cot, where long ago was born 11
One who was great through mortal days, and died
of fame unshorn.
Light heather-bells may tremble then, but they are far away ;
Wood-lark may sing from sandy fern, — the Sun
may hear his Lay ;
Runnels may kiss the grass on shelves and shallows
clear,
But their low voices are not heard, though come on travels drear ;
Blood-red the sun may set behind black mountain peaks ;
Blue tides may sluice and drench their time in Caves
and weedy creeks ;

Eagles may seem to sleep wing-wide upon the Air ;
 Ring-doves may fly convuls'd across to some high-cedar'd lair ; 20
 But the forgotten eye is still fast lidded to the ground,
 As Palmer's, that with weariness, mid-desert shrine hath found.

At such a time the soul's a child, in childhood is the brain ;
 Forgotten is the worldly heart — alone, it beats in vain. —
 Aye, if a Madman could have leave to pass a healthful day
 To tell his forehead's swoon and faint when first began decay,
 He might make tremble many a one whose spirit had gone forth
 To find a Bard's low cradle-place about the silent
     North.
 Scanty the hour and few the steps beyond the bourn
     of Care,
 Beyond the sweet and bitter world, — beyond it
     unaware ! 30
 Scanty the hour and few the steps, because a longer stay
 Would bar return, and make a man forget his mortal way :
 O horrible! to lose the sight of well remember'd
     face,
 Of Brother's eyes, of Sister's brow — constant to every place ;
 Filling the Air, as on we move, with Portraiture intense ;
 More warm than those heroic tints that pain a
     Painter's sense,
 When shapes of old come striding by, and visages
     of old,

Locks shining black, hair scanty gray, and passions manifold.

No, no, that horror cannot be, for at the cable's length

Man feels the gentle anchor pull and gladdens in its strength : — 40

One hour, half-idiot, he stands by mossy water-fall,
But in the very next he reads his soul's Memorial : —
He reads it on the mountain's height, where chance
he may sit down

Upon rough marble diadem — that hill's eternal
Crown.

Yet be his Anchor e'er so fast, room is there for a prayer

That man may never lose his Mind on Mountains
black and bare ;

That he may stray league after league some great birthplace to find

And keep his vision clear from speck, his inward sight unblind.

MRS. CAMERON AND BEN NEVIS

After all there was one Mrs. Cameron of 50 years of age and the fattest woman in all Inverness-shire who got up this Mountain some few years ago — true she had her servants — but then she had herself. She ought to have hired Sisyphus, — 'Up the high hill he heaves a huge round — Mrs. Cameron.' 'T is said a little conversation took place between the mountain and the Lady. After taking a glass of Whisky as she was tolerably seated at ease she thus began —

MRS. C.

UPON my life Sir Nevis I am piqued
That I have so far panted tugg'd and reek'd
To do an honor to your old bald pate
And now am sitting on you just to bait,
Without your paying me one compliment.

Alas, 't is so with all, when our intent
 Is plain, and in the eye of all Mankind
 We fair ones show a preference, too blind!
 You Gentle man immediately turn tail —
 O let me then my hapless fate bewail! 10
 Ungrateful Baldpate have I not disdain'd
 The pleasant Valleys — have I not madbrain'd
 Deserted all my Pickles and preserves
 My China closet too — with wretched Nerves
 To boot — say, wretched ingrate, have I not Left my soft cushion chair and caudle pot?
 'T is true I had no corns — no! thank the fates
 My Shoemaker was always Mr. Bates.
 And if not Mr. Bates why I'm not old!
 Still dumb ungrateful Nevis — still so cold! 20

Here the Lady took some more whisky and was putting even more to her lips when she dashed it to the Ground, for the Mountain began to grumble — which continued for a few minutes before he thus began —

BEN NEVIS

What whining bit of tongue and Mouth thus dares
 Disturb my slumber of a thousand years?
 Even so long my sleep has been secure —
 And to be so awak'd I'll not endure.
 Oh pain — for since the Eagle's earliest scream
 I've had a damn'd confounded ugly dream,
 A Nightmare sure. What! Madam, was it you?
 It cannot be! My old eyes are not true!
 Red-Crag, my Spectacles! Now let me see!
 Good Heavens! Lady, how the gemini 30
 Did you get here? O, I shall split my sides!
 I shall earthquake —

MRS. C.

Sweet Nevis do not quake, for though I love
 Your honest Countenance all things above,

Truly I should not like to be convey'd
 So far into your Bosom — gentle Maid
 Loves not too rough a treatment, gentle Sir —
 Pray thee be calm and do not quake nor stir
 No, not a Stone, or I shall go in fits —

BEN NEVIS

I must — I shall — I meet not such tit bits — 40
 I meet not such sweet creatures every day —
 By my old nightcap night and day
 I must have one sweet Buss — I must and shall !
 Red Crag ! — What ! Madam, can you then repent

Of all the toil and vigour you have spent
 To see Ben Nevis and to touch his nose ?
 Red Crag I say ! O I must have them close !
 Red Crag, there lies beneath my farthest toe
 A vein of Sulphur — go, dear Red Crag, go —
 And rub your flinty back against it — budge ! 50
 Dear Madam, I must kiss you, faith I must !
 I must embrace you with my dearest gust !
 Block-head, d' ye hear ! — Block-head, I'll make her feel.

There lies beneath my east leg's northern heel
 A cave of young earth dragons ; — well my boy
 Go thither quick and so complete my joy.
 Take you a bundle of the largest pines,
 And when the sun on fiercest Phosphor shines,
 Fire them and ram them in the Dragon's nest,
 Then will the dragons fry and fizz their best 60
 Until ten thousand now no bigger than Poor alligators — poor things of one span —
 Will each one swell to twice ten times the size
 Of northern whale — then for the tender prize —
 The moment then — for then will Red Crag rub
 His flinty back — and I shall kiss and snub
 And press my dainty morsel to my breast.
 Block-head make haste !

O Muses, weep the rest —

The Lady fainted and he thought her dead ;
 So pulled the clouds again about his head 70
 And went to sleep again ; soon she was rous'd
 By her affrighted servants — next day, hous'd
 Safe on the lowly ground she bless'd her fate
 That fainting fit was not delayed too late.

But what surprised me above all is how the lady got down again. I felt it horribly. 'T was the most vile descent — shook me all to pieces.

SHARING EVE'S APPLE

O BLUSH not so! O blush not so!
 Or I shall think you knowing ;
 And if you smile the blushing while,
 Then maidenheads are going.

There's a blush for won't, and a blush for shan't,
 And a blush for having done it :
 There's a blush for thought and a blush for nought,
 And a blush for just begun it.

O sigh not so! O sigh not so!
 For it sounds of Eve's sweet Pippin ;
 By these loosen'd lips you have tasted the pips
 And fought in an amorous nipping.

Will you play once more at nice-cut-core,
 For it only will last our youth out,
 And we have the prime of the kissing time,
 We have not one sweet tooth out.

There's a sigh for yes, and a sigh for no,
 And a sigh for I can't bear it!
 O what can be done, shall we stay or run ?
 O cut the sweet apple and share it !

A PROPHECY

TO GEORGE KEATS IN AMERICA

'T is the witching time of night,
 Orbed is the moon and bright,
 And the Stars they glisten, glisten,
 Seeming with bright eyes to listen.
 For what listen they ?
 For a song and for a charm,
 See they glisten in alarm,
 And the Moon is waxing warm
 To hear what I shall say.
 Moon ! keep wide thy golden ears —
 Hearken, Stars ! and hearken, Spheres ! —
 Hearken, thou eternal Sky !
 I sing an infant's Lullaby,
 O pretty lullaby !
 Listen, listen, listen, listen,
 Glisten, glisten, glisten, glisten,
 And hear my Lullaby !
 Though the Rushes, that will make
 Its cradle, still are in the lake —
 Though the linen that will be
 Its swathe, is on the cotton tree —
 Though the woollen that will keep
 It warm, is on the silly sheep —
 Listen, Starlight, listen, listen,
 Glisten, glisten, glisten, glisten,
 And hear my lullaby !
 Child, I see thee ! Child, I 've found thee
 Midst of the quiet all around thee !
 Child, I see thee ! Child, I spy thee !
 And thy mother sweet is nigh thee !
 Child, I know thee ! Child no more,
 But a Poet evermore !
 See, see, the Lyre, the Lyre,
 In a flame of fire,

Upon the little cradle's top
 Flaring, flaring, flaring,
 Past the eyesight's bearing.
 Awake it from its sleep,
 And see if it can keep
 Its eyes upon the blaze —
 Amaze, amaze !
 It stares, it stares, it stares,
 It dares what no one dares !
 It lifts its little hand into the flame
 Unharm'd, and on the strings
 Paddles a little tune, and sings,
 With dumb endeavour sweetly —
 Bard art thou completely !

Little child

O' th' western wild,
 Bard art thou completely !
 Sweetly with dumb endeavour.

A poet now or never,

Little child

O' th' western wild,
 A Poet now or never !

A LITTLE EXTEMPORE

WHEN they were come into the Faery's Court
 They rang — no one at home — all gone to sport
 And dance and kiss and love as faeries do
 For Faeries be as humans lovers true.
 Amid the woods they were so lone and wild,
 Where even the Robin feels himself exil'd,
 And where the very brooks, as if afraid,
 Hurry along to some less magic shade.
 ' No one at home ! ' the fretful Princess cry'd ;
 ' And all for nothing such a dreary ride,
 And all for nothing my new diamond cross ;
 No one to see my Persian feathers toss,
 No one to see my Ape, my Dwarf, my Fool,
 Or how I pace my Otaheitan mule.

Ape, Dwarf, and Fool, why stand you gaping there,
 Burst the door open, quick — or I declare
 I'll switch you soundly and in pieces tear.'
 The Dwarf began to tremble, and the Ape j
 Star'd at the Fool, the Fool was all agape,
 The Princess grasp'd her switch, but just in time 20
 The dwarf with piteous face began to rhyme.
 'O mighty Princess, did you ne'er hear tell
 What your poor servants know but too too well?
 Know you the three great crimes in Faeryland?
 The first, alas! poor Dwarf, I understand,
 I made a whipstock of a faery's wand;
 The next is snoring in their company;
 The next, the last, the direst of the three,
 Is making free when they are not at home.
 I was a Prince — a baby prince — my doom, 30
 You see, I made a whipstock of a wand,
 My top has henceforth slept in faery land.
 He was a Prince, the Fool, a grown-up Prince,
 But he has never been a King's son since
 He fell a snoring at a faery Ball.
 Yon poor Ape was a Prince, and he poor thing
 Picklock'd a faery's boudoir — now no king
 But ape — so pray your highness stay awhile,
 'T is sooth indeed, we know it to our sorrow —
 Persist and you may be an ape to-morrow.' 40
 While the Dwarf spake, the Princess, all for spite,
 Peel'd the brown hazel twig to lily white,
 Clench'd her small teeth, and held her lips apart,
 Try'd to look unconcern'd with beating heart.
 They saw her highness had made up her mind,
 A-quavering like the reeds before the wind —
 And they had had it, but O happy chance!
 The Ape for very fear began to dance
 And grinn'd as all his ugliness did ache —
 She staid her vixen fingers for his sake, 50
 He was so very ugly: then she took
 Her pocket-mirror and began to look

First at herself and then at him, and then
 She smil'd at her own beauteous face again.
 Yet for all this — for all her pretty face —
 She took it in her head to see the place.
 Women gain little from experience
 Either in Lovers, husbands, or expense.
 The more their beauty the more fortune too —
 Beauty before the wide world never knew — 60
 So each fair reasons — tho' it oft miscarries.
 She thought her pretty face would please the faeries.
 'My darling Ape, I wont whip you to-day,
 Give me the Picklock sirrah and go play.'
 They all three wept but counsel was as vain
 As crying cup biddy to drops of rain.
 Yet lingering by did the sad Ape forth draw
 The Picklock from the Pocket in his Jaw.
 The Princess took it, and dismounting straight
 Tripp'd in blue silver'd slippers to the gate 70
 And touch'd the wards, the Door full courteous
 Opened — she enter'd with her servants three.
 Again it clos'd and there was nothing seen
 But the Mule grazing on the herbage green.

End of Canto XII.

CANTO THE XIII

The Mule no sooner saw himself alone
 Than he prick'd up his Ears — and said 'well done;
 At least unhappy Prince I may be free —
 No more a Princess shall side-saddle me.
 O King of Otaheite — tho' a Mule,
 "Aye, every inch a King" — tho' "Fortune's Fool,"
 Well done — for by what Mr. Dwarfy said
 I would not give a sixpence for her head.'
 Even as he spake he trotted in high glee
 To the knotty side of an old Pollard tree, 10
 And rubb'd his sides against the mossed bark

Till his Girths burst and left him naked stark
 Except his Bridle — how get rid of that
 Buckled and tied with many a twist and plait.
 At last it struck him to pretend to sleep,
 And then the thievish Monkeys down would creep
 And filch the unpleasant trammels quite away.
 No sooner thought of than adown he lay,
 Shamm'd a good snore — the Monkey-men descended
 And whom they thought to injure they befriended.
 They hung his Bridle on a topmost bough 21
 And off he went run, trot, or anyhow —

SPENSERIAN STANZAS ON CHARLES ARMITAGE
 BROWN

HE is to weet a melancholy Carle :
 Thin in the waist, with bushy head of hair,
 As hath the seeded thistle when in parle
 It holds the Zephyr, ere it sendeth fair
 Its light balloons into the summer air ;
 There to his beard had not begun to bloom,
 No brush had touch'd his chin, or razor sheer ;
 No care had touched his cheek with mortal doom,
 But new he was, and bright, as scarf from Persian loom.

Ne cared he for wine, or half-and-half ;
 Ne cared he for fish, or flesh, or fowl ;
 And sauces held he worthless as the chaff ;
 He's deigned the swineherd at the wassail bowl ;
 Ne with lewd ribbalds sat he cheek by jowl ;
 Ne with sly Lemans in the scorner's chair ;
 But after water-brooks this Pilgrim's soul
 Panted, and all his food was woodland air ;
 Though he would oft-times feast on gilliflowers rare.

The slang of cities in no wise he knew ;
Tipping the wink to him was heathen Greek ;

He sipp'd no 'olden Tom,' or 'ruin blue,'
 Or Nantz, or cherry-brandy, drunk full meek
 By many a Damsel hoarse, and rouge of cheek;
 Nor did he know each aged Watchman's beat,
 Nor in obscured purlieus would he seek
 For curled Jewesses, with ankles neat,
 Who, as they walk abroad, make tinkling with their feet.

TWO OR THREE POSIES

Two or three Posies
 With two or three simples —
 Two or three Noses
 With two or three pimples —
 Two or three wise men
 And two or three ninny's —
 Two or three purses
 And two or three guineas —
 Two or three raps
 At two or three doors —
 Two or three naps
 Of two or three hours —
 Two or three Cats
 And two or three mice —
 Two or three sprats
 At a very great price —
 Two or three sandies
 And two or three tabbies —
 Two or three dandies
 And two Mrs.           mum!
 Two or three Smiles
 And two or three frowns —
 Two or three Miles
 To two or three towns —
 Two or three pegs
 For two or three bonnets —
 Two or three dove eggs
 To hatch into sonnets —

A PARTY OF LOVERS

PENSIVE they sit, and roll their languid eyes,
 Nibble their toast, and cool their tea with sighs,
 Or else forget the purpose of the night,
 Forget their tea — forget their appetite.
 See with cross'd arms they sit — ah ! happy crew,
 The fire is going out and no one rings
 For coals, and therefore no coals Betty brings.
 A fly is in the milk-pot — must he die
     By a humane society ?
 No, no ; there Mr. Werter takes his spoon,
 Inserts it, dips the handle, and lo ! soon
 The little straggler, sav'd from perils dark,
 Across the teaboard draws a long wet mark.

Arise! take snuffers by the handle,
 There's a large cauliflower in each candle.
 A winding-sheet, ah me ! I must away
 To No. 7, just beyond the circus gay.
 'Alas, my friend ! your coat sits very well ;
 Where may your Taylor live ?' 'I may not tell.
 O pardon me — I'm absent now and then.
 Where might my Taylor live ? I say again
 I cannot tell, let me no more be teaz'd —
 He lives in Wapping, might live where he pleas'd.'

TO GEORGE KEATS

WRITTEN IN SICKNESS

BROTHER belov'd if health shall smile again,
 Upon this wasted form and fever'd cheek :
 If e'er returning vigour bid these weak
 And languid limbs their gladsome strength regain,
 Well may thy brow the placid glow retain
 Of sweet content and thy pleas'd eye may speak

The conscious self applause, but should I seek
 To utter what this heart can feel, — Ah ! vain
 Were the attempt! Yet kindest friends while o'er

My couch ye bend, and watch with tenderness
 The being whom your cares could e'en restore,
 From the cold grasp of Death, say can you guess
 The feelings which these lips can ne'er express ?
 Feelings, deep fix'd in grateful memory's store.

ON OXFORD

THE Gothic looks solemn,
 The plain Doric column
 Supports an old Bishop and Crozier ;
 The mouldering arch,
 Shaded o'er by a larch,
 Stands next door to Wilson the Hosier.

Vice, — that is, by turns, —
 O'er pale faces mourns
 The black tassell'd trencher and common hat ;
 The charity boy sings,
 The Steeple-bell rings
 And as for the Chancellor — dominat.

There are plenty of trees,
 And plenty of ease,
 And plenty of fat deer for Parsons ;
 And when it is venison,
 Short is the benison, —
 Then each on a leg or thigh fastens.

TO A CAT

CAT! who has[t] pass'd thy grand clima[c]teric,
 How many mice and rats hast in thy days
 Destroy'd ? — How many tit-bits stolen ? Gaze

With those bright languid segments green, and prick

Those velvet ears — but pr'ythee do not stick

Thy latent talons in me — and upraise

Thy gentle mew — and tell me all thy frays

Of fish and mice, and rats and tender chick :

Nay, look not down, nor lick thy dainty wrists

For all the wheezy asthma, — and for all

Thy tail's tip is nick'd off — and though the fists

Of many a maid has given thee many a maul,

Still is that fur as soft as when the lists

In youth thou enter'dst on glass-bottled wall.
